May Pass Measure Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Other legislation was held up in the senate today while supporters of the veterans' bonus loan bill launched a drive to insure early action.

ANDREW MELLON.

Approval by the senate finance committee tomorrow of the bill as passed yesterday by the house and its passage by the senate on Thursday, or at the latest on Friday, were the objectives.

Speeches on the bonus legislation occupied much of the time of the senate. Between speeches other matters were brought forward as part of a filibuster to bring about prompt action on the bonus bill by holding back the appropriation program. A separate filibuster designed to force a settlement of the Muscle Shoals controversy also was a factor in keeping the senate in session into the evening.

The filibuster was broken early in the evening sufficiently to permit the passage of the independent offices appropriation conference report, which amounts to $1,053,000,000, and the District of Columbia appropriation of $46,000,000.

Committee to Hear Mellon.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is to appear before the senate finance committee tomorrow morning. If he continues his unyielding attitude of opposition to the house bill increasing maximum loans on bonus certificates held by world war veterans from 22½ to 50 per cent, it will be interpreted as meaning that President Hoover is certain to veto it. If he suggests amendments on which there could be an agreement it would point to acceptance of the legislation by the President.

Senators Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the finance committee, and David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], also an administration member of the committee, conferred separately with President Hoover this afternoon. It was reported that both were seeking a compromise which might make possible legislation acceptable to the President.

Senator Reed said he intended to offer amendments in the committee tomorrow which he hoped might be accepted. He insisted that his amendments were not antagonistic to the legislation.

Couzens Opposes Amendments.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], a member of the finance committee and one of the leading advocates of the bonus bill, served notice in the senate that he would oppose all amendments.

"I submit that this bill should not be amended at all, even if we disagree as to the 4½ per cent rate of interest on loans as provided in the house bill," said Senator Couzens. "If this bill goes to conference it might be delayed to such an extent as to make possible a pocket veto by the President. We should take no chances. I hope the bill will be reported from the finance committee tomorrow noon and taken up in the senate by Thursday."

Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] suggested that if the senate should reduce the interest rate to 3½ per cent, a preferential motion would be possible for concurrence by the house in the senate amendment without sending the bill to conference.

Club to Force Action.

As a club to force prompt action by the finance committee, Senator H. F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] offered a motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill. Senator Simeon D. Fess. [Rep., O.], who was presiding, ruled that the motion could not be acted upon until tomorrow. With Senator Couzens and others insisting upon immediate action in the committee, it appeared that there would be no occasion to call up the Ashurst motion.

Senator Couzens and Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] used up con-

ARMY BACKS UP NEW MOVE FOR CIVIL DICTATOR

King Recalls Offer to His Foes.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MADRID, Feb. 18.—[Wednesday, by Telephone to Paris to Avoid Censor.]—Faint heart never held a crown and King Alfonso, having got over his momentary attack of conscience, finds himself victor this morning in another episode of the slow moving Spanish revolution.

At 1 a. m. today a statement from the Liberal and Conservative parties, who have remained loyal to the king, announced that after a four and a half hour conference at the ministry of war they were ready to enter a government under Gen. Damaso Berenguer, who was fired as premier last Saturday. A list of prospective ministers was taken to the palace for the king's approval. He will give his decision later this morning. The possibilities are strong that a civil dictatorship will be announced.

Rallies His Henchmen.

Alfonso, after the few hours that followed his sudden determination not to avow himself beaten by accepting Sanchez Guerra's conditions for a constitutional assembly and what amounted to conditional abdication, thus surrendering to the imprisoned revolutionaries, sent out a call to his henchmen, who had given up everything for lost.

He asked them to form a government that will do what Sanchez Guerra failed to do—convoke a constitutional assembly—but with a difference. It is understood from the very character of the men called that the position of the crown will be in no way jeopardized and there will be no great rush in convoking the assembly.

Admit King Victorious.

In the camp of the constitutionalists and actual revolutionaries it was admitted that Alfonso had won a temporary victory. They confess the bloodless revolution, believed won until noon yesterday has fallen through, and, that a peaceful solution now appearing out of the question, the actual business of creating a republic must be held up a bit.

The general strike, which it is now learned, was to have started with military accompaniment at 1 a. m. yesterday, and which was only called off with difficulty when it seemed that Sanchez Guerra was victorious, has been postponed, but will break automatically if a military dictatorship is attempted.

In the second Berenguer government will be the count of Bugallal, head of the Conservative party, Count Romanones, the marquis of Alhucemas, the duke of Maura, Juan de la Cierva, known for his bloody handling of the strike of 1917 and father of the inventor of the helicopter, and Francisco Cambo, the powerful Catalan.

Cabinet New Edition of Old.

The government is only a new edition of the last one with De la Cierva added. Nobody in Spain knows better how to keep order by the mailed fist than he, and is more hated.

The post mortem of the constitutionalists and Republicans is heartbreaking. Count Romanones made general amnesty for political prisoners later in the week a condition upon entering the ministry, but these prisoners on Monday were offered portfolios in a government which would have taken national sovereignty from the hands of the king.

And for a few hours Spain was ruled from behind bars of prisons. But it is quite different today. More arrests are possible to curb the activities of the republicans.

Sanchez Guerra a Broken Man.

Sanchez Guerra is broken. His friends fear that the 72 year old statesman is facing a nervous collapse.. One of his intimates said tonight:

"He is too old for the task. He should have made Alfonso accept his conditions instead of accepting Alfonso's."

The conditions the king made were that the extreme left element should enter his government. They refused solely through fear that once in the government, their superb revolutionary organization, which has yet to prove itself, would go to pieces. Beaten, they wait for what is to happen next.

Considered significant is the fact that the peseta rose Monday when the king's surrender to Sanchez Guerra was announced, and sank back yesterday afternoon when Alfonso won his clever victory.

What strain the king has under-

WOMAN FOUND DEAD; BELIEVE SHE SUFFOCATED

The body of Mrs. Lillian McGreen, 24 years old, a divorcée, was found in her room at the Silver Crest apartment hotel, 4062 Kenmore avenue, yesterday afternoon. Police for a time believed that she had been strangled, but a coroner's physician declared that suffocation and possible poisoning caused the death.

Mrs. McGreen was last seen on Saturday night when she paid Mrs. Earl Robinson, wife of the owner of the hotel, $5 and said she would make another payment on Tuesday. Yesterday Mrs. Robinson entered the room and found the body lying near an in-a-dor bed just outside the door of the bathroom.

The body was nude. A towel was tightly wound about the woman's head and had slipped down over her face. A blanket draped the shoulders.

Coroner's Physician A. F. Benson said Mrs. McGreen had apparently died Saturday night. A post mortem examination disclosed that death had been due partly to suffocation. Discoloration of the tongue caused the doctor to order an examination of the organs for traces of poison.

Lieut. John J. Benson of the Town Hall police reasoned that Mrs. McGreen had fallen and had suffocated when the towel originally intended to hold her hair in place became wound about her face.

The body was identified by Mrs. Mary Frioli, 1223 North Irving avenue, a sister. She said Mrs. McGreen had been a dancer who was unemployed for several months and in straitened circumstances. She was divorced about five years ago, the sister said, and had a son, Richard, 7 years old, who had lived at the Irving avenue address.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Feb. 17.—A Dutchman, aged 40, today slashed Rembrandt's famous painting, "Anatomy of Dr. John Deyman," five times with an ax in the national gallery at Amsterdam. When arrested he refused to state his motive for ripping the picture. Although seriously damaged, experts believe that it can be repaired. The painting is valued at $400,000 and was painted in 1656. It was seriously damaged by fire in 1723.

2 Dry Raiders Who Slew 2 Arrested on Murder Charge

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP)—County Patrolman William F. Clark and Constable Carl Sweeney were charged with murder today as a result of a gun battle yesterday in which two alleged moonshiners were slain. The charges were filed by Mrs. Georgia Ann Lamb, mother of Noah Lamb, one of the slain men. John Martin, Lamb's brother-in-law, was the other victim. Both officers were released under $5,000 bond. Examining trials were set for Friday.

Rob Widow in Daylight Gold Coast Holdup

Walking in Astor street, near Burton place, in the heart of the Gold Coast, Mrs. Matthias B. Pittman of the Ambassador hotel, widow of a La Salle street broker, was held up by two bandits in broad daylight yesterday and robbed of $40 and earrings valued at $150.

Only a few minutes before Mrs. Pittman was looking over some books in a small rental library in Division street just east of State street. Holding a biography of Al Capone in her hands, she turned around to several young men in the store and remarked she believed Capone ought to be shot. Then, facetiously, she inquired of the men if they were gangsters. Later as she left the store she was appealed to by an unemployed man f.: alms, gave him a dollar, and walked north in Astor street.

Held Up by Bandits.

As she neared Burton place two men approached her. One leaped in front and pressed a revolver to her side.

She started to raise her hands, but was told to hold them down. The armed man opened her purse, and took out $40. The second man studied her fingers for rings, seeing none, yanked at her pearl earrings. He tugged so hard he caused her to cry in pain. The two men fled, and she walked to her home. She notified a friend, who called police.

Mrs. Pittman's husband died in 1922.

Robbed, Locked in Vault.

Two bandits took $7,000 in cash and $7,400 in checks last night in a holdup in the offices of the Frank Pawlowski Jr. Real Estate and Mortgage company as 5757 Fullerton avenue.

Stanley A. Pawlowski, the manager, was about to close for the night when the robbers entered and forced him into the wall vault. They rifled the money box containing the cash and checks and ran out, closing the door on Pawlowski. They failed to lock the door, however, and Pawlowski stepped out a few moments later and notified Cragin police.

Antoinette Delacio, 821 North Hamlin avenue, manager of a National Tea company store at 934 North avenue, was robbed of $20 last night by a man who threatened her with a revolver.

Three gunmen entered the Ballin Brothers clothing store at 2662 Milwaukee avenue, late yesterday, and robbed Louis Ballin, one of the owners, of $225 and a diamond ring valued at $125. Two customers in the store at the time were not molested.

The police last night were trying to identify the body of a young automobile thief who was shot to death early yesterday when a detective squad pursued him and two companions at Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue.

Robbers to Plead Guilty.

Three men, who have confessed participation in ten jewel robberies and bank holdups, have agreed to plead guilty when they are arraigned in the Criminal court. This was announced yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury, who obtained the confessions from the defendants, Harry L. Powell, alias Lewis, George Nelson, and Stanton J. Randall. The prosecutor says he expects to have indictments in the cases by the end of the week.

Among the crimes charged up to the trio are the $25,000 jewel robbery at the home of Charles Richter, 1418 Lake Shore drive; the robbery of Mrs. Lottie Brenner von Buelow, 5839 Sheridan road, and the Itasca State bank and the Hillside State bank robberies. The men obtained a total of $135,000 in jewels and $10,200 in cash in the 10 crimes to which they have confessed.

FIVE NICARAGUA BANDITS SHOT IN HALF HOUR FIGHT

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Five followers of Augusto Sandino, the Nicaraguan insurgent leader, were wounded yesterday in a 30 minute encounter with Nicaraguan national guard troops near El Tule.

The battle occurred after a national guard patrol, commanded by Capt. Williams, found the insurgents well encamped in the hills.

The guard denied yesterday's report that insurgents had captured Gracias a Dios, on the Caribbean coast. The announcement said guard troops left Bluefields Thursday to establish a post there after hearing of insurgent activities in the Rio Coco district. They arrived there last night.

Mystery Man of U. S. 'Raid' Badly Injured

W. Perkins Bull, millionaire Canadian attorney, and a chief figure in the local divorce suit of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, and two other men were injured early yesterday when their automobile, speeding to Detroit on a secret mission, crashed into a stalled motor truck in Allen, Mich., near Coldwater.

Attendants at the Wade Memorial hospital in Coldwater said early this morning that the condition of Mr. Bull, who is 60 years old, was serious, due to a hip fracture, but that he would be removed to Toronto at 9 o'clock. His companions who were hurt are Bernard Magruder, vice president of the Horlick Malted Milk company, of which Mrs. Sidley's father is owner, and Carl F. Moore of Chicago, chauffeur of the wrecked car. Magruder left the hospital at 8 o'clock, suffering from a minor foot injury. Moore was still unconscious from his injuries this morning.

Mystery Surrounds Trip.

Mystery attended the motor trip to Detroit in view of an utterance of Moore during a momentary return to consciousness. According to the chauffeur, he was driving Bull and Magruder to Detroit, and "had to get there or else the federal men would be after them."

Although the accident occurred at daybreak yesterday, word of it was not received here until last night. Mrs. Bull and her sons immediately left their suite in the Drake hotel and departed for Coldwater. Mr. Bull's attorney, and a personal physician accompanied them.

According to Sheriff R. L. Green of Branch county and his deputy, George Miller, the accident appeared unavoidable. The Bull car was traveling up a hill at a high speed and struck the stalled truck.

NARCOTIC RAID A FIASCO.

The mystery of the detention by narcotic agents of Mr. Bull and Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley last Saturday simmered down yesterday to speculation as to the identity of those who took the federal sleuths on a snipe hunting expedition.

Following the secret inquisition in the Transportation building Friday night and Saturday morning, Assistant United States Attorney Daniel Anderson and the narcotic operatives admitted they had found no evidence to justify their suspicions of an illicit traffic. Mr. Anderson went so far yesterday as to declare:

"I am convinced that this whole thing was a blunder on the part of the government."

Who Inspired the Raid.

This suggested that some person or persons with a motive best known to themselves had inspired the raid on the gold coast apartments and the questioning of Mr. Bull and Mrs. Sidley, and a canvass of the various branches of the government disclosed that such was the case.

Mr. Bull, whose biographical sketch occupies 300 words in the British Who's Who, had been suspected of everything from hating babies to putting butter on his oatmeal, the private sleuths told the federal department heads. The immigration officials were asked to find out whether he, as a Canadian, had a good reason to be in this country. All this, of course, before the automobile accident of yesterday morning.

The income tax experts were solicited. Maybe Mr. Bull had not accounted to Uncle Sam for his reputedly enormous revenue. These departments dismissed the sleuths with tolerant amusement. But not so with the narcotic operatives.

In tapping the wires of Mr. Bull and Mrs. Sidley, the private investi-

LYLE DEMANDS MAYOR ANSWER FLOOD CHARGES

Issues Challenge on $139,000 Fund.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Following two days of unsuccessful efforts by lawyers to get at the evidence concerning the disposition of the $139,000 Mississippi flood relief fund in 1927, Judge Lyle yesterday challenged Mayor Thompson to devote one of his speeches to his handling of that money.

Judge Lyle again devoted most of his noon theater meeting speech to Capone and his allies, reciting court records of some of the gangsters still walking the streets. At other appearances, including a gathering of women that filled the ballroom in the Hotel La Salle, the judge discussed the plans he will press if he is elected mayor.

Then in the evening, having heard that the legal representatives of Thompson on their second day in court continued to fight for time in the flood fund suit, he dwelt emphatically on the failure of Thompson to present any defense.

Defendant Stands Mute.

"There are so many questions that Thompson should be called on to answer," Judge Lyle said, "that he wouldn't have time to meet them if he confined himself to answering from now until primary day.

"One of those questions is this: Why is he silent when he is accused of holding back more than $100,000 from the sufferers of the flooded areas of the Mississippi valley—holding it back for almost four years and then diverting it elsewhere to suit his own purposes?

"In the language of the courts, the defendant stands mute. He fails to say whether he is guilty or not guilty.

"The bill of complaint against Thompson was filed ten days ago. Both yesterday and today the matter was up for the taking of testimony. All that his attorneys did was to fight for time. Assistants to the corporation counsel battled to postpone the evidence so that the voters would not hear it before primary day.

A Hasty Answer.

"And all this time Thompson is silent in the face of charges that he raided a sacred trust fund, a charity collection taken up among people of small means and among the school children in dimes, nickels and pennies.

"He has been silent ever since; on the day the suit was filed he issued a hasty statement before he knew what evidence was disclosed by the bill of complaint.

"That statement was so full of misstatements that Thompson's lawyers and his friends probably told him to close his mouth, and he probably is acting on their advice now.

"He said the balance of the fund was $90,000, and also that it was $103,000. He said it was invested in bonds and also that it was in cash. He said he didn't touch it until after Jan. 13, and the records show that he withdrew it all between Dec. 18 and Jan. 8.

"It is no wonder he is silent. He will continue to be silent unless he is compelled by law to take the witness stand, which he is praying won't be until after Feb. 24."

Asks About Another Fund.

In mentioning Thompson's libel suit against him in this connection, the speaker said that there are now pending in the Cook county courts some eighteen such suits asking for a total of $5,000,000, some of them fourteen years old.

"He can warm up another lawyer," Judge Lyle said, "because I'm going to ask him about another fund of his. I want him to explain what became of his America First foundation and all the money it squeezed out of policemen, firemen, teachers, contractors, racketeers, gamblers, and slot machine operators?

"The America First foundation opened elaborate headquarters on Michigan avenue four years ago and a high pressure campaign was inaugurated to raise money. Thompson said they were going to hold citizenship classes and educate immigrants.

"Nobody except the promoters, Thompson and his pals, knows how much was collected through $10 memberships. The customers were told how many memberships they were to take and they took them and paid.

"We know no citizenship classes were held. We know the luxurious offices were closed. What became of the money?"

Recalls Thompson Speech.

Judge Lyle also went back in one of his speeches to the Thompson "speech of acceptance" in 1915 when he made his first appearance as a mayoralty candidate. He has been mayor twelve of the sixteen years since that time, the speaker said.

Extracts from that speech of 1915 which Judge Lyle read were as follows:

"One of the most serious problems that confront the mayor of Chicago is to break the alliance between politics and crime that now exists in the police department.

"Not one citizen of this city knows when he leaves his house to go to work in the morning whether or not he will be held up before he gets downtown or whether he will be sandbagged and beaten to death on his way home.

"Chicago has been made a safe harbor for criminals of every class.

Promises a Cleanup.

"I promise you if the citizens of this city elect me mayor I will clean out all faithless police officials in high places in the department and completely divorce that department from politics.

"I will have no friends among thieves and burglars. Nor will anybody connected with the police department be permitted to use his influence to protect that vicious element from prosecution.

"Surface cars are crowded to suffocation. They are uncomfortable for passengers. They become a menace to public health. The present laws are sufficient, if enforced, to remedy this evil and compel the street car companies to give their patrons sufficient passenger service. The mayor has power to enforce this requirement and when the law is enforced our people may ride in comfort upon the street cars."

Tells of Double-Cross.

Harry F. Hamlin, former Municipal judge, defeated in the Democratic landslide last November, although he was given the highest indorsement awarded by the Chicago Bar association, preceded Judge Lyle at the noon meeting in the Apollo theater and discussed the appearance of four city bench judges at a Thompson meeting.

"One of the principal reasons I was defeated," Hamlin said, "was because of the treachery and double-crossing of the Republican party by Thompson when he declared for a Democrat. Now he has been properly read out of the party by his old friend, George Harding. But Thompson didn't show much loyalty to his country during the war and of course you could not expect him to be loyal to the party that has conferred so many favors on him."

He referred to the pro-Thompson judges as "hypocrites."

Change Their Tunes.

"They were on the same ticket with Judge Lyle last fall," he said, "were talking from the same platform with him every night and were telling the voters what a wonderful judge he was.

"Judge Jonas said he was actuated by the cause of justice. Any one who knows Judge Jonas knows better. Like the others present, he heard his 'master's voice,' Old Man Thompson, and he had to do his part in an attempt to defame a man he knew to be absolutely honest.

"Judge Jonas is a product of the city hall machine, which is a highly efficient, commercialized political gang with Al Capone and Sam Insull lurking in the shadows with their ever ready checkbooks.

"Judge Lyle's actions on the bench have awakened some of our moss covered judges from their sound slumber. If we had more judges with a judicial temperament like Judge Lyle's we would have less crime.

"I wonder how much Insull has given to the city hall campaign fund to quiet Thompson.

"The Headless Horseman."

"In his dotage Thompson is now making himself ridiculous by attempting to entertain the public with an animal circus so they will forget his damnable public record. But he will find that when the people are angry they cannot be fooled.

"I don't want to be caustic but I believe this drugstore cowboy should be called Chicago's 'Headless Horseman.'"

Steve Sumner and other officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union occupied the platform with Judge Lyle, were introduced by him, and spoke briefly in favor of honest unionism free from racketeering.

WOMEN JURORS VOTE PRISON FOR AURORA ROBBER

Women jurors served yesterday in two Circuit court sessions in Kane county at Geneva. Five women were on a jury that found James Slaughter of Aurora guilty of robbery with a gun and fixed his punishment at 1 to 20 years in prison. It was the first criminal case in the county in which women have sat as jurors.

Eight women were on another jury which heard a suit brought by Mrs. Maude W. Peters of Chicago to set aside the will of her mother, Mrs. Maude E. Wells of Geneva. Mrs. Peters charged that her mother had not been competent to make the will and that her brother had used improper influence. By the terms of the will Mrs. Peters was left the income from her mother's $10,000 estate for life, the property to go to her brother's children at Mrs. Peters' death. She lost her case.

Not a woman offered as a juror was challenged in either court.

SEEK TO COMPEL THREE TO TESTIFY IN FLOOD SUIT

Delay in Action Against Mayor Is Seen.

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan will be asked this morning to order three witnesses to testify at the hearing into charges that Mayor Thompson improperly used funds contributed by school children and others in 1927 for the relief of Mississippi flood sufferers.

The witnesses, who refused to give any evidence at a preliminary hearing before Master in Chancery Harry Smitz on Monday, are Commissioner of Public Works Richard W. Wolfe, R. H. Holst, an employé in the city controller's office, and Grover D. Edwards, secretary and treasurer of the Congress hotel.

Only Edwards appeared at the preliminary hearing and he refused to answer questions which were intended to bring out substantiation of the charge that Thompson used the flood relief fund to pay for hotel bills of his "waterway congress" held last January in the Congress hotel. Wolfe and Holst, who had been subpoenaed, did not appear.

Demand Witnesses' Testimony.

Attorneys Frederic O. Mason and Edward R. Adams, representing Charles S. Smith, complainant in the suit against Thompson, will ask that the three witnesses be ordered to testify. The lawyers said they are ready to ask that Wolfe and the two others be made to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt of court if they continue to refuse to testify.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom will be represented at the hearing today by an assistant. Mr. Carlstrom, who by the nature of his office is entrusted with the supervision of all charity funds, said he was interested in the charges and intended to delve into the entire matter of the alleged diversion of funds for purposes other than the relief of flood victims.

Charges Against Thompson.

The suit charges that Thompson has failed to disburse $103,855 of the $139,772 originally contributed three years ago and that he has recently diverted large sums from this $103,855 remainder for political purposes.

Attorneys for the complainant charged at the hearing before the master in chancery that an effort was being made to delay hearing of the charges until after the primary election next Tuesday. Because of the refusal of the witnesses to testify and the necessary technical steps now to be taken before contempt proceedings can be instituted a hearing of the charges before Tuesday is not probable, it was said.

ALBERT TELLS WOMEN GRAFT IS REAL ISSUE

He and Schmidt Seek Feminine Vote.

Feminine votes were the objectives of both Ald. Arthur F. Albert and George K. Schmidt yesterday as they entered the final week of the campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor.

Albert made his appeal to the women at a massmeeting sponsored by the South Shore League of Women Voters last night at 7000 Jeffery avenue, urging them to purge Chicago of Thompsonism for the sake of their homes and children. The Schmidt camp broadcast a statement by Mrs. William Severin, founder president of the Illinois Women's Athletic club and past president of the Illinois Women's Republican league.

Claims Albert Is Gaining.

"It is manifest that Albert is gaining," said a statement by Roy O. West, the campaign manager. "He has honest support in every precinct. He has a consistent and known public and political record. His personal habits have been wholesome. He can win if those who belive him to be the best candidate will vote for him."

Speaking before the women voters, Ald. Albert attacked both Thompson and Judge Lyle, declaring that the nomination of either would perpetuate "the political oligarchy which has misruled Chicago for the last decade."

"Thompson recently announced that he is unable to cope with the crime situation in Chicago," said Albert. "That was before he discovered that Chicago is number sixty-eight in a recent list of American cities, arranged according to crime. Then he bragged about how clean he has kept Chicago.

Holds Issue Is Taxes.

"My other opponent offers, single handed and alone, to abolish all crime if he is elected mayor. He promised the same thing last fall when he was seeking reëlection as a judge. If these promises were genuine, why did he not keep that post and make good on those promises before offering Chicago a new set? Crime is not the real issue in this campaign.

"The real issue is the mounting tax rate. Already there are 332,000 pieces of real estate on which Chicago people could not pay the last tax bills. Those are being sold for taxes now. I shudder to think how many hundreds of thousands of pieces of property will be offered for sale for taxes before the end of this year. This tax bill is the direct result of the mismanagement, graft, and inefficiency which has marked the city administration under Thompson."

Says Women Hold Power.

Mrs. Severin asserted in her statement indorsing Schmidt that women hold the whip hand in the primary as nearly a half million are registered. If one-half that number go to the polls and vote for Schmidt, she said, "Thompsonism will be ended forever and we will be certain that the next mayor will be an honorable gentleman with the exact special knowledge and training required in an ideal municipal executive."

Schmidt continued his handshaking campaign at industrial plants yesterday. Last night in a radio speech he insisted that he is the only candidate upon whom the Republicans can unite.

M. V. L. LISTS ITS PREFERENCES IN ALDERMAN RACE

Attacks Thompson Rule, Asks Election Changes.

The Municipal Voters' league yesterday made public the first part of its recommendations for the election of aldermen next Tuesday and issued an accompanying statement in which Mayor Thompson was blamed for four years of misrule "the like of which has seldom been experienced by any great city in this country."

"With few outstanding exceptions," the league said, "the city council has been weak and incompetent and the lack of leadership has been made more perilous because the mayor, through frequent and prolonged absences from the city and through almost total inattention to his duties, has abdicated his executive functions. With no responsible leadership at the helm, the affairs of the city have been allowed to drift into a sea of complications."

Assails Thompson Régime.

Deploring the fact that Thompson is a candidate for renomination, the league raid that, whatever may be the outcome of the mayoralty election, the city could insure itself against repetition of these evils by the election of a majority of capable and independent men to the city council.

The league assailed the Thompson administration by asserting that a council governed city would not have permitted expenditures to have outstripped the income, "nor have countenanced, in the face of a tax crisis and retrenchment in business generally, the city's spending at a level which would be tolerable only in an era of great prosperity and expansion."

"Because of tax burdens due to this profligacy," the league said, "the citizens of the metropolitan region have at last become awakened to the need of consolidating the maze of overlapping and conflicting governing bodies which now render economical and responsible government an impossibility. The thorough working out of such a program requires in the council men of intelligence, vision and complete freedom from selfish political alliances.

Urges Election Changes.

"The league has at all times been concerned with the election of the best possible men to the council. Under present conditions, however, it is well nigh impossible for men of real ability but modest means to become candidates for aldermanic office. In the judgment of the league a number of important changes should be made in the method of electing aldermen."

Among the changes suggested by the league are the following:

Reduce the number of wards and redistrict the council.

Elect aldermen for a four year term instead of two, and in order to fortify the nonpartisan principle, aldermanic elections should be held two years after the mayoralty election.

Enact a corrupt practices act to limit the amount which a candidate for alderman may expend.

Require a cash deposit to accompany aldermanic nominations, the deposit to be forfeited if the candidate does not poll at least 10 per cent of the vote cast in his ward.

Change the election laws so that the arbitrary acts of the board of election commissioners may be reviewed by the courts and allow enough time for candidates to seek recourse from the election board.

Recommendations for Aldermen.

The list of recommendations for the election of aldermen made by the league yesterday includes only the first 15 wards. The league's recommendations for the remainder of the wards will be made public later this week. The following are the league's recommendations in the first 15 wards:

First ward—No contest.
Third ward—George T. Kersey preferred
Fourth ward—William G. Agar indorsed.
Fifth ward—Ald. Charles Scribner Eaton indorsed.
Sixth ward—Ald. Guy Guernsey indorsed.
Seventh ward—Ald. Clement A. Nance indorsed.
Eighth ward—No choice expressed between Eugene J. Mooney and David L. Sutton, who are recommended from among 13 candidates.
Ninth ward—No contest.
Tenth ward—Ald. William A. Rowan indorsed.
Eleventh ward—Ald. John P. Wilson preferred.
Twelfth ward—Bryan Harinett indorsed.
Thirteenth ward — Thomas A. Doyle indorsed.
Fourteenth ward—No recommendation.
Fifteenth ward — James F. Kovarik indorsed.

The complete report on all the candidates for alderman, as contained in the league's announcement, will be published in full in the Metropolitan sections of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

LYLE'S RECORD A VIVID STORY OF CRIME WAR

Battles Capone Political Power in City.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Throughout his stormy career on the Felony court bench Judge John H. Lyle lost no opportunity to attack, by word and such legal power as he had, the Capone subterranean power in Chicago.

He issued vagrancy warrants and pleaded with the police to bring in Al Capone himself, as well as all his henchmen. He raked them with hard words and defied them. They were "cowards," "yellow dogs" and "reptiles" to him.

"What! Courtesy to a Capone!" he exclaimed, when attorneys for Ralph Capone sought to have the gang chief's brother put in the custody of a bailiff instead of being handled in the ordinary manner.

"Like Any Common Criminal."

"Courtesy to a Capone! To a man who with his brothers is the head of a gang of criminals the like of which the world has never known? He'll be handled like any common criminal."

And so the second in command in the Capone organization was sent to the bureau of identification by Judge Lyle, and there he was fingerprinted, photographed, questioned and "pushed around" as he had never been before.

"Cut out the bunk," Capone told the police, but he asked a change of venue from Judge Lyle's court on the ground that the judge was prejudiced against him. Judge Lyle admitted this and granted the motion. Capone was released on bonds of $10,000 and found other troubles awaiting him in a three years prison sentence imposed by the federal court for income tax evasion.

Al Refused Special Treatment.

Three weeks after he had issued his vagrancy warrants against the first of the "public enemies" named by the Chicago crime commission, Judge Lyle announced that he had had a midnight visit from a representative of Al Capone, and that the gang chief had offered to come into court if the judge would send a bailiff to guard him.

"I sent him word," Judge Lyle said, "that if he wished to surrender he must appear at the detective bureau, go through the usual channels and be brought into my court to answer the charges against him."

The two Guziks, Harry and Jack, were brought before him. They are Capone men who had enjoyed strange immunity from police interference. Harry Guzik was convicted as a pander, but was pardoned by Gov. Small. They now appeared in this dingy little police court on charges which seemed to them of little consequence.

"Your very appearance in the courts which you have hitherto scorned is significant," said Lyle to the swarthy aggrieved brothers as they stood before him.

Sees Victory for Citizens.

"It indicates a surrender to the three millions of people who have lived in mortal terror of you and your associates.

"You, Harry Guzik, are a big, fat healthy man, and you've never done a day of work. I hear that you have lived off prostitution all your life.

"I don't get a kick out of punishing people, but I do relish the opportunity of being a judge when such men as you two, living off vice and crime, fattening on blood money, are brought before me.

"The worst of it is that both of you are smart. Capone has to have such men around him in order to succeed."

The Guziks' plea for a change of venue was granted after this little speech, and the judge took the opportunity to give his opinion of criminal lawyers.

"I am inclined to think that when the public enemies have been driven out of town the public will start to work on criminal lawyers," he said. "Nowadays most of the lawyers representing gangsters are fixers, schemers, evaders of the law and constitution."

Predicts End of Gangdom.

Parting with the Guziks, one of whom is under federal penitentiary sentence now, Judge Lyle remarked:

"Many murders have been laid at the door of you and your chief. This vagrancy charge sinks into insignificance in comparison with the host of other charges against you. Even if some jury lacking guts should turn you loose, it would make little difference to the movement.

"You Capone men are through. The public has been callous to the activities of the gangsters. It had almost given up hope. But now, with the aid of the press, this movement has been started. It has grown to mammoth proportions. It has been termed a 'howling mob.' Very well. No public official, even a judge on the bench, can get in the way of this howling mob. It is remarkable that it has not howled before."

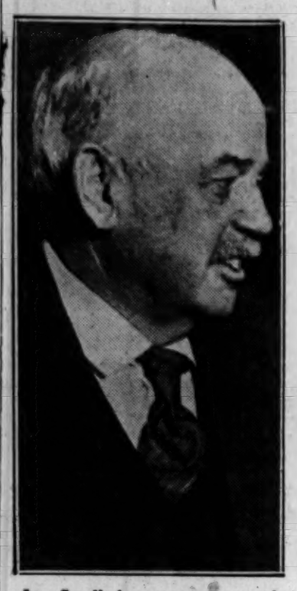
Finds Capone Political Force.

In December, while the police still failed to find Al Capone, Judge Lyle told the Chicago safety council:

"We will send Capone to the chair if it is possible to do so. He deserves to die. Capone has become almost a mythical being in Chicago. He is not a myth but a reptile. He is more than a concentrated crime wave. He is a real and powerful political force. He sent one of his men to the legislature at the last election when a Democrat was crowded from the field. He has one mouthpiece in congress and another in the city council. Capone has no right to live. He must go both as a criminal force and a political force.

"The city has a right to protection against gangsters and racketeers. A chief of police who is given a free hand will put the gangsters on the run. We have 98 judges, 750 bailiffs and clerks, 650 deputies and 5,000 policemen. The trouble is not in the law but in the machinery and in the men who make the machinery work, and I think that if we wanted to we could stamp out a couple of gangs such as are headed by Al Capone and Bugs Moran."

ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL



Len Small, former governor, who spoke yesterday for William Hale Thompson and who pardoned Harry Guzik when brother of Capone's chief lieutenant was convicted as pander.

Harry Guzik, elder brother of Jack Guzik, principal lieutenant of Al Capone. Harry was pardoned by Len Small when Small was governor and after Harry had been convicted as a pander. He is supporting Thompson for mayor, but his younger brother has become of more consequence in gangland than he is at the present time.

11 HURT WHEN CHICAGO-OMAHA BUS IS UPSET

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Eleven persons were injured, three seriously, when a Chicago to Omaha bus of the Interstate Traffic lines skidded on a muddy pavement seventeen miles east of here on the Lincoln highway this morning, crashed through a fence and turned over in a field.

The injured were brought to hospitals here.

Those requiring medical treatment were Mrs. Patricia Tighe, Waukegan, Ill.; William H. Kruner, Omaha, and George H. Baum, Seattle.

Chicagoans Crash Victims.

Jonesville, Mich., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Three Chicagoans were injured, all seriously, when a sedan driven by Carl F. Mohr, 29, crashed into a truck eight miles west of here todr Mohr received a broken leg and possible skull fracture. The others injured were W. Ball, 65, broken hip and possible skull fracture, and B. McGruden, 3', of 801 Lake street, injured hip.

OPEN VERICT IN BAUR DEATH.

An open verdict was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Adelbert C. Baur, 32 years old, head of A. C. Baur & Co., brokerage house at 120 South La Salle street, who was found shot in his apartment at 180 East Delaware place on Jan. 18.

Political Notes

Union printers and engravers last night began an investigation of the emblems purporting to be union labels on the 16 page Thompsonism rotogravure booklet said to have been mailed to 1,000,000 voters. The alleged labels of both unions were minus the shop numbers required by the union rules. The word "Chicago" was missing from the label of the Allied Printing Trades council. Some copies bore the name of a printing house not listed in recent union booklets as licensed printers.

Judge Lyle will speak over the radio three times this evening—over WCFL at 7 o'clock, over WIBO at 7:45, and over WHBM at 8 o'clock. President Cermak will be on WENR at 10:15.

Arriving at the Apollo theater for his noon meeting yesterday, Judge Lyle received a telegram that he read to his audience. "Terry Druggan told me he gave $10,000 to the Thompson campaign of February, 1927," read the message, which was signed with a name the candidate declined "for obvious reasons" to disclose.

The Railway Employés' Nonpartisan league of Illinois has indorsed Judge Lyle.

Thompson's former 25 cent show at the Cort theater, consisting chiefly of Thompson talkies, now is free to all comers. It failed to draw attendance when a fee was charged.

A conference at which the office group form of political ballots will be discussed by representatives of several civic groups will be held today at 2 o'clock at the Woman's City club, 6 North Michigan avenue. The conference has been called by the committee on revision of the election laws of Illinois, the Women's Joint Legislative forum, the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Illinois League of Women Voters, the Woman's City club, and the Chicago Woman's club.

Led by Chief Investigator Pat Roche, detectives from the state's attorney's office raided a studio apartment at 747 Cass street late last night, seized an electrically controlled roulette wheel, and arrested two men. The gambling den was believed to have been established for the attraction of a gold coast clientele.

The men arrested are Gene Schreiber and Frank King, both of whom live in the apartment. A third man who identified himself as a private investigator, was held when he appeared at the place shortly after the raid.

According to police thin electric wires attached to the wheel and to batteries concealed in a table drawer permitted manipulation of the device so that any certain number on which a heavy wager was laid could be eliminated as a winning numeral.

BRUNDAGE TELLS HOW SMALL FREED GUZIK PANDERS

Pardoned Before Going to Jail for Crime.

Harry and Alma Guzik, panders and white slavers, were projected into the mayoralty campaign yesterday by the arrival of their benefactor, Len Small, who spoke in behalf of his old pal, Thompson.

Former Attorney General Edward J. Brundage yesterday recalled the story of how Small pardoned the Guziks after they were convicted of pandering.

Judge Lyle charges that Al Capone is backing Thompson, and the Capones and Guzik are known associates in vice.

Brundage Tells of Fight.

"I recall fighting the governor very strenuously on the pardon of Harry and Alma Guzik," Mr. Brundage said. "It was an outrageous action. The facts were these:

"In October, 1921, Minnie Oehlerking came to Chicago from her country home near Monee. She was seeking a job at housework when Harry Guzik encountered her and took her to the Roamer inn, which he was operating at Posen. Her clothes were taken from her and she was compelled to entertain men. When her father found her she had in her possession 131 checks, on which she was to receive $1 for each.

"Harry Guzik and his wife, Alma, were prosecuted. A jury found them guilty and their punishment was fixed at one year in the House of Correction and fines of $1,000 each. They appealed. While their appeal was pending Gov. Small pardoned them.

Pair Never in Jail.

"I entered the case and tried to have the pardon declared void on the ground the governor had no jurisdiction to grant a pardon while a case was pending on appeal. Small's contention that no court had the right to set aside the action of the executive branch of the state was upheld.

"The Guziks were never in jail. They had not served one day of the term imposed upon them by twelve fair minded men nor had they paid their fines. Immediately after they were freed they opened a new house of ill-fame in the county."

The Juvenile Protective association investigated the Guzik pardon and found that there was not one ameliorating circumstance. There was no question of their guilt, there was no question but that the young girl had undergone terrifying experiences at the hands of Harry and Alma.

FIREWORKS MAKE CHINATOWN NEW YEAR CEREMONY

Chinatown is celebrating its New Year with firecrackers, family gatherings, and sumptuous feasts.

The beginning of the Chinese year might have escaped unnoticed, so far as most Chicagoans were concerned, except for the enterprise of Sam Chow, a laundryman, on Monday night. Sam, loaded with fireworks, began touching them off in the vicinity of Howard street and Rogers Park avenue.

Immediately police were swamped with telephone calls from alarmed Rogers Parkers, who, remembering the recent Howard street machine gunning, mistook Sam's pyrotechnic demonstration for another gangster fight. Police squads found Sam calmly preparing to ignite another package of firecrackers. He explained he was celebrating New Year's.

Woman Starts Suit Against Ald. Kaindl; Asks $50,000

Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th] was made defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages filed yesterday in the Superior court by Mrs. Stella La Velle, 1351 Washtenaw avenue. Attorney Herman I. Weiss, who filed the praecipe of the suit, said it is for false arrest and malicious prosecution. Mrs. La Velle, the attorney said, was taken into custody a year ago for a sanity hearing after her husband, Peter, had filed a complaint at the request of the alderman. La Velle is an employé of the sanitary district and a precinct worker in Ald. Kaindl's ward.

SMALL LENDS HIS VOICE TO THE CITY HALL

Defeated Governor Joins Thompson Campaign.

Len Small, who was defeated for reelection as governor in 1928 by Louis L. Emmerson, appeared on the platform with Mayor Thompson yesterday noon at the Garrick theater. He was introduced to the audience and spoke briefly in favor of Thompson's nomination.

It was the first time that Small and Thompson have been seen together in public in Chicago since Small's defeat. Small's presence lent strength to reports that he wants to run for governor again. He visited Thompson at Wedron, Ill., a few months ago, after which Thompson praised Small's record as governor.

Sullivan Also Speaks.

Thomas V. Sullivan, a Minneapolis lawyer who has been made attorney for the school board at $12,000 a year by Thompson, was another speaker yesterday. Sullivan appeared in the Thompson following in 1927, about the time Thompson was denouncing nonresidents brought here for political offices, and was given a job as special attorney for the school board at $10,000 a year. Recently he was given the $12,000 job.

Thompson in his speech gave a clew as to his reasons for attacking King George and the English in his campaigns. He said the English who come here do not become naturalized and, since they cannot vote, are unable to harm him at elections.

Innuendo Attacks Resumed.

Thompson also returned to his attacks by innuendo on Judge Lyle, and the same method of attack was used by Sullivan.

Continuing his use of the police for political purposes, Thompson had reprints of newspaper editorials and crime statistics sent to each member of the force. In an order Acting Police Commissioner Alcock informed the captains that two copies of the editorials and the statistics are to be given to each man.

Last Saturday policemen were sent to the city hall to get reprints of newspaper stories for distribution at the police stations.

WOMEN BESIEGE LYLE IN RUSH TO SHAKE HIS HAND

Candidate Is Cheered by Hundreds at Tea.

For 30 minutes yesterday afternoon Judge John H. Lyle was besieged by more than 1,500 women who, after hearing him speak at a tea in the Hotel La Salle, surged around him in an effort to shake his hand.

After the worst of the good-natured jostling was over, a smashed-in derby hat and a trampled white silk muffler were returned to the judge, and women's gloves, water pitchers, tables, chairs and other things which had been lost or capsized, were returned to their proper places.

A hubbub of feminine voices assailed the mayoralty candidate's ears.

"Just want to tell you we're going to carry the Eighth ward!" shouted one woman who was wedged in the swaying crowd and could not get closer to Judge Lyle.

"Thompson's licked already!" a gray-haired woman cried out.

"I'm from the Second, and I'm for you and going strong!" a Negro woman told the judge.

"Just reach over this way, won't you, Judge Lyle? I can't get to you but I want to shake your hand," another voice cried.

Crowd Room to Overflowing.

At 3:30 o'clock, the hour set for the tea by the women's division of the Lyle campaign headquarters, the guests were arriving as fast as elevators could carry them up to the ballroom on the 19th floor of the hotel, and the hostesses were hustling back and forth with extra chairs. Fifteen minutes later the ballroom was filled and the crowd was overflowing into the hall.

The throng cheered and clapped as Judge Lyle entered, and when Dr. John Dill Robertson spoke of him as "the next mayor of Chicago," there were more cheers—ladylike but definite cheers. When B. W. Snow, Cook county chairman of the Republican party, said that women were the best judges possible of the issues in the campaign, the guests smiled agreement.

Jane Lyle Arrives.

Then Miss Jane Lyle, 16 year old daughter of Judge Lyle, entered. She was late because she couldn't come until school was out. She is a student in the University High school.

The women's gazes were answered with a frank smile, and Jane, dressed in a black off the face spring hat trimmed with white gardenias, a black wool lace dress, and black shoes and stockings, stepped to the platform and took her place beside her father.

When Judge Lyle first faced the semi-circle of women he appeared a little abashed. Looking around, however, he spotted an old friend.

"I've just seen somebody I know and it makes me feel better," he said.

Judge Starts His Speech.

After that he began his speech. His manner of addressing the women was no different from that of addressing the usual audience. He assumed they were interested in ridding the city of criminals and their political allies, else they would not be there.

At the conclusion of his talk he introduced "the sum total" of his family, Jane. He then spoke again of the old friend he had seen from the platform and said that he had rented rooms from her years ago.

Later reporters asked him to find her. He was able to point her out, then was swept away by the crowd. She is Mrs. Lorene Myrtle Knapp, 2408 Warren boulevard.

"In 1911 John Lyle came to my home with his little bride, Mildred Townsend she was," Mrs. Knapp said. "It was the afternoon of their wedding day, and they were hunting rooms. We were living in a place at Wentworth avenue and Marquette road then. They stayed with us a year, until they were able to get a little home.

"He was practicing law then. I still have the looking glass he made his first speech before, and the table he studied on. He's just the same man now as he was then."

Thompson Is Transit Tool of Insull, Ickes Declares

BY HAROLD L. ICKES.

(An attorney and one of the leading opponents of the transit franchise ordinance who in the subjoined article replies to Thompson's campaign claim that he settled the transportation problem.)

Mayor Thompson claims that he settled the traction question. He gives this as one of the reasons why the people of Chicago should reelect him mayor.

Thompson is in error. He did not settle the traction question. Samuel Insull's ex-lawyer, Samuel Ettelson, settled the traction question. And they settled it upon the already overburdened backs of the taxpayers and street car riders of Chicago. They settled it in such a way that for all time to come citizens of Chicago, without hope of relief from the intolerable burden thrust upon them, will be paying tribute to Samuel Insull and his associates, their heirs and assigns.

In his earlier administrations Thompson had denounced the "traction barons" in unmeasured terms. He declared himself unalterably in favor of a 5 cent fare. He became apoplectic when anything longer than a short term franchise for the traction interests was mentioned. He declared that the traction fund was a sacred trust that belonged to the car riders.

The Past Is Forgotten.

But during the negotiations prior to the adoption of the present ordinance Thompson's eloquence deserted him. Apparently he wanted the people of Chicago to forget, as he himself was willing to do, his boasts of what he would do to the traction interests.

When he assumed office four years ago Thompson reappointed as corporation counsel Samuel Ettelson, the personal and political attorney of Insull. It has been charged that this appointment was consideration earned for the replenishing of the Thompson campaign fund coffers four years ago by the traction interests.

Samuel Insull has never denied that he contributed generously to the Thompson fund four years ago and that he supported Thompson with all his great political strength. Whether he did so or not William E. Dever, the best mayor Chicago has had in this generation, went to his grave in the firm belief, expressed on more than one occasion to his personal friends, that he owed his defeat four years ago to Samuel Insull.

Assails the Negotiations.

It must be said to the credit of Thompson that upon assuming office again he lost no time in giving Mr. Insull all that he wanted. In the traction negotiations, many of them held behind the locked doors of Walter L. Fisher's private law office, the public was not represented by counsel.

No lawyers participated in those negotiations except those directly or indirectly appointed by Mr. Insull. And the result was logical. The Insull interests emerged from the negotiations with everything they wanted. The public had only a barrel to cover its nakedness.

Mr. Insull was given a perpetual franchise upon an inadequate return. The franchise cannot be terminated even for misuse, nonuse, or maluse. In other words, the traction interests can do what they please, when they please, without the people having any legal right to call them to account. They can do anything or nothing.

"Transit Fund Handed Over."

Thompson generously handed to the Insull interests the $61,225,000 in the traction fund. This money had been squeezed penny by penny out of the car riders of Chicago. Yet this enormous sum is to go towards building a subway which the traction companies are to have the use of rent free.

Under the ordinance the traction companies are entitled to rent the nontransportation facilities of the subway and put these rents into their own pockets. The car riders and property owners are to pay for the subway, but the traction companies are to collect generous rents from it.

The valuation of $360,442,063 placed upon the traction properties is as full of water as a dripping sponge. This valuation includes large sums spent by Mr. Yerkes for horses and mules long since deceased. It perpetuates forever the value of car barns that have been junked for a generation. It embodies the cost of old rails and street cars long ago relegated to the junk pile. Yet on all of this aqueous valuation the car riders of Chicago for all time to come will be required to pay a return to the traction interests of from 7½ to 8 per cent.

Profits from the Stock.

The Commonwealth Edison company, owned by the Insull interests, at the time the traction ordinance went through was reputed to own approximately 130,000 shares of the common stock of the Chicago Rapid Transit company. Their political and other hangerson undoubtedly own many additional thousands of shares of stock in this and other traction companies.

Thanks to the generous terms of the present ordinance Mr. Insull, his companies and his associates, according to estimates made, stand to profit at the expense of the car riders of Chicago to the tune of upward of $30,000,000.

The Insull-Thompson ordinance provides that Mr. Insull need build no extensions to the elevated lines until the downtown subway shall have been built. Despite promises of the traction interests and their proponents while the ordinance was pending the building of this subway is still in the far distant future.

No Automatic Amortization.

The ordinance failed to provide for automatic amortization so that there is no compulsion on the traction interests ever to reduce the enormous capitalization.

Under the ordinance the traction companies may engage in the trucking business, may carry garbage, may bury our dead and may run a taxicab service.

No traction company in any city in the world has ever been given the privileges and powers that have been granted under the Insull-Thompson ordinance. And these privileges and powers are without check or safeguard in the public interest.

The same lawyers who during the negotiations represented Mr. Insull are still representing him or the city. Some of them have changed their titles and moved to different seats in the conference room, but they are the same gentlemen who have been so avid to anticipate the slightest wish of Samuel Insull.

Recalls Insull Statement.

In a statement in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on July 2 last Mr. Insull claimed that the result of the referendum the preceding day on the traction ordinance was a vote of confidence in himself. Here was the voice of the master. He did not even mention Thompson.

Mr. Insull knows who settled the traction question. He gave to the city Thompson and Ettelson to help settle the traction question. He hired the lawyers, directly or indirectly, who worked with Thompson and Ettelson to settle the traction question. He furnished the money to the Thompson political machine which, at the orders of Thompson and Ettelson, helped to settle the traction question.

It may not have been discreet of Mr. Insull to claim on July 2 that the result of the referendum was a vote of confidence in himself, but no one can dispute the accuracy of his vaunt. He could well afford to push his political minions and his hired men temporarily into the wings while he strutted to the center of the stage and for one brief moment triumphantly exhibited himself in the spotlight.

WOMEN APPLAUD CERMAK; DECLARE THOMPSON UNFIT

When the women's organization of the Democratic party reserved 1,000 luncheons for the "Cermak for Mayor" rally yesterday at the Hotel Sherman, they didn't bargain for the avalanche of 1,300 or more women who swarmed into the crystal ballroom, pushed into three adjoining banquet halls, and overflowed to dining rooms on floors above and below.

The women were enthusiastic in their reception of Anton J. Cermak, Democratic mayoralty candidate, who spoke of his record and his platform. Mr. Cermak was preceded on the program by women leaders who denounced the present city administration.

Appeals for a Fit Mayor.

After referring to "the Democratic year that is before us," which brought a thunder of applause, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, president of the Illinois Woman's Democratic club, Cook county branch, introduced the toastmistress, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, a member of the board of education.

"Women who believe in decency and decorum in political affairs will refuse to take lightly the great issue before us now, and will elect a fit mayor," Mrs. Hefferan began. This statement was also greeted by a roll of applause and her next sentence with laughter. She said: "We must cease looking through a glass darkly at one who plays with camels, horses, donkeys and their first cousins."

"On the eve of the primary election," Mrs. Hefferan went on, "women interested in the arts, churches, and all the fine things in this city of ours, realize as never before how misgoverned we are. Women want new leadership in which we have confidence."

"Thompson Is Unfitted."

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, the next speaker, talking from the standpoint of a trustee of the World's Fair of 1933, said:

"If Thompson is elected again, it will not only condemn the city but degrade everything we care about. He is unfitted as the mayor of the World's Fair. If he is elected he will succeed in defeating for Chicago the great good which we hope will come from the World's Fair.

The fair will make Chicago the greatest city in the land. We must elect Mr. Cermak mayor.

"The women will be of greater use to Chicago than ever before if they elect Mr. Cermak."

Grandchildren Speak for Cermak.

Before Mr. Cermak was introduced his granddaughters, Vivian Graham, 11 years old, who told, as she put it, "a little girl's version of the race for mayor," and Mary Ella Jirka, 5 years old, who piped up: "Good afternoon, everybody. Please vote for my granddad."

"I wanted to do the same thing in the city hall that I did in the county building," Mr. Cermak said in his brief address. "I want a committee of outstanding business men to make a survey so we may eliminate waste and extravagance, put the city on a business basis, and save millions of dollars for the taxpayer. I want to take the public schools out of politics, and establish a civil service commission that will better the police department."

Mr. Cermak dwelt on his charitable activities as president of the county board, calling attention to the dental clinic established at the County hospital during his administration, the extension of nursing service to country towns, the placing of dependent children in private homes, the children's addition to the County hospital, and the increase in the mothers' pension fund from $600,000 to $1,100,000.

W. PERKINS BULL HURT IN CRASH ON MYSTERY TRIP

Auto Hits Truck on Michigan Hill.

gators had detected a sinister sounding code. They reported this, and Roy Darling, ace narcotic operative from Washington, was called in. "It can't be anything but dope," was Mr. Darling's diagnosis.

Mrs. Sidley, meanwhile, had become annoyed by the constant tapping of the phone wires to her apartment and complained to the telephone company. The tap was traced and the tappers found to be narcotic agents. Then they had to act. This was last Friday, and they learned that Mrs. Sidley was coming in that night from Racine, the home of her father, William H. Horlick, of Horlick Milk fame.

Code Mystery Dispelled.

The narcotic agents "arrested" Mr. Bull in the Drake hotel and Mrs. Sidley in the Lake Shore Drive hotel and took them to the Transportation building, headquarters of the narcotic forces. The hopes of the investigators leaped when they found Mrs. Sidley with an overnight bag and they took this along. But when they opened it they found it contained nothing a lady should not have.

The code also lost much of its sinister aspect when it was explained to the satisfaction of the inquisitors that it was to thwart sleuths supposedly employed by Dr. John Streeter Sidley, whom Mrs. Sidley is suing for divorce. Mr. Bull has been acting as attorney for Mrs. Sidley and he explained that they employed the code to discuss legal matters.

The motive of those who desired the harrassment of Mr. Bull is still an active mystery. He is a wealthy lawyer of Toronto and London, cattle-farmer, land owner, traveler and lecturer, founder of the Perkins Bull hospital at Putney Heath during the world war, and he naturally moves in society.

Mr. Bull has a large family and at least two of his sons have been socially popular in Chicago, accepted in some of the city's leading families. There have been rumors of their prospective engagement to debutante daughters of one or more of these families. Whether friends of the young women had anything to do with the harrassment of Mr. Bull is a matter that the federal authorities would only speculate about.

Mr. Bull and Mrs. Sidley were expected to appear today before Master in Chancery James P. Harold, who is to hear Dr. Sidley's petition for an injunction restraining Mr. Bull from having him shadowed. Dr. Sidley also is suing Mr. Bull and J. J. Harrison, head of a secret service agency, for $250,000.

NAB 2 POLICEMEN IN JURY INQUIRY; GRAFT CHARGED

Gamblers Tell of Paying Protection Bribes.

Two policemen, who compose the vice and gambling squad of the Englewood station district, were taken into custody late yesterday afternoon on orders of the special grand jury investigating alleged corruption in the police department. They will be called before the jury today to explain charges made against them by bookmakers in the Englewood district, who said they paid money for protection so that they could operate handbooks unmolested by the police.

Sergt. Joseph Ferry and Policeman Fred Kelly are the men under arrest. Capt. Michael W. Lee, who commands the Englewood station, was called to the office of Assistant state's Attorney's Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury to explain the accusations against the two men, who, the grand jurors said, are known as "front office men."

Captain Surprised, He Says.

"I am surprised," Capt. Lee was reported as having told the prosecutors "I thought the men were honest and trustworthy. It was reported to me that my district was clean of gambling and vice."

Prosecutor Mueller, who has charge of the grand jury investigation, indicated that Capt. Lee later will be given a chance to tell his story to the grand jury.

Joseph Drell, owner of a cigar store at 6559 South Halsted street, was the chief witness before the jury yesterday. He, it is reported, identified the two policemen, who had been summoned to the grand jury room for that purpose. After the identification the policemen were taken away in the custody of two uniformed men.

Other Gamblers Heard.

Several other gamblers were also before the jury yesterday, and, it is reported, corroborated the story of Drell that it was necessary to make monthly contributions to the police. Drell said that he has been operating for nearly two years and that at the beginning he paid the two policemen $50 per month protection and that later the price was raised to $150 per month.

David E. Cohn, owner of a cigar store at 5603 South Halsted street, however, refused to name any policemen. He had been threatened with contempt of court proceedings, but stood his ground after conferring with Attorneys Charles Dougherty and Samuel Hoffman. They were prepared, they said, to file a writ of habeas corpus and test out the legality of the special jury if necessary. Cohn was released.

Ask Policeman's Suspension.

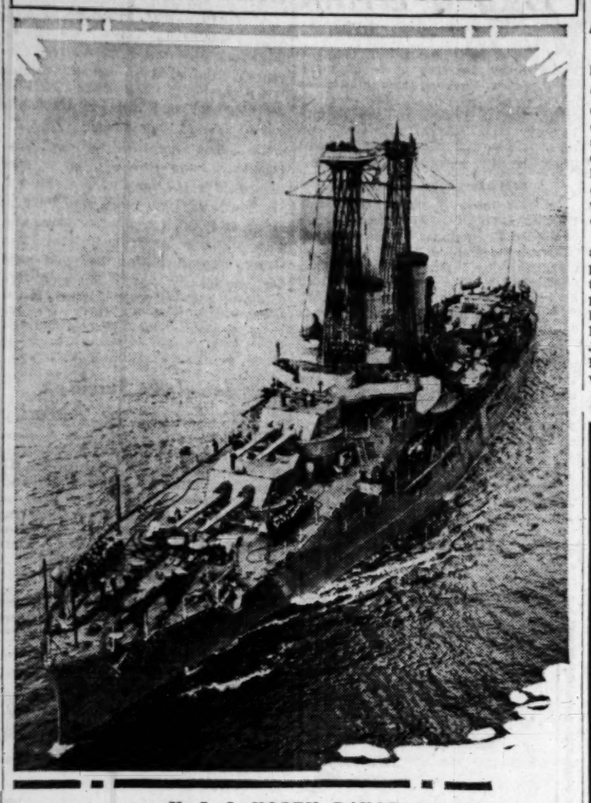
Policeman James J. Best of the Wabash avenue station, who lives at 5531 South Fairfield avenue, was ordered suspended yesterday by the grand jurors.

It was charged before the jury that Policeman Best raided a policy wheel operated by Vernon Lightfoot, 4603 South State street, on Nov. 8. He then made a deal with Lightfoot, it is charged, to return the wheel and other gambling apparatus obtained for $40. When the case was disposed of in court the policeman took the wheel back to Lightfoot and it was put in operation again, it is alleged.

Capt. Michael Hughes, who, when commissioner of police, issued the suspension order which ultimately resulted in the removal from the department of Capts. Dennis J. Carroll and Daniel Murphy, took the responsibility for the proceedings. He told the jury that he acted on his own initiative and not on orders from any one else.

Both captains were ousted immediately after Thompson was elected four years ago. It was announced at that time that the captains were suspended because they "played politics." Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, was another witness yesterday. He, however, was not a member of the commission when the captains were ousted.

BATTLESHIP FOR SALE



U. S. S. NORTH DAKOTA.

BIDS ASKED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—To meet provisions of the London naval treaty, the navy department today offered for sale the 21 year old battleship North Dakota on a cash basis or by the installment plan.

The vessel will be sold on an "as is, where is" basis, the successful bidder to take delivery and within 30 days, at his own expense, remove it from the Norfolk, Va., navy yard, where the ship has been out of commission since 1923. Bids will be opened at the department on March 10.

ORDER CITY HALL WORKERS TO SELL $25,000 TICKETS

Jewish employés at the city hall yesterday were seeking to dispose of from 10 to 40 tickets each to a banquet for Mayor Thompson to be given tonight in the Aragon ballroom, Lawrence avenue and Broadway.

Approximately 5,000 tickets at $5 each were distributed among the noncivil service Jewish city jobholders under the direction of Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Golan. The employés were ordered to either sell the tickets or pay for them. Word went out that none of the tickets could be returned.

At the city hall the Thompson banquet ticket distribution recalled the so called "testimonial banquets" which were given to nearly every Thompson department head after his appointment at the expense of his employés. Protests against the high pressure method of selling tickets became so strong that the practice for a time was discontinued.

Among those sponsoring the banquet tonight are Leonard Grossman, Sol Roderick, David Brill, Max Landis, and Louis E. Golan.

Find Boy, 10, Hanged Self Accidentally at Aurora

Fairman Campbell, 10 years old, who hanged himself in the bathroom of his home in Aurora yesterday, supposedly while emulating some character in a western thriller he had been reading, came to his death accidentally, a coroner's jury decided.

EVOLVE FORMULA TO TEST CHURCH FOLK ON DRY LAW

The International Council of Religious Education, which will end a 10 day session at the Stevens hotel today, has inaugurated a new method of teaching temperance in the Sunday schools. Part of it consists of a test of one's instinctive feeling toward prohibition, in which he is asked to cross out as fast as he reads them the words in the following list which are disagreeable to him:

Anti-Saloon league, bootlegger, beer, alcoholism, saloon, law enforcement, padlock, Canadian plan, wine, cocktail, temperance, hootch, propaganda, prosperity, beer stein, Capone, coast guard, home brew, pledge signing, racketeer, local option, Volstead, W. C. T. U., Jones law, rum runner, machine gun, law observance, personal liberty, Hoover commission.

The word test must be followed by indicating rapidly the truth or falsity of the following statements:

"Light wines and beers are harmless."

"Alcohol is a poison."

"A cocktail or a glass of champagne promotes sociability."

"Alcohol is a stimulant."

"Bootleg liquor is dangerous."

"Alcohol increases happiness."

"All moderate drinkers tend to become heavy drinkers."

"Alcohol is a narcotic."

According to its sponsors, the new method will be used in 42 denominations, representing 35 per cent of the Protestant church membership of the country.

ACCUSED IN WOMAN'S DEATH.

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that Dr. Emil Gleitsmann, 3940 Monticello avenue, be held for murder by abortion in connection with the death on Monday night of Mrs. Mathilda Cornelius, 25 years old, of 2254 Irving Park boulevard. Her husband, Joseph, told the jury she had undergone an operation on Feb. 5.

WAGNER SPEAKS FOR WET WING OF DEMOCRACY

N. Y. Senator Answers Dry Southerners.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A call for Democracy to lead the way to prohibition reform was voiced in the senate today by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.].

It was the reply of the wet wing of the Democratic party answering the recent dry declarations of southern senators. Significance was added to it by the fact that Senator Wagner is high in the Tammany councils, is a close political and personal friend of former Gov. Al Smith. A source of further significance is the nearness of the Democratic conference called for March 5.

"Now that the issue has become sharp and clear," said Senator Wagner, "we hear the political counsel of silence. We are told that there is more harmony in evasion. Perhaps there is. But there is no genuine lasting cohesion except that of the common faith in a significant principle. When a political organization ceases to rely on that, it no longer constitutes a party; it becomes an empty conspiracy."

At this point he was interrupted by Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.], member of the party's dry wing.

"Does the senator propose to make this issue the paramount issue in 1932?" demanded the southern dry senator. "And if the party does not follow his advice, will he follow his party?"

"I always abide by what the party does in convention," Senator Wagner replied. "But I am giving my advice, and I hope my party will make this the issue in 1932."

"Hoover Threw Chance Away."

The "courageous leadership" required to face the prohibition issue cannot be expected from President Hoover, Senator Wagner declared.

"With the report of the Wickersham commission in his hand, Mr. Hoover had a rare opportunity to lead a grateful people out of the morass of criminality, corruption, and hypocrisy in which we have been bogged for 11 years," said Senator Wagner. "He has thrown it away. He made haste to disown the commission he had himself so hopefully created. He has chosen to stay behind, the defender of an old order, a discredited cause.

"But the American people will move on—led by those who are clear eyed and broad visioned, and willing to join in a common effort to prevent a return to the evils of the past and assure our deliverance from the evils of the present."

Shortcomings of Wickersham.

The "primary and outstanding conclusion of the commission," he said, was that prohibition has been a dismal failure. He recalled the scope of the commission's inquiry. It spent 18 months searching for the total abstinence this crusade was intended to produce.

"Instead," he declared, "the commission found local option, and in addition these by-products of the great experiment: growing intemperance; corruption, the like of which this country has never known; general lawlessness which threatens to overwhelm organized government."

Should Deal with Reality.

The time had come, said Senator Wagner, "to deal with the reality of failure."

Prohibition has resulted in a "golden flow" of illicit profits which go to support crime, he declared. Public opinion has always been against the law.

"The killing of citizens by armed officers," he declared, "the unlawful searches and seizures, the spying and the wire tapping, the bribery, and the corruption of federal officials have sown resentment and hostility far and wide and converted enthusiasm for the law into apathy and apathy into opposition in the very house of its friends. Indeed, it is now announced that the federal government itself has voluntarily abdicated the major portion of the field of enforcement."

State Option Under U. S. Control.

The method of bringing about improved conditions which the commission did not discuss was, he said, that of state option under federal control. He offered a plan under such a method.

He would have repeal, but with a joint agreement between federal and state governments, as part of the state's repealing action, to guarantee state control without the saloon.

"The need today is not a return to the days before prohibition but a forward movement to follow up the elimination of the saloon with the eradication of the speakeasy," he said.

ANDERSON SAYS HIS RUM PLAN IS ONLY SANE WAY

Should at Least Give "Regulation" a Trial.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Henry G. Anderson of the Wickersham commission, tonight said his plan for dealing with the problem of liquor control is based upon a careful study of the regulatory experience of the United States and is an effort to apply to this traffic the same methods that have succeeded in the case of railroads and banks.

Mr. Anderson's plan is for liquor control through a federal commission and properly regulated national and state liquor producing and distributing agencies.

Mr. Anderson spoke for the first time since the Wickersham report, in expansion of his views contained therein which were the subject of a nation-wide comment.

Summarizing the finds of the commission, he said it was indicated the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act was impeded by an unfavorable attitude on the part of a great mass of normally law abiding citizens; by the non-coöperative attitude shown by states and by the fundamental economic law which says that where there is a demand which is willing to pay a profit, the supply unfailing will reach it.

Take Profit Away from Crime.

"These causes," he said, "are all outside of the control of the government and it is inevitable as long as they exist that the law cannot be enforced.

"What, then, are we going to do about it? We are being threatened with a loss of the benefits derived from closing the saloon. Crime, for the first time, is so adequately financed as to threaten the security of our government.

"If we take the profit out of it, we may be sure that the traffic will stop. But, to do this, control must be complete from source to consumer.

Power to Regulate.

"I would modify the Eighteenth amendment to read 'Congress shall have power to regulate or prohibit.' I wouldn't cut out the 'prohibit,' because that would repeal the national prohibition act. But, by giving congress the power to regulate or prohibit, we could keep that until we get something better, or if we tried regulation and it didn't work, we could go back to absolute prohibition.

"We have beaten the saloon. Now we've got to beat the bootlegger. After that we'll beat whatever may arise. We can't expect to solve the entire problem in one step."

Speakeasies Dot Cities in Dry Iowa; It's Easy for Stranger to Buy a Drink

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 16.—[Special.]—On the Iowa shore of the Mississippi, where prohibition is a lusty youngster of fifteen years, a thirsty stranger has no difficulty in getting a drink. He need only speak up with an open countenance to smooth the way. I found liquor within fifteen minutes of my first visits to Dubuque and Muscatine.

I arrived in Dubuque in midafternoon. As the train leaped through a tunnel onto a narrow bridge, I caught a glimpse of long, narrow islands rimmed with ice, the city nestled in a terrace 20 feet above the river and homes crowning the bluffs looming 200 feet higher. The city, the oldest settlement in the state, is the most thriving manufacturing town of northern Iowa.

A block beyond the Canfield hotel under the shadow of the scales of justice, topping the courthouse, I was ushered into a typical "hootch" joint. My guide was a carpenter, whom I accosted to ask where a stranger might get a drink. After a wary scrutiny he delivered the verdict, "You look all right."

A Red Brick Building.

The carpenter led the way to two dingy one story red brick buildings, scarcely 15 feet wide. We walked through a narrow passageway to a barren yard sealed by a joint shed. After a parley in the house to the right, a young man delivered the frank ultimatum, "I don't know you."

On the left a beaming gentleman, who had been eavesdropping, waved entrance. A step down brought me into a shabby room, with three chairs, a table with a pail of water, a stove and two bright calendars. The host, who answered to the name of Red, regretted having no beer, but explained that it is too bulky to dispose of quickly in case of a raid. He offered a generous measure of hootch, poured from a glass in the kitchen beyond, with a glass of water dipped from the pail on the table. The charge was 25 cents—the water was worth it.

Between drinks Red told of serving eighteen months in France and six months in the county jail for bootlegging. He had a trade but was selling liquor because he could not find work, he said.

During my short stay eight men came in. One bought a half pint at 50 cents, another a pint at $1, and the others had "shots." Red said a gallon sold from $3 to $5, while a gallon of alcohol ranged from $7 to $8. Red refused to sell a package of cigarets. "It might cost me $150 for selling without a license," he said, "and I'd rather take a chance with liquor."

A visit to a merchant found a ready guide on a quest for beer. Mr. X brought me a half block from the main street to a doorway between two shops. We climbed a flight of stairs and knocked at one of four doorways. Through a bleak living room we walked into a kitchen, where Wallie, a middle aged, sturdy American, set home brew on the checkered oil cloth.

"We don't go in for fancy places," X apologized. "Most of us do our drinking at home. We get the stuff delivered to our door like milk. Now this is good beer. I have some at home, but Wallie makes it better. We drink hootch and alcohol in cocktails or near beer. You can get drug store liquor, but this has the same bang. The drug store stuff comes at $3 or $3.50 a pint, with $1.50 for the prescription."

Old Bill's Pickle Farm.

The beer sold at 15 cents a bottle. Wallie volunteered to deliver a case for $2. X insisted on a visit to his home, where he prepared a cocktail with ceremony. The final touch, he explained, was the twisting of a bit of lemon peel to "kill the moon taste."

A visit to "Old Bill's" Pickle Farm, a flat above a store near the railroad station, garnered more beer and more hootch. Old Bill hobbled about on crutches to do the honors, as his daughters entertained in an adjoining room. Old Bill has done a stretch at the state farm for a liquor violation, and boasted of it.

Fisticuffs broke out among the gentlemen friends of the daughters. X, the Good Samaritan, who introduced me to Bill, and myself beat a hasty retreat. We drove to East Dubuque, Ill., where speakeasies line the approach to the bridge. Here one may buy whisky at 50 cents the glass, or beer at 25 cents.

Technique at Muscatine.

At Muscatine the drinking technique varies. The favored drink is near beer dosed liberally with alcohol. Mr. Y, a business man, brought me to a café near a movie theater. At the end of the long counter we were served steins of the beverage. The alcohol was dipped from a small trough, emptied into the stein from a whisky glass and topped off with a bottle of near beer.

The proprietors said proudly that they have been operating for two years under the very noses of suspicious police. They circumvented raids by a device which enables them to empty the contents of the trough into a sewer from several points of vantage. I was told that the café closed promptly at 6 o'clock.

Stills Dot Isles in River.

In both towns I visited eight substantial citizens. Three took me to desks and produced bottles, three others offered to sell me a pint at cost, made by "a farmer who makes good stuff." The last two extended an invitation to visit their homes. In Muscatine the population of 20,000 is 90 per cent native white.

In answer to queries as to the source of the supply I was told that stills dot the jungelike isles of the river and the fastnesses of the heavily wooded bluffs. The retreats virtually are impregnable and produce so great a flood of hootch and alcohol that prices were cut in half as early as 1925.

At the time the price was cut the Iowa Anti-Saloon league, in issuing a bulletin on the first decade of the dry millennium—Iowa went dry by statute in 1915—acknowledged the existence of 1,000 isle and bluff bootleggers. No estimate was made of the number of farmers with stills toward the west, where the tall corn grows.

ASSASSIN SLAYS NEGRO WOMAN IN OAK PARK STREET

A colored woman, identified as Mrs. Lena Donaldson, 34 years old, living in the vicinity of 49th street and Vincennes avenue, was shot and killed last night by an unidentified Negro as she was walking in front of 320 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park.

The police sought her husband, Mrs. Donaldson was employed as a part time maid in the home of Gray Phelps, 426 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park.

Lay Jeweler's Suicide to Temporary Insanity

Philip Barnett, president of Barnett, Inc., jewelers at 240 South Michigan avenue, who shot and fatally wounded himself on Monday while in a vault of the Congress Trust and Savings bank, 510 South Wabash avenue, committed suicide while temporarily insane, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. Dr. M. L. Weinstein, his physician, told the jury Barnett had been suffering from a nervous breakdown.

BURNING ACID STOMACH ENDS

Mr. C. M. Reade, Merchantville, New Jersey, writes, "After 15 years of stomach acid stomach I began taking ACIDINE. From the first dose, about three years ago, I have enjoyed my old health back again."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, grassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

SPEAKEASIES PAY MILLIONS A YEAR TO N. Y. POLICE

Sift Bank Accounts to See Who Gets Money.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Protection for speakeasies in New York City costs somewhere between $20,000,000 and $28,000,000 annually and today Samuel Seabury, referee of the magistrates' investigation, set out to find who is getting the money. He sent out 600 blanket subpoenas to banking and financial houses calling for all accounts of 51 police officials ranking from lieutenant to inspector.

The revelations, already partially uncovered, are expected to plunge the police department into its biggest scandal in years.

Federal officials meanwhile, are delving into the income tax returns of officers who already have admitted unexplained bank deposits ranging from $60,000 to $237,000.

Bring Forth Information.

The command to produce the financial records will bring forth every scrap of information which the banks have in their vaults concerning the 51 men. Cashed checks, signature cards, loan liability accounts, records of visits to safety deposit boxes will be uncovered. Nothing must be concealed.

The subpoenas named police officers who have been on duty in the Third or "tenderloin district," which takes in all the vice centers and speakeasies in the Times Square sector, and in the Sixth or "Harlem district" where the black and tan hangouts honeycomb the store and apartment buildings.

All of the information demanded dates from Jan. 1, 1925, to the time set for the return of the subpoenas, Feb. 26, 27 and 28.

Confesses Taking 600 Bribes.

The Seabury investigators already have in their possession the bank and brokerage accounts of 92 policemen who have been linked with the wholesale shakedown of innocent women on prostitution charges. They have uncovered the work of a deputy prosecutor [indorsed and highly praised by the anti-vice committee of fourteen] who now confesses that he accepted 600 bribes to help the police frame 600 women.

In between times they have turned up eleven allegedly corrupt lawyers, an even larger number of preying bondsmen, and have so thoroughly proved that in this city bribery is a stepping stone to the judiciary and a lucrative practice after arrival that when a law abiding private citizen is hailed familiarly as "judge" he usually snarls, "When you call me that, smile."

The move today was the first sweeping action by Mr. Seabury to shift his fire from small game to the higher-ups, who line the rich trail of graft and corruption, and while the evidence is almost smothering the city administration, the Tammany control remains so powerful that not one policeman involved has been removed from the force and only one man—a bail bondsman—has been sent to the workhouse.

Two Collect $7,500 a Month.

Mr. Seabury's action in sending out the subpoenas was a direct result of the testimony yesterday of Harry Levey, retired police stool pigeon, who disclosed that two patrolmen had collected at least $7,500 a month from 150 or more speakeasies in the Harlem district. From Levey's figures the average "protection" price falls at $75 monthly. The yearly average figure is about $900. Accepting the frequently made police estimate of 32,000 speakeasies in New York, the annual toll of tribute—federal agents not included—would be more than $28,000,000 annually.

Levey's figures, however, are subject to qualifications. The investigators point out that Levey's "collections" were made among uptown and residential resorts, which undoubtedly would not be "assessed" as heavily as those in the Broadway belt. The city as a whole, however, it was agreed, would contain many speakeasies unable to meet "assessments" at the rates testified to by the stool pigeon, and $20,000,000 would be a better estimate.

The figures cited by Levey were compared to newspaper surveys made in 1928 and 1929. The figures were confined solely to "local protection" and no effort was made to estimate the cost of federal "protection."

The Evening Post survey, based upon an estimate of 15,000 speakeasies in the city in 1928 and questions put to hundreds of proprietors, established the local protection budget roughly as follows:

"About 50 at $5,000...$	250,000
"About 100 at $3,500..	250,000
"About 3,000 at $2,000	6,000,000
"About 1,000 at $1,500	1,500,000
"About 1,000 at $1,000	1,000,000
"About 5,000 at $500..	2,500,000
"About 4,000 at $100..	400,000
"Totals.....$12,000,000"

In the newspaper survey a speakeasy was taken to mean a place of which the main business is selling alcoholic drinks. Grocery, delicatessen, cigar store, hotel room, club, barber shop, and garage speakeasies were not taken into consideration. Levey's testimony revealed that the police were "knocking off" the latter type of drinking places as regularly as the other.

GANGSTER SLAIN

FRANK MARLO.

MARLO, ONCE A GUN KILLER HERE, SLAIN IN GOTHAM

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A Chicago gunman, Frank P. Marlo, once identified as the man who "rubbed out" one of Al Capone's henchmen, and more lately sought as a suspect in the slaying of Alfred J. Lingle, CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, was found shot to death this morning about 3 o'clock on a dark sidewalk on East 19th street.

Detectives traced Marlo's movements back to the Victoria hotel, where he had lived since Oct. 27 with "Betty Richman." She decamped when they incautiously telephoned her the details of Marlo's death. His room was swept and garnished and the woman gone before they could determine, even, if she was his wife. The police said Marlo had no criminal record here, they believed he was a bootlegger.

Telephone communication with Capt. John Stege, former chief of detectives of Chicago, that Marlo, also known as Marlow and Marco, was a journeyman killer, who while in Chicago killed Tony Lombardo in broad daylight on a crowded street in the loop.

Whoever killed Marlo pumped seven bullets into his chest and mutilated his head as though they had tried to scalp him.

A taxicab driver, Anthony Janbofsky, discovered the murder. He was driving along the dark street to a nearby garage when he saw in the glare of his headlights the body. The ambulance surgeon examined the body found that though the seven bullets had pierced Marlo's shirt and under clothes there were no holes in his vest or coat.

Marlo was well dressed. He had a package of cigarets crushed in the stiffened fingers of his right hand and the only money on him was 70 cents.

BIRTH CONTROL MINISTER LOSES JOB WITH CHURCH

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Rev. Eliot White, birth control advocate, who challenged Bishop William T. Manning, ceased to be a member of the staff of Grace church today.

Mr. White invited former Judge Ben B. Lindsey to speak here under the auspices of the Churchmen's association. Mr. Lindsey came here and made his spectacular interruption of Bishop Manning's service. Subsequently Mr. White announced that he had sanctioned the companionate marriage of his daughter. On Sunday he announced that he had asked Bishop Manning to try him on ecclesiastical charges to make a test case.

There was no comment from the bishop's office, and Mr. White announced that he would seek persons, first in the Grace church vestry, who would bring the necessary charges.

SOUTH CHICAGO GROUP INDORSES PROPOSED SOUTH PARK BONDS

All seven of the south park bond issues to be submitted to the voters next Tuesday were indorsed yesterday by E. H. Burke, president of the South Chicago chamber of commerce. Mr. Burke said that virtually all of the civic organizations in the south park district favored the issues.

Four of the issues, including those for improving the shore line southward to Indiana, for small park improvements, and for the improvement of Southeastern boulevard and Yates avenue, have been disapproved by the Chicago Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Mr. Burke criticized this as "loop politics."

"The proposed boulevards will connect the Indiana, Illinois, and federal highways with the south park system and will permanently relieve the congestion in this district," he asserted. "Engineers for the World's Fair have estimated that more than 60 per cent of the fair visitors will come by way of the southeast side and a recent investigation by the Chicago Regional Planning association showed it to be the most congested area in the city.

LOVENA K. GARST ASKS DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Mrs. Lovena K. Garst, 437 Glencoe road, Highland Park, yesterday entered a suit for divorce against her husband, Goodwin Garst, head of the Garst Manufacturing company at 549 West Randolph street, in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan. Mrs. Garst charges cruelty, specifying in the bill that, in December of 1928, Garst pushed her from their automobile, inflicting serious injuries. On other occasions, she charges, he struck and pushed her.

Mrs. Garst seeks the custody of the children, Rosemary, 13 years old; Barbara, 10 years old; Edward, 9 years old, and Roger, 6 years old. Her counsel yesterday asked for an injunction restraining Garst from disposing of his assets.

Hoover's Rapidan Fishing Pool Periled by Drought

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Unless steady rain falls on the Upper Rapidan river, President Hoover may find his summer camp uninhabitable next summer. Investigation made for the President revealed today that the springs which supply drinking water and the creeks which feed the Rapidan fishing pools are almost dry.

Police Charge Bribe Attempt in Rape Case

Stephen Nemes, 38 years old, a stock and bond broker, attempted to bribe two policemen with $7,500 worth of stock when they arrested him on a charge of raping Miss Helen Flynn, 22 years old, it was charged yesterday. The charge was made in Judge Harry Fisher's Criminal court by Policemen Edward Nevera and Joseph Libretti.

Miss Flynn was cross-examined at some length by Nemes' colored attorney, William McIntyre, but she persisted in her story that she was lured to the broker's office on a promise of a job and was then attacked. The state closed its case and the defense started to put in its testimony.

DESERTED BY HER HUSBAND, MOTHER BEGS FOR WORK

Sally Joy Brown Gets Job for a Father.

A woman whose husband deserted her and who must now support her two small children, as well as her mother, was cited yesterday by Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE as one of those most in need of the work that can be furnished by some TRIBUNE reader.

Miss Brown helps the unemployed by turning over to them at the Illinois Free Employment Service, 116 North Dearborn street, all offers of jobs she receives. Call Superior 0100 and ask for Sally Joy Brown if you have a job to offer.

Deserted, She Begs Work.

Mrs. P. H. wrote in part: "My husband deserted me some time ago and I have two small children and a mother to support. I have had several years' experience in millinery managing and selling. Have splendid references, but have found it impossible to get anything to do. My funds are very low."

P. S. writes: "I'm a married man and have seven children, the oldest 15 and the youngest 5 years old. I've been out of work seven months. I would be willing to do anything—packing, crating, watchman, or punch press operator. My wife is working in a restaurant and she gets $10 a week, and that isn't enough to support the children. I would be glad to get a suit of clothes, size 40, and shoes, size 9."

A. L. P., a 26 year old mother, said she is a "thoroughly competent secretary and stenographer" and has "held very desirable positions."

Father Offered a Job.

A job for A. B. R., a carpenter and the father of two motherless children, was offered yesterday by J. A. C., in North Oakley avenue. He said he wished to have the outside of his home painted, and would do all he could to give A. B. R. a start. Several persons have responded to Sally Joy Brown's plea to help A. B. R.

Mrs. J. H. M. of Hubbard Woods will provide several weeks' work for an experienced decorator.

W. C. P., in Estes avenue, offered 50 cents an hour to a handy man to do repairing jobs around his house. T K., in Augusta boulevard, provided a general housework job for several days at 50 cents an hour.

CITIZENS RESPOND TO MAIL PLEA FOR RELIEF DONATIONS

Approximately 1,500 replies, carrying donations of $6,760.71, were received yesterday at the headquarters of the governor's commission on unemployment and relief in reply to the direct home appeal through the use of franked mail. Donations ranged from 25 cents to $300. At present 600,000 franked envelopes are in the mail, and by Thursday the entire 1,125,000 appeals will have been mailed.

"Of particular interest," said Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the fund raising committee, "is the number of persons who are using the franked envelopes to send in appeals for help. Yesterday we received 300 such appeals. This, in addition to the 700 family a day increase in direct appeals at headquarters, shows how serious is the need."

The grand total of subscriptions to the fund is $4,876,463, including $93,520 of provisional subscriptions which are valid only if the entire amount is raised. This is $123,537 short of the goal of $5,000,000.

Among donations received yesterday other than in the mail appeal were: Elmore & Co., $250; Hyland Electrical Supply company, $100; William Wrigley Jr. & Co., $2,500; the Daily Times [additional], $2,300; Illinois Central railroad employés [additional], $1,825; employés of the George B. Carpenter & Co., $1,690; J. M. Patterson, $1,000; Rosenbaum Brothers [additional], $500; Shotwell Manufacturing company, $350; Barney Balaban, $500.

NEW GIFTS RAISE GOOD FELLOWS' FUND TO $94,857

Gifts and pledges totaling $311.25 were received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow department, bringing to $94,857.70 the funds received since the Good Fellows were asked last October to provide for needy families during the winter.

Yesterday's statement from Good Fellow headquarters gave the total number of Good Fellows as 1,549. New Good Fellows have enrolled daily since the fund was started, and it is only because of this increasing enrollment, in addition to the loyal support of the other Good Fellows, that 304 families are now receiving Good Fellow aid.

Your gift, even though it be small, will help provide a monthly income for one of these families. Every penny you give will be spent for the purpose intended, as THE TRIBUNE bears the expense of the administration of the fund. The families all have been found worthy by the United Charities, the Salvation Army, the Central Charities bureau (Catholic), and the Jewish Social Service bureau.

44 Are Seized in Raid on Policy Gaming House

Forty-two Negroes and two white men were seized last night by police from the state's attorney's office in a raid on a policy gambling house at 1506 Lake street. The prisoners were taken to the Des Plaines street station, released on bond furnished by professional bondsmen, and ordered to appear in court today. The white men arrested are Mike Skoller, 32 years old, 2606 South State street, and Harry Winograde, 34 years old, 1245 South Lawndale avenue. The raid was said to be the first against policy houses in two years.

ASKS RED CROSS GIVE 15 MILLIONS OF ITS 'SURPLUS'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A resolution asking the Red Cross to appropriate $15,000,000 of its "surplus" for additional relief in the drought area was introduced today by Senator Bratton [Dem., N. M.].

The New Mexican called attention to resources of the Red Cross, which he said totaled more than $20,000,000.

"I have no purpose to minimize the Red Cross," he said. "The Red Cross has a record of which we are justly proud. It is my belief that the Red Cross should spur itself onward and forward."

Foreign Dress Pageant to Honor Consuls in Chicago

Members of the Junior auxiliary of the Illinois Women's Athletic club held a dress rehearsal yesterday for the pageant to be presented at the club Saturday night in observance of Washington's birthday. The affair is called the fête of all nations and is in honor of foreign consuls and their wives. Mrs. William Westerlund is chairman, and Mrs. William Severin, co-chairman.

New York Real, Personal Property Worth 19 Billion

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Final assessment figures for 1930 and 1931 were made public today by James J. Sexton, president of the board of taxes and assessments, and they showed the city's real estate and personal property is worth $19,162,517,014, which is $573,548,612 more than it was last year.

Germany to Build Zeppelin of Ruins of Wrecked R-101

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Feb. 17.—The wreckage of the British dirigible R-101, which cost the lives of almost 50 men, will arrive at Friedrichshafen within the next few days to be recast and used in a new German Zeppelin. The Graf Zeppelin will resume its trips at the end of March, one of its journeys being to Cairo, Egypt, where it will land.

SNOWDEN HINTS BUDGET IS SHORT BY $200,0000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Another grave warning concerning Great Britain's financial situation was sounded today by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, in an address before a meeting of the Labor party. Mr. Snowden emphasized that his colleagues "must face the facts," and indicated that the next budget deficit will be between two hundred and two hundred fifty million dollars.

Mr. Snowden was unrepentent for his sensational speech in the house of commons last week concerning the economic situation, but he made it perfectly clear that when he referred to "sacrifices by all" there was no idea in his mind of an attack on wages.

Replying to radical members of the Labor party, Mr. Snowden declared heatedly that he had "a difficult job, and if anybody thought they could do it better than I they can have it."

The ministry of labor announced tonight that the number of unemployed registered on Feb. 9 was 2,637,131, an increase of 12,895 over the week before and 1,117,157 more than a year ago.

DROUGHT FUND OF RED CROSS PASSES $600,000

The receipt of $10,000 from the Chicago and North Western railway sent the Chicago Red Cross drought relief fund over the $600,000 mark yesterday. Chicago's quota of the $10,000,000 national fund is $940,000.

Among other gifts the Chicago headquarters reported was one for $15 from the "dependent boys of Lawrence hall," voted from their chapel fund. Sunday schools and churches are stimulating contributions as a special object for Lent.

"Word was received today of a material increase in the number of drought sufferers being taken care of this week," said James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter.

STEPS OFF STREET CAR INTO PATH OF ANOTHER; KILLED

William L. Strong, 32 years old, 1239 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, was fatally injured last night when he got off a south bound Clark street car at 14th street and was struck by a north bound car as he attempted to cross the street. Strong was accompanied by his brother, James Strong, 22 years old, 3902 West Huron street, and as they walked behind the street car from which they had alighted, they walked onto the north bound tracks. James saw the car and, seizing his brother, tried to pull him out of danger, but was too late.

The Strong brothers have an advertising business in Oak Park. The brothers were to make a business call and James believes his brother made a mistake in alighting at the point because of the poorly lit street.

BUTLER TALKS OF CAPONE, BUT MUSSOLINI? NO!

Has His Reasons, He Tells South Bend Audience.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—"When public opinion is aroused Al Capone will go back to Italy—but I can't talk about Italy," Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, just back in the good graces of the government after recently branding Premier Mussolini of Italy a hit and run driver, shouted in his first public address here tonight.

Gen. Butler's reference to Chicago gang ruler came during recital of his experiences as police commissioner of Philadelphia for two years before 400 members of the Knife and Fork club. He made no comments on the Mussolini incident either before, at or after the banquet.

In his own half humorous way he did make an occasional statement that his hearers were quick to seize upon as references to his latest leap into the public eye.

"God help any one who gets in the way of public opinion—for I know," was one.

Likes to Talk, But Not Now.

And again, when giving his method of cleaning up crime, which, incidentally, first requires a "courageous" mayor at the head of city government, he said:

"I like to talk—but not any more."

Somewhat nettled over the interest displayed in his talk by camera men, who lined up before the speakers' table and focused brilliant spotlights in his direction, Gen. Butler's first words were:

"How long is this damned thing going to keep up?"

The light subdued, he launched into his talk.

Gen. Butler does not hold police responsible for crime, but places it directly on heads of city governments.

"Any police force can clean any city in 24 hours if the mayor and city government want it cleaned," he stated. "It's the political system that's wrong. Why, I'd hang men who, after being elected to office, failed."

Bullets for Bandits.

"The year before I came to Philadelphia nine policemen were shot to no bandits," he declared. "At the end of my first six months the score had been reversed, 16 to 0 in favor of the cops. When a criminal is shot he doesn't bother you any more."

Gen. Butler arrived in the city this afternoon from Chicago. He refused to discuss the Mussolini incident. "What I want is to return to normal life again," he said.

CALLS PRINTED PAGE MOST POWERFUL OF ADVERTISING MEDIUMS

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The printed page as an advertising medium has the greatest power of any form of contract between the seller and the buyer, H. H. Cory, Minneapolis, president of the Radio Press association, told the fifth annual convention of the National Federation of Radio Associations and of the Radio Wholesalers' association in joint and closing session here today.

Pointing out the power of reader appeal, Cory urged radio dealers and jobbers to concentrate advertising in newspapers.

"With the printed word before him, the buyer can concentrate on the subject matter of the advertisement," Cory asserted. "Readers like to buy from newspaper ads because they can compare prices."

3 JUDGES DENY CITY'S PLEA IN PHONE RATE CASE

Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson, Evan A. Evans, and George T. Page, sitting en banc, yesterday denied a motion of counsel for the city to dismiss an injunction whereby the telephone company is collecting higher rates than the state commerce commission authorized.

Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George Haight, representing the city, disagreed with the judges as to the meaning of the Supreme court decision which remanded the case for further proceedings. Attorney Goldstein, who spoke before the court for four hours, said he would appeal directly to the Supreme court.

Another motion, to compel the refunding of almost $20,000,000 to the telephone users, also was denied, and the court held that further evidence must be heard under the meaning of the Supreme court opinion.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

Victor Fisher, 38 years old, an unemployed painter, committed suicide last night by inhaling gas in his room at 1109 Washington boulevard.

PAUPER'S DEATH REVEALS HIM AS A FORMER JUDGE

The wasted body of an elderly man which had lain unclaimed for 48 hours in the county morgue was discovered yesterday to be that of Robert W. Scott, former judge and Republican leader of Albany, N. Y.

Admitted to the county hospital last week as a pauper, he had undergone an operation, contracted pneumonia, and died on Sunday. Scott was 55 years old and apparently penniless.

Once he had been a prominent member of the New York state bar. Following his defeat in an Albany election twelve years ago he had dropped from sight.

Unknown to relatives, who had long since believed him dead, Scott had drifted from city to city under the assumed name of John J. Williams, living precariously on the charity of chance acquaintances.

Known to Bookmakers.

For the last few years he had lived in Chicago and was well known among the loop bookmakers, with whom he placed an occasional small bet on the horse races. One of his best friends in Chicago was John B. King, service manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association, 111 West Washington street.

Mr. King said he had known Scott for ten years, but not by his true name. A decade ago, when Mr. King, as a private detective, was investigating the Cleveland municipal scandals which resulted in a trial of the city manager form of government, he had met the supposed Mr. Williams, who possessed a wide acquaintance among Cleveland politicians.

"He gave me some leads, which proved valuable in my investigations, and I rewarded him, as he seemed in straightened circumstances," Mr. King recalled. "Thereafter he turned up in various places—Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Chicago—and I kept up a regular correspondence with him."

Pays Fare to Chicago.

When, in 1924, Mr. King became service manager of the lumbermen's association, Scott wrote him from Pittsburgh, asking transportation to Chicago. The money was provided.

"It was always the same plea after that," said Mr. King. "He would have some proposition in Hammond, Detroit, or some other place, and needed transportation money and a small sum with which to start the enterprise. His stories were improbable, but there was a certain dignity in the man—an evidence of education and culture—which made it impossible to refuse his requests for loans."

Presents Case in Court.

Once, after Scott had been arrested on complaint of a tire company which had erroneously accused him of theft, Mr. King recalled, he had filed suit for false arrest and made a skillful presentation of the suit. Before the case went to the jury the judge declared a mistrial, however.

Again, when an English countess, a former New York girl, came through Chicago, Scott asked Mr. King to learn the time of her arrival in order that he might meet her. Scott met the train, but afterward was reticent on the subject.

Before going to the hospital, Scott had requested his friend, in the event of his death, to notify William F. Ashley Jr. of New York City. The New York attorney, it developed, had once been Scott's law partner. He notified the dead man's brother, James Scott, who left Albany for Chicago late yesterday to claim the body.

13 Business Men Jailed in $2,500,000 Scotch Fraud

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

SPRINGFIELD'S MAYOR WINS RENOMINATION

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Today's primary election resulted in the nomination of Mayor Hal M. Smith and John W. Kapp Jr. for mayor.

Willis J. Spaulding, Fred Vanhorn, Joseph Figueira, and Harry Luers were renominated for commissioners. For police magistrate the nominees were C. C. Bierman and Jean Saner.

Quincy Nominates.

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Mayor Frank A. Jasper led a field of three for the Democratic nomination for mayor, his plurality being over 1,200. Former Mayor W. B. Smiley lost the Republican primary tonight to J. Emmett Wilson by three votes.

Freeport Mayor Beaten.

Freeport, Ill., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mayor George Edler was defeated for renomination today by Julius J. Guhl, an alderman, who polled a majority of 318. Guhl will be opposed by James J. Nelson, who ran on another nonpartisan ticket.

HURT IN COLLISION.

THERE ARE TOO MANY PACKARD PROSPECTS for us to see them all

Perhaps a Packard salesman has never called on you. If not, we hope you do not feel that it is because we are not interested in having your business—or because we think you are not really a Packard prospect.

The fact is that there are too many Packard prospects in our territory for us to make personal calls on all of them. We just can't get around to see all who really want a Packard and who can really afford one.

Why not bring yourself to our attention? We assure you that your courtesy will not be imposed upon. You have much to gain and nothing to lose in letting us tell you the Packard story—a story that proves that you can own a Packard without increased motoring expense.

Packard cars are now offered in three complete lines, the Standard Eight, which is within the reach of all owning cars costing more than $1500, the DeLuxe, and then the Individual Custom with creations costing up to $10,000.

Our current models are in my opinion the finest cars Packard has ever built. They are beautiful, powerful, distinguished and luxurious—everything you could want in a motor car. And last, but far from least, a Packard is always reliable throughout its unusually long life.

Why not call or phone? You will be under no obligation in any way. Let us tell you of our Payment Plan and then let us appraise your old car. It will never be worth more than it is right now. Remember—You Are Paying For a Packard—Why Not Own One?

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Catarrh Clogs Nose 2 Yrs. OPENS UP OVERNIGHT

"I breathed through nose for first time in 2 years when I tried KONDON'S Catarrhal Jelly. A friend had catarrh so bad he had to sleep sitting up or he could not breathe. The first tube of KONDON'S enabled him to sleep lying down."—H. B., Illinois.

KONDON'S opens up nose, throat in 5 minutes. Ends phlegm, gagging, suffocation, bad breath, bad taste. Relieves catarrhal deafness, head noises. Doctors have prescribed KONDON'S for 40 years because it curbs catarrh so quick.

2 COOK COUNTY WETS DELAY DRY REPEAL MEASURE

Graham and Serritella Absent from Senate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Absence tonight of two wet Cook county senators forced liberal leaders to abandon an effort to advance the O'Grady repealer of the Illinois prohibition law to second reading without reference to a committee.

Twenty-six votes were needed. Twenty-five were in the bag. Being one shy, the liberals did not press it to a roll call. The bill went to the license committee with promises of action before March 1.

One of the two absentees who halted the battle was R. V. Graham, who comes from the dripping Cicero district, reputed to be the wettest spot on the map. He is a son-in-law of A. J. Cermak. The second absentee was Daniel A. Serritella, who is Mayor Thompson's city sealer and a Capone lieutenant, who is being charged by Judge John H. Lyle in his speeches as being "one of Capone's closest associates."

Safford Sits in Gallery.

In the gallery, beaming over the Capone and Cicero absentee influence in holding the liberals back, sat the Rev. George B. Safford, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

Victor P. Michel of Peoria, chairman of the license and miscellany committee, declared the bill would be reported out of his committee as fast as possible. The committee is rated as dry by one vote, but two dry members have pledged themselves to vote to report it to the floor for action. Senator Michel expects to set a date for a field day of oratory next week, when both liberals and drys will present argumentation. Mr. Safford of the Anti-Saloon league tonight asked for a place on the program, which was granted.

"But what good will it do you?" asked Senator Michel.

Meanwhile, a little row developed among the Chicago Democrats which threatened to involve the battle for repeal of the search and seizure act with a dinky little aldermanic election in the 14th ward of Chicago next Tuesday.

Senator Frank McDermott, father of bill No. 2 in the senate, which is identical with the O'Grady repealer, a house measure, declared he would seek tomorrow to have his bill pulled out of the dry judiciary committee and sent to the license committee, with a view to pressing it to a vote in place of the O'Grady bill which passed the house last week, 91 to 56.

Liberals Pour Oil on Waters.

Representative O'Grady is running for alderman in the 14th ward against Ald. William R. O'Toole. Senator McDermott declares that Mr. O'Grady in a recent speech remarked, "after I beat O'Toole, I'll take the old boy next time," a remark McDermott says was directed at him.

Liberal leaders tonight are pouring oil on the waters. They suggest that the repealer be hyphenated, and that one way to adjust and compose the situation is to rechristen it "The O'Grady-McDermott bill."

Senator Richard S. Meents of the Kankakee district, formerly the Small floor leader, and who formerly voted with the drys, today indicated he is inclined to the liberal side this time. His district voted wet in November by 5,086. He told the liberals he was ready to vote to advance the O'Grady bill on the calendar without reference. Politicians came to the conclusion that Len Small is getting ready to run for governor in 1932 as a wet. The supposition for months has been that if Thompson is re-elected as mayor, Small will have a go at the governorship again with Thompson support.

U. S. JUDGE HOLDS LONE SALE CAN'T PADLOCK A HOME

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A single instance of the sale of liquor in a private home does not constitute a sufficiently strong case against the owner for the government to padlock the residence, according to a decision handed down today by Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson. The case, argued last week, involved an attempt by the government to padlock as a nuisance the home of Frank Fratta in Maybrook, Orange county, N. Y., after a deputy sheriff had reported to the prohibition agents that Fratta's wife had sold him two drinks of whisky in the dining room of the home.

DRYS SING HYMNS AND YELL TO HALT HEARING ON A BILL

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Militant women drys, chaperoned by the Connecticut W. C. T. U. and Protestant ministers, puffed cigaret smoke into the faces of state legislators, sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and by sheer force of numbers—2,000—disrupted the scheduled public hearing of the wet "Crusaders' bill" in the state capitol today.

The drys, urged by letter and pulpit proclamation "to come early and bring your lunch," swarmed over the state capitol lawn and steps and into the building, preempting every inch of available space early this morning.

Every bit of business before the legislature had to be abandoned for the day.

CONCEALED GUNS BILL IN HOUSE HITS AT GANGS

Asks One to Ten Year Terms for Violators.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A concealed weapons bill, bearing the stamp of approval of State's Attorney Swanson of Cook county, President Cermak of the county board, and the Chicago Crime commission was introduced in the house of representatives today by Representative Henry Sonnenshien of Chicago.

The essence of the measure is contained in this paragraph: "No person shall carry or transport in any manner any pistol, revolver, or other firearm less than three feet in length, whether within reach or not, in any railroad passenger car, street car, automobile, motor bus, motor truck, or other motor vehicle."

Aimed at Hoodlums.

This is designed to apply principally to hoodlums who, caught with arms beside them in an auto, escape punishment on the technicality that the weapon is not on their persons. The bill carries the usual exceptions for law enforcing officials and others entitled to protection, and makes a violation of the act a felony, punishable by a term of from one to ten years in prison.

Representative Benjamin Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] entered a bill which provides that in cases "where there is only one candidate for alderman in a ward, that candidate shall be certified as elected on the day of election without the necessity of printing ballots, employing judges and clerks, and other unnecessary details, which are performed at the present time." The bill is the result of a suggestion made in the city council of Chicago two years ago by the representative's father, the late Ald. Max Adamowski, he said.

Poisons Bottle Labels Asked.

Representative Martin B. Lohmann [Dem., Pekin] introduced a bill to force the distinct labeling of bottles containing any preparation which has wood alcohol, menthanol, or methyl alcohol as ingredients. The label would be at least one-half inch high and would be printed in red on a white background, accompanied by a skull and crossbones.

Representative Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview], chairman of appropriations committee, introduced the appropriation for the next biennium of Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair. This was set at $248,000.

TAKE FUGITIVE AS EMBEZZLER.

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 17.—(AP)—George Bollman, a fugitive for six months from Albuquerque, N. M., where he was charged with embezzling $6,000 from a national bank, today was arrested on the farm of his brother, near here, by agents of the department of justice.

SEIZED RUM SHIP SINKS AFTER 50 SHELLS HALT IT

All but Four Cases of $40,000 Cargo Lost.

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Somewhat chagrined and a little disgruntled, coast guardsmen brought to the barge office today the story of how the long sought speed boat, La Esperance, had sunk in Gravesend bay with a cargo of $40,000 worth of liquor aboard shortly after she surrendered following a chase around the harbor.

Fifty shots were fired at the rum boat by its pursuers, it was revealed by Capt. Philip Lauriat. But Boatswain M. M. Mitchell, commanding the coast guard patrol 2292, who made the seizure, charges that the four members of the crew of La Esperance scuttled her by opening her sea cocks just before they left the speed boat.

The crew, each of whom is charged with transportation of liquor, and four cases from the speed boat's cargo, were all that the coast guardsmen had to show for their capture tonight.

Capt. Lauriat's version of the capture was that La Esperance had surrendered after many of the coast guardsmen's shots had riddled her hull below the water line.

But whether scuttled or riddled, La Esperance, equipped with three Liberty motors, whose speed of forty-five miles an hour made her one of the fastest of the rum fleet, has gone to Davy Jones' locker in Gravesend bay near the west end light buoy.

She sank so soon after the seizure that two members of the patrol boat crew who had gone aboard as guards had to scramble nimbly to keep from going down with her. They scarcely had time to remove the four cases as evidence.

The pursuit led all over the harbor, with the coast guard firing at intervals at the speedier craft.

WOMAN FRIEND OF HIGH FINANCIER IS BROUGHT INTO CASE

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A red haired young divorcee today became a figure in the grand jury investigation of A. W. Benham, the erstwhile "Midas," who announced himself "broke" after six months of high dividends to home town investors in his secret ventures.

The woman, Miss Beatrice Manning, 24, was seriously ill in the Swedish-American hospital at Rockford, but deputy sheriffs with subpoenas were waiting for her recovery to take her before the Boone county grand jury.

Officials decline to reveal what connection she had with the case, but declared she was known to be a friend of Benham and several times had been seen with him in places of amusement. Officials here were investigating to determine whether a postoffice box held by her under her married name, Mrs. J. R. Shrader, was used by Benham to carry on his financial ventures by mail.

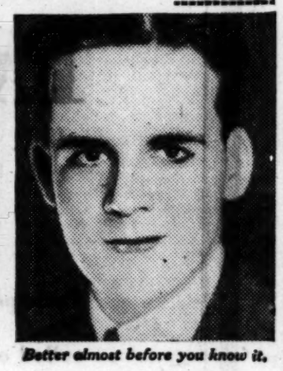
The grand jury sat until late tonight hearing a score or more of Benham's clients tell of their dealings with him.

Benham again disappeared today, but his friends declared he soon would return. He disappeared early last week after announcing he was "broke," but returned after five days.

Don't Trifle With a Cold

Break It Up In a Jiffy With Something You KNOW Does the Job

Take two tablets now.



Better almost before you know it.

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling beginsto go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

Does Your Automobile Insurance Policy Say What YOU Think It Does?

Most motorists believe that if their car should be burned or stolen, their insurance company will pay them the amount stated in the policy. The fact is, however, that the amount named in the policy is a valuation used to determine the cost of the insurance, the rate for fire and theft insurance being a certain price per hundred dollars of valuation.

The policy says that in the event of a total loss you will receive an amount not to exceed the actual loss sustained, the settlement to be agreed upon by you and the adjuster for the insurance company. If you fail to agree, the claim will be arbitrated. This is the usual policy, which is known in the insurance world as the "non valued" form.

Then there is the "valued form" policy. Under the terms of this policy you are paid the face value of the policy, the amount on which you have paid premium, should you suffer a total loss.

The Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club issues a VALUED FORM POLICY.

This policy also covers loss of spare tires and accessories, without additional charge.

Subscribers who have claims deal directly with the home office. There is no delay in waiting for authorization for payment of a claim. Red tape forms no part of the organization. It is not necessary for the motorist insured with the "exchange" to wait for the decision of a "higher up" in a far distant city. Home office service makes for speedy settlements.

During 1930 the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club sold automobile insurance amounting to $3,989,791.62. During the year the "exchange" returned cash savings to subscribers amounting to $798,030.12. This service, as well as other services rendered, is available only to members of the club. The policy issued covers you anywhere in the United States or Canada.

Other services of the club are: Free mechanical first aid and towing service at any hour of the day or night, home district service, which attends to special conditions around your home, such as seeing to it that refuse is promptly removed; accident prevention work which seeks to cut accidents, especially among school children, by means of safety posters and by fostering schoolboy patrols; travel service, which provides you with maps, logs, and the most complete and up to the minute advice on road conditions; and bail bond service, which guarantees your appearance in traffic violation cases, where a bond not in excess of one hundred dollars is demanded.

ASKS WHY STATE FUNDS CAN'T GET SAME INTEREST

Proposal for Inquiry Sent to Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The house of representatives was asked today to determine why one state official can obtain interest payments from banks on his large deposits of state funds, and another, Garrett D. Kinney, director of finance, "makes no attempt" to bring the state additional revenue by asking banks to reimburse him with interest for gas tax collection deposits.

Representative Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur], a first termer, made this request in a long resolution which Speaker Shanahan sent to the appropriations committee. Doyle asked that a committee of five members investigate the methods used in handling the motor fuel tax, bearing in mind that Secretary of State William J. Stratton placed his funds with banks which yielded the state $17,285 in interest during 1930. Stratton handled about $22,750,000 in 1930, and Kinney, $27,783,000.

Finance Director Reports.

This afternoon Finance Director Kinney issued the following statement: "All gasoline tax money collected by the department of finance is turned over to the state treasurer as soon as checks are received in payment of the tax and are cleared by the banks. Deposits are made by the department in the state treasury as rapidly as the checks are cleared. At no time does the department have more than $2,000,000 in its depositories in the process of collection. Generally the amount is much less.

"Therefore, it is obvious that every effort is made by the department of finance to hasten the payment of gas tax money into the state treasury.

"The records of the department of finance are open to the legislature for inspection at any time."

Says Public Is in Dark.

Doyle's resolution contained this paragraph:

"News articles dealing with this situation disclosed a lack of certainty and definiteness as to the methods used by the director of finance in the collection and handling of the motor fuel taxes, and the people of the state of Illinois are, and should be, entitled to a frank and candid explanation of said methods, and particularly be given sufficient and sound business reasons why said sums collected as motor fuel tax do not bear interest after being deposited in the banks used by the director of finance as depositories."

The situation disclosed by the resolution shows that Mr. Kinney makes his principal deposits in the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company and the Foreman State National Bank of Chicago. They pay him no interest. "I've never asked them to pay interest," Mr. Kinney said this morning.

Stratton Names Depositories.

Stratton's Chicago depositories include the Continental bank, but it pays him one and one-half per cent on daily balances of more than $1,000.

Mr. Stratton named his Chicago depositories as the Central Trust company, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, National Bank of the Republic, Central Manufacturing District bank, Southwest Trust and Savings bank, Union Bank of Chicago, and the Builders and Merchants Bank and Trust company.

"Every dollar that goes out of my office into a bank," said Mr. Stratton, "is covered by a surety bond paid for by the bank. Every day we settle with the state treasurer. This method makes money."

The Doyle committee, if approved by the house, would have the power to subpoena witnesses and place them under oath, issue duces tecum subpoenas for books, documents, and papers, and report its findings to the present general assembly.

HOUSE GETS TRIO OF FEDERATION OF LABOR BILLS

May Change Women's 10 Hour Law.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Three labor bills introduced in the house this morning comprise an important phase of workmen's legislation sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Labor.

MICHAEL L. IGOE.

The women's eight hour bill was put in by Representative Michael L. Igoe, minority leader. It is backed by Miss Agnes Nestor, Chicago labor leader, and changes the present ten hour law to eight hours, except in cases where women are not employed more than six days a week. These employés are permitted to work nine hours per day provided the total working hours in the six days shall not exceed forty-eight. Nurses, secretaries, and managers are not included in the bill.

Exceptions are made in the cases of night telephone exchange operators who work from 7:30 p. m. to 8 a. m. They are allowed to work ten hours provided sleeping facilities are provided and time allowed for sleeping. Special provisions also affect women in canning factories during the canning season.

Proposes Old Age Pension.

Representative R. G. Soderstrom [Rep., Streator], president of the state federation of labor, entered an old age pension bill which, becoming operative in 1931, would levy a one-half mill tax to raise a fund to care for persons 70 or more years of age, who are without adequate means of support. The pension would not exceed $260 annually and no person with an income of more than $300 yearly would be eligible to receive it. The recipient would have to have been a resident of the state at least fifteen years and could not have been convicted of a felony.

Third in the list of proposed measures was the prevailing rate of wage bill introduced by Representative Truman A. Snell [Dem., Carlinville], previously entered in the upper chamber by Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield].

Would Protect State Workers.

It would force the inclusion in every contract, to which the state or any of its political subdivisions entered into, of a clause providing that the laborers and mechanics employed by the contractor should not be paid wages less than the rate prevailing for similar work in the district. No laborer on the contract would be allowed to work more than eight hours per day.

Mr. Soderstrom issued a statement asserting that "should the bill be passed at this session it would forever stop the bad practice of making a football out of the labor power of Illinois people engaged in public work."

"Its enactment means the end of a frightful struggle between contractors as to who can secure the cheapest labor, and provides a lasting effect on wages to be paid in the future by construction contractors in Illinois," he added.

COAL SLIDE KILLS MINER.

Harrisburg, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—John Tuckero, 35 years old, of Eldorado, crushed by a fall of coal in Wasson One mine yesterday, died today.

Don't let a Cold Settle in your Bowels!

KEEP your bowels open during a cold. Only a doctor knows the importance of this. Trust a doctor to know best how it can be done.

That's why Syrup Pepsin is such a marvelous help during colds. It is the prescription of a family doctor who specialized in bowel troubles. The discomfort of colds is always lessened when it is used; your system is kept free from the phlegm, mucus and acid wastes. The cold is "broken up" easily.

Whenever the bowels need opening, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sure to do the work. It does not gripe or sicken; but its action is thorough. It carries off all the souring waste and poisons; helps your bowels to help themselves.

Take a spoonful as soon as a cold starts, or the next time coated tongue, bad breath, or a bilious, headachy, gassy condition warns of constipation. Give it to the children during colds or whenever they're feverish, cross or upset. It is harmless; contains only laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other helpful ingredients.

The way it tastes and the way it acts have made Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the largest selling laxative in all drugstores!

siderable time in explanation of the house bill, apparently with the view to getting as much of the discussion as possible out of the way before the measure comes back from the committee.

Three and a Half Million Out.

Senator Vandenberg pointed out that there are 3,500,000 bonus certificates in force with a maturity value of about $3,500,000,000, that under the existing law the present loan value is 22½ per cent, or about $730,000,000, that total loans to date are about $325,000,000, that there is thus an unused loan privilege of $405,000,000, that about 48 per cent of the certificate holders have used 43 per cent of their existing loan privileges, that the pending bill adds $1,000,000,000 to the grand maximum of loans, but if only the same number of veterans borrow the additional loans will amount to $430,000,000.

"This $430,000,000 is covered by treasury certificates of indebtedness in the compensation certificate maturity fund, and designed to be used to the best benefit of the veterans. There are now in round figures $750,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness in the maturity fund. To finance $430,000,000 the treasury of course must redeem for cash an equivalent amount of these certificates of indebtedness which the treasury had deposited in the maturity fund.

No Tax Boost Needed.

"The operation does not involve any additional tax burden at any point in the calculation, because the government at all times is protected as to the full principal and interest of the loans."

From the beginning of the day's session the senate supporters of the loan plan made their control felt. From an administration success in passing a motion by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep. Wash], to take up the conference report on the independent offices appropriation bill, which was agreed to, 54 to 18, the session was turned into a filibuster in favor of the bonus.

Obstructionist tactics, first undertaken by Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.], in the interest of Muscle Shoals legislation, were turned into an effort to get immediate action on the bonus bill.

Senator Black charged that a "well greased plan" was afoot to get the appropriation bills through and leave the bonus until the last few days so that a pocket veto might defeat it.

RIDE 3,000 MILES IN COLD FREIGHT CARS TO PLEAD FOR BONUS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Twenty-seven ex-service men who had come all the way from Seattle without a dollar between them today trooped into the office of Senator Dill.

"We're not bolsheviks," said their leader, by way of introduction. "We are just a bunch of former service men who wanted to come here to see if congress couldn't do something to help us get our bonus money. We've come 3,000 miles in twenty days by box car and ——."

There followed an arresting tale of how a modern Coxey's army of 120 strong set out from Seattle Jan. 25, and how its dwindling remnants made their dogged way across the country, living on doughnuts or whatever else came their way.

Nearly half of the original 120 were forced to turn back at Spokane, Taylor said, after the entire "army" had become drenched by a heavy rain on the 400 mile trek from Seattle.

"Of those that came on from Spokane," said Taylor, "forty-four got jobs on the way. The rest are here."

SAYS PAINTINGS BOUGHT FOR $300 ARE WORTH $50,000

Two paintings on parchment, purchased by Mrs. Jason F. Whitney of Evanston from a Chicago dealer for $300 have been identified by Maurice Goldblatt, picture expert, as original works by Rubens, 17th century artist, and are now worth approximately $50,000. The pictures are "Presentation in the Temple" and "Adoration of the Shepherds." The first is believed by Goldblatt to be a part of Rubens masterpiece, a painting for the Antwerp cathedral, which was named "Descent from the Cross."

Daniel Rich, assistant curator of paintings at the Art institute, said he could not be sure that they had been executed by Rubens himself until he had examined them. Mrs. Whitney said yesterday that no authority beside Goldblatt had so far passed on the paintings.

Improvement Reported in J. P. Cotton's Condition

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Improvement was reported tonight by Dr. Walter E. Dandy, brain specialist, in the condition of Joseph P. Cotton, undersecretary of state, whom he is attending at Johns Hopkins hospital. "Mr. Cotton is quite a little better and the operation performed Sunday for the removal of the right eye was successful," Dr. Dandy said. Sunday the eye was removed and today the infection spread to his left knee. The knee was lanced during the morning.

KING OF SPAIN SPRINGS COUP TO SAVE HIS CROWN

Plans to Rule Under Civil Dictator.

gone is evidenced by the fact that after he thought himself rid of Sanchez Guerra years ago he lost his nerve and went back to him completely. Melquiades Alvarez, second in command to Sanchez Guerra, came later and told Alfonso in brutal words the conditions under which he would form a government and what he thought of Alfonso XIII. At this the king held his hand to his face and stepped backwards in horror as from a ghost.

Wins Back His Power.

For a time he was in a violent state and could only see salvation in his generals. Learning that a military dictatorship would precipitate a revolutionary strike within two hours, he came to his senses and achieved extreme poise.

His inspired efforts during the night have won for him almost the position where he was before Gen. Berenguer resigned, except for that humiliating admission on Monday.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the king's soldiers were being mobilized in the capital. Machine guns were placed at all strategic points and troops were held in readiness for action. Two artillery units mounted long range guns near Madrid and trained them on the city.

A movement to establish a military dictatorship began to be talked of. Plans for a general strike were resumed at the Socialist headquarters. The military censorship was ordered clamped on.

Refuses Guerra's Ministry.

Things began to happen rapidly at 12:30 p. m., when the king refused to accept Señor Guerra's ministry. The statesman was stunned at the king's "about face." He arrived at the palace with his list of prospective ministers in his pocket and said so when he went in the door. Curiously enough, out of a bright and almost cloudless sky snow began to fall over the palace. The phenomenon was noticed nowhere else in Madrid, where the inhabitants basked in sunlight as brilliant as it was warm.

In less than a half hour Señor Guerra came out again, and with that curious and startled expression of an owl surprised by sudden light. He announced that he had advised the king to call Melquiades Alvarez to form a ministry. He said quietly and half apologetically that he had not been able to form a ministry composed of the so-called constitutionalist group.

Refuse to Help King.

Shortly afterwards Alvarez refused to go to the palace at the king's request, figuring that Alfonso had broken his faith and was sparring for more time. At 2 o'clock, while Gen. Berenguer gave orders massing the troops, Alfonso called Señor Cambo and Marquis Alhucemas. He summoned them with the idea of forming a coalition government of liberal and conservative monarchist elements.

But Cambo, too, declined. Then Marquis Alhucemas and Count Romanones came to the palace, but could offer the king no comfort. Both said the constitutional assembly was the only solution, and, if Señor Guerra was inaccessible, Alvarez would have to be. The king dismissed them and, as Count Romanones, always blithe and a great jokester in the Spanish political world, walked away, he looked very angry.

"What is going to happen?" he was asked.

"How should I know?" he replied with disgust, twirling his walrus mustaches before him. "I am not Alfonso XIII.—thank God."

The king again called Señor Alvarez, who, despite his original intention to snub the Bourbon, went. He, too, came forth looking very pensive. He said the king had not asked him to form a government. It appears he told Alfonso that he could do no better than Señor Guerra, and that his own lineup, from the king's standpoint, would be even worse.

Balks at Three Men.

It was learned that, although the course of the king's refusal of Guerra's cabinet was actuated by a change of heart on "abdication," he balked at three names on Guerra's list—Admiral Rivra, Burgos y Mazo for ministr of the interior, and Gen. Goded, that young and fiery foe of Alfonso, for minister of war. It is also declared that the king refused to sign a decree for a constitutional convention in the form in which Guerra presented it.

The military censorship went into effect at 5 p. m. and censors, in uniform, again invaded the offices of telegraph companies. But the telephones have not been touched as yet.

Monarchists Greet Queen.

Warned by the British royal family not to return, Queen Victoria came back to Madrid yesterday from London, where she has been visiting her mother, Princess Beatrice, who has been ill. Alfonso took time from his frantic consultations to climb into a morning coat to go to the station. The aristocracy rallied to the king's side and made the queen's homecoming a testimonial of their feeling for the king.

Close to 500 of them, women in furs and jewels, and men in uniforms or tophats turned out, and when the train pulled in they greeted the startled queen, who is in reality not greatly loved, with a delirious welcome. The king, waiting inside the station, took her in his arms and kissed her, and did the same once they were in their automobile headed for the palace.

The only commoners present were a few hundred royalist students and noisy Fascist youths. They went to the palace later and brought the royal family out onto the balcony for the first time in many weeks with their lusty cries.

Later they chose to blow off steam in the heart of Madrid and collided with the populace. The police were compelled to intervene with sabers. A couple of heads were cracked in the mêlée and a half dozen arrests were made.

U. S. Naval Reserve Officer Stabbed at Panama Canal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 17.—Capt. Richard H. O'Brien, a canal pilot, 40, was stabbed in the heart with a short dagger during an argument with a native taxi driver at 2 o'clock this morning. He is still alive, but not expected to recover. Capt. O'Brien was born at Gloucester, Mass. His mother lives in Detroit, and he has a son at Ann Arbor, Mich. He is a lieutenant commander in the United States naval reserve, a prominent member of the American Legion here, and has piloted boats through the canal since 1923.

✣ Famous Vienna Physician Explains ✣ Where Trouble Starts ✣ Eating Yeast Daily ✣ Brings Health! ✣

DR. EMIL FRONZ, physician to the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, has found in yeast the best method of correcting Intestinal Fatigue.

He has Treated over 300,000 CASES!

Dr. Emil Fronz, celebrated physician to Austria's royal family, says, "I know nothing better than fresh yeast to keep the system internally clean"

WOULDN'T you have confidence in the advice of the personal physician to the Emperor and entire Imperial Family of Austria . . . the physician to royalty and aristocracy in half a dozen countries of Europe?

Then imagine you are talking to the famous Hofrat Professor Dr. Emil Fronz, of Vienna, the physician who is reported to have treated a total of more than three hundred thousand cases during his long career!

Dr. Fronz is speaking to you now:—

"It is sometimes difficult for a modern physician to admit that a simple, homelike remedy has a greater value than drugs bought at a much higher price.

"During my many years as a physician I have always made it a practice to prescribe natural remedies. In the front rank of these I place fresh yeast.

"My experience has been that fresh yeast will do this: it will make eliminations regular and will restore the whole process of digestion to normal.

"By keeping the system free of poisons yeast will keep the skin clear of pimples, boils, etc. . . . It has a marked tonic effect which benefits the whole system.

There, in his own words, is the opinion of one of the greatest medical men in Europe today!

Unlike ordinary laxatives, fresh yeast actually "tones up" the vital internal mechanism that has become weakened in Intestinal Fatigue. Sluggish intestines gradually grow stronger, more active. Accumulated waste matter that has been clogging them is softened and gently cleared away.

Thus, in a perfectly natural way, yeast restores normal and regular habits of elimination. Food residues no longer stagnate in the body, to poison the system and make you susceptible to headaches and colds.

You feel more energetic, more alive! Telltale skin troubles are corrected. Appetite grows sharper, indigestion disappears.

So why go on dosing yourself with weakening cathartics and pills, when it's so easy to get the little foil-wrapped cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast that offer such rich promise of health?

Try it, now! Just eat three cakes every day—before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or in a third of a glass of water (hot or cold) or any way you like.

Remember, Fleischmann's Yeast is a food and must be eaten regularly. Every cake, you know, is rich in three indispensable vitamins—B, G and D. At grocers', restaurants and soda fountains. And be sure you ask for Fleischmann's Yeast—in the familiar foil wrapper with the yellow label. It's fresh yeast—the kind famous doctors recommend.

Fleischmann's Yeast is fresh yeast...the only kind that benefits you fully.

Eat 3 cakes a day!

Remember, it's important to ask your grocer for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) . . . the only yeast that contains the Sunshine Vitamin D! Every cake is "irradiated" to give it this added element so important for sun-starved indoor workers. It is rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

HOOVER SIGNS BILL FOR 44 HR. POSTAL WEEK

And Announces Plans to Raise Mail Rates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—President Hoover announced today that he will shortly ask congress to authorize the appointment of a special commission to investigate ways and means of placing the postoffice department on something like a paying basis. In disclosing his intention to take steps to cut down the annual postal losses the President pointed out that the postoffice department faces an estimated deficit of 100 million dollars for the next fiscal year.

Indications are that the special commission will be appointed in time to report back to the seventy-second congress, which convenes next December. If the commission follows the President's views, as outlined today, it will recommend methods by which the postal revenues can be increased.

The decision of the President to ask for an inquiry was made known immediately after White House approval of a bill providing a forty-four hour week for postal employés. This measure becomes effective July 1. It will apply to 150,000 letter carriers, office clerks, and railway service men.

President Hoover attributed the increased deficit largely to the increased pay of postal employés and the reduction in hours of service. It would be only just to the country, he said, that arrangements should be made to increase postal revenues to meet the growing burden on the government.

Bomb Breaks 100 Windows at Crane Plumbing Plant

A bomb shattered 100 windows at the plant of the Crane company, plumbing manufacturers, at 43d street and Spaulding avenue, last night. The blast tore a hole in the ground and aroused dozens of employés on the night shift. The directors of the company had voted a 10 per cent wage reduction yesterday, but officials declined to comment on that as a possible motive.

A squad of watchmen rushed to the scene after the blast, but saw no one. The plant is surrounded by a high fence and the bomb, apparently, was tossed over it.

THUGS' VICTIM

LOUIS WEIL.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Possible labor troubles were being investigated by the police last night in an effort to solve the slugging early yesterday of Louis Weil, manager of the State-Lake theater.

Weil was found unconscious in Lake street just east of the theater and was taken to the Michael Reese hospital. He told the police that he had left his office and was on his way to his home at 1626 Lunt avenue when three men struck him with blackjacks. They kicked him as he lay on the sidewalk and fled. Weil regained consciousness a few moments later and called to a taxi driver, who drove him to the hospital.

Weil was unable to account for the attack. Late last year Weils' predecessor, Mort Singer, was attacked in similar fashion by a band of sluggers. No attempt was made to rob either Weil or Singer.

Mary Nolan to Surrender on Theft Charge Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mary Nolan, sought by sheriff's deputies on a charge of petty theft, notified officers today through legal counsel that she would surrender tomorrow in the Beverly Hills justice court to answer the charge. The film actress is accused of taking a rug from a residence she once rented.

HINT MICHIGAN U. FRATS RAIDED ON FAKE WARRANTS

Legislator Demands Full Investigation.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Developments along the University of Michigan liquor battlefront today included a statement by Frank P. Darin, chairman of the committee on the university in the state house of representatives that the legislature was vitally concerned and is a court of last resort in checking up on the police, and an answering statement by Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp, challenging Mr. Darin's right to "Meddle with the Ann Arbor police department."

Mr. Darin visited the university with his committee this afternon to discuss the question of appropriations and though he refused to say whether the liquor question arising from the recent raid on five fraternities, entered the discussion, and handed out a printed statement outlining the purpose of the committee's visit, he expressed his own opinion in clear terms, saying that he was not satisfied with the manner in which the raids were conducted nor the validity of the warrants.

Rumor Warrants Were Faked.

"The legislature is a court of last resort in checking up on the police and if the warrants were faked, as rumor says they were, the legislature should know about it," said Mr. Darin.

"I introduced the resolution asking for an investigation and that goes," continued the representative. "My dope is that the warrants were fictitious. If that is true, the legislature should know. If not, the rumors should be stopped."

Mr. Rapp declared that he was "ready to go to bat with Darin on this question at any time. If Darin doesn't like our liquor laws why doesn't he make an effort to change them?" Rapp said.

Student Committee Meets Today.

"So far as this affair is concerned, the legislature has nothing to do with it," Rapp continued. "It's a matter for the courts to handle. The legislature can't meddle with the Ann Arbor police department."

HOLDS MICHIGAN DRY REFERENDUM PLAN IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Efforts of liberal forces in the Michigan legislature to determine the sentiment of the state's voters on the prohibition issue were dealt a devastating blow late today when Paul W. Voorhies, attorney-general, ruled that a proposed submission at the April election of the question, "Do you believe in national prohibition in its present form?" would not be legal.

A resolution embodying the question and providing for its submission had been made a special order of business for tomorrow afternoon. With the receipt of Voorhies' opinion, which had been requested by Speaker Fred Ming of the house, Representative Vincent P. Dacey of Detroit, sponsor of the measure, announced that it would be withdrawn and re-referred to the committee on rules and resolutions which reported it favorably last week.

The attorney general, in his formal opinion, held that submission of such a question to popular vote would partake of legislation and would therefore be unconstitutional.

No proposal, he said, could be submitted to referendum which "does not come within the proper meaning of the word 'act.'"

INCOME TAX BILL PASSES INDIANA HOUSE, 92 TO 2

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Indiana house of representatives this afternoon passed by a vote of 92 to 2 the state income tax bill pledged by the 1930 state Democratic platform. It also sent to the senate, by a 77 to 17 vote, the Democratic platform bill providing for a 3 per cent annual tax on net incomes of all corporations.

The senate will consider the income tax bill as a committee of the whole tomorrow. Democrats have a house majority but are in a minority in the senate.

The bill provides for a tax of 1 per cent on each individual income, increasing by graduated scale to a maximum of 6 per cent.

MISSOURI STATE TREASURER FACES IMPEACHMENT

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 17.—(AP)—State Treasurer Larry Brunk, for several months a stormy figure in Missouri officialdom, tonight faces a recommendation by committee of the Missouri house of representatives that he be impeached for "criminal malfeasance" and "gross negligence."

Brunk's acts also became the object of scrutiny today by Prosecutor Nike Sevier of Cole county, in which the capital is located. Sevier said he would institute criminal prosecution against the state treasurer if any criminal acts appeared to have taken place here.

The committee made twelve charges against Brunk. One was that Brunk conspired with officials of a now defunct bank at Aurora, Mo., to defraud the state of $5,000 in state interest moneys.

The other charged Brunk with conspiring with J. Kenneth Edlin, president of the Provident State Security company of Chicago, as the result of which, the committee said, the Chicago company received a preference in the sale of bonds in Missouri, and Brunk received $10,000 from it.

COURT CLEARS WAY FOR WALLER APPEAL IN EXPERT FEE CASE

Edward C. Waller Jr., one of the real estate experts of the city who collected more than $500,000, obtained permission yesterday from the Illinois Supreme court to appeal from the judgment of the lower court. Mr. Waller, by the lower court, was held liable to return the fees. He had failed to appeal his case along with the mayor's appeal.

But recently he inherited a large sum of money, rumored to be in the neighborhood of $750,000, from his father's estate. The corporation counsel of the city filed a garnishment proceeding in the Probate court against the money Waller will inherit.

Waller petitioned the Supreme court for permission to file an appeal and adopt as his own the brief of Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, who hired the experts.

Judge Overrules Plea in Col. Kraft's Defense

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday overruled a demurrer to the indictment of Col. Charles J. Kraft, former commander of the 202d Coast artillery, Illinois National Guard. The court also ordered Kraft, whose indictment disclosed a $200,000 scandal in the guard, to be ready for trial on Monday. A motion of defense counsel for a bill of particulars also was denied.

SEE MacCHESNEY GO AS DIPLOMAT TO NETHERLANDS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Nathan William MacChesney, Chicago lawyer and alumnus of Northwestern university, has been selected as American minister to the Netherlands, according to information received by Republican senators today. His appointment would fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Gerrit John Diekema of Holland, Mich.

It is expected that President Hoover will send Mr. MacChesney's name to the senate within ten days. Mr. MacChesney is an old friend of the President and frequently has been a guest at the White House. Mr. MacChesney was active in the Hoover-Curtis campaign in 1928, serving as a director in the organization bureau of the Republican national committee. He also was president of the National Hoover-Curtis Lawyers' association.

Mr. MacChesney is 52 years old and a graduate of Northwestern university law school. He is senior member of the law firm of MacChesney, Whitefield & Wells.

KNOWS NOTHING OF IT.

Mr. MacChesney, reached at his home last night, said he knew nothing of reports that he was being considered for the diplomatic post in the Netherlands.

"No one has advised me that President Hoover was considering me as minister to the Netherlands," he said. "I think there is a mistake."

WHAT MAKES PEOPLE MOODY?

Do you know that our health and our moods are closely related to intestinal cleanliness?

When the system is clogged by constipation, poisons are generated. Often these bring on headaches and listlessness. You feel blue, or become irritable.

The poisons of constipation frequently aggravate nervous troubles, rheumatism, high blood-pressure and heart trouble.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

Try it with milk or cream. Use in cooking too. Recipes on the red-and-green package. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE MONEY COST OF CRIME.

The Rev. D. Campbell White, secretary of the National Commission on Crime Prevention Through Moral and Religious Education, asserts the country's crime bill is at least $6,000,000,000 annually. These figures represent a very rough estimate and may be wide of the mark. We know of no reliable statistics on the subject which summarize the total cost in money of criminal activities throughout the country.

But common sense assures any one that crimes of all kinds are a drain upon the nation which must reach an enormous money loss. We in Chicago have reason to be keenly interested in the subject, for Chicago is one of the greatest sufferers from violent crimes. Our expenditure upon police and courts is no greater proportionately than that of the average large city, but that is in fact a smaller item in the account. What the business community, including as it does the wage earner and salaried men and women as well as employers and investors, lose because of the prevalence of violence, the gangster, and the racketeer is difficult if not impossible to estimate in terms of dollars and cents, but any one who gives the subject a little thought knows the sum must be very large.

Chicago suffers unjustly in proportion to other cities where crime is flagrant, but facts cannot be ignored on that account and they have not only seriously injured the credit of the city in the eyes of the world but also our material prosperity. A city draws upon visitors for substantial profit, and few visitors are attracted to a place by sensational crime. Whether justified or not, fears are influential. Doubtless this is not a large item in the money account of crime, though larger than we like to think. More important in terms of money loss is the handicap upon business of racketeering and the organized violence which is a part of criminal organization in the city. This strikes directly at the welfare of workers of all kinds, at their safety, at their earning power, at the security of their jobs. Business enterprise which might come to Chicago or spring up within it is turned back. New employment is checked. Insurance rates against losses from crime are inordinately high in Chicago. In certain lines of business, like furs and jewelry, robbery insurance cost in 1930 $66 per thousand in Chicago, $30 in New York, $20 in Philadelphia. Other cities which had as high rates as Chicago have had them reduced. Some insurance companies will not write burglary or robbery insurance in Cook county, even at the high rates quoted. Residence insurance and automobile insurance show the same picture. It has been estimated that four or five million dollars a year could be saved to business, home dwellers, and automobile owners if crime could be reduced to reasonable proportions in this community. Taxes on all property are increased. The effects of unchecked crime spread through the community like a deadening poison in the veins.

The alliance of organized crime and corrupt politics has created a disease sapping the welfare of the whole community. It is our overshadowing problem. Our first duty is to solve it. The alliance is entrenched in power and fighting for its life. It cannot be destroyed by rose water. It can be destroyed only by sledge hammer blows. We have fighting leadership now and the strength to give it victory, if we will use it where alone victory can be won, at the ballot box. The Republican primary is a battlefield of aroused citizenship against the rule of the underworld and its allies. The political régime which has wasted the public moneys, turned its back upon or actively aided the powers that prey upon the city, misgoverned us and betrayed us, is fighting to hold its own. It has recognized its most dangerous foe in Judge Lyle and is directing all its resources against him. Citizens who have looked for a fighting leader have found him.

THE LAME DUCKS.

The house of representatives will vote this week on the Gifford resolution for a constitutional change bringing the inauguration of President and the sitting of new members of congress closer to the date of election. An election may make changes in congress which now will not get expression in legislation for some time. It may be thirteen months before the new members are sitting and the defeated ones are out. As an illustration, some sixty defeated house members will have a chance to vote on this very resolution aimed at the tenure of lame ducks in the future.

Political logic and theory support the change. It has been regarded as ridiculous if not injurious to extend the legislative life of defeated members so long after the election in which they were retired. By and large it probably is, but experience puts logic in one light at one time and then in another. When congress appears as a body impatient of restraint and heedless of consequences the wisdom of bringing it closer to election, results seems debatable at least. Clogs appear to have their value and speed its vices. Then by a swing to the right the system becomes too clogged, and there is an enthusiasm for sweeping all the obstructions out of the way.

It is probably unreasonable to expect a logical development of democracy which will be foolproof and produce a maturity of deliberation in which the congressional district viewpoint will be lost in the larger interests of the nation. Admirable doctrine sometimes works and sometimes doesn't.

DRIFTING INTO TROUBLE.

Pending the disposition of the naval bill by the present congress the Navy league has issued a statement on naval fleet building and replacement which should have the serious consideration of the nation. Especially significant is the following summary of the course of naval development since our great act of self-sacrifice at the Washington conference:

"Between the close of the Washington conference in 1922," says the report, "and the opening of the London conference in 1930, the United States laid down 86,120 standard tons of seagoing combatant naval vessels. In those eight years the British empire laid down 271,125 tons; the Japanese empire, 249,903 tons; France, 247,004 tons; and Italy, 129,997 tons. Thus while we undertook the building of merely 86,120 tons, the four other powers party to the Washington naval treaty started to build an aggregate of 898,089 tons—that is, over ten times as much and an average of 224,522 tons each. In short, even Italy built much more than we did and the three other powers averaged each to build about three times as much new tonnage as we did.

"Such dilatoriness on our part, while others were known to be thus building, has contributed to two results.

"Excluding all vessels over age or listed for disposal, but including all other ships built, building, or appropriated for in the categories limited by the London naval treaty, the aggregate tonnage for the United States fleet is 13.7 per cent below treaty terms, while that of the British is less than 2 per cent under treaty strength and that of the Japanese is less than 1 per cent below their treaty quota. Furthermore, this relative inferiority of the United States fleet is emphasized by our ships being, on the average, somewhat older than those of the other fleets."

The other result of our recent indifference to relative building the league considers at least as important as the foregoing material facts. This is "that the relatively small amount of new building or replacement we have undertaken since the Washington conference has accustomed the American people to a low level of naval construction entirely inadequate to the maintenance of treaty ratios."

In other words, we are not only actually drifting far astern in relative naval power through failure to keep up our building but we are getting into a state of public opinion which insures the continued and increasing deterioration of that power.

When we consider that our international commitments, our foreign investments and commerce have rapidly increased since the war this process of deterioration in the ability to protect our interests in war and in peace presents an extraordinary paradox. The more we have at stake the less we provide means of insuring it. This is not consistent with the American people's character or practical sense. It is made possible because our internal preoccupations have prevented us from realizing the spread of our responsibilities and interests, and, owing to this lack of awareness, organized minorities of pacifists and sentimental internationalists have controlled the action of our government. The result is that we are drifting rapidly toward a situation of diplomatic futility and naval weakness from which we will be awakened by the rough challenge of some great emergency and it will then be too late to save ourselves from its consequences.

All of this is imposed upon the nation in the name of peace, but its certain result will be war, war that self-respecting strength could have avoided, or humiliation and compromise of national interests which the nation will find a bitter dose.

GOLDEN GLOVES.

The first bouts in the annual Golden Gloves tournament have been held. There is every reason to believe that this year the interest of the public in the contests will be greater than ever.

THE TRIBUNE, as sponsor, takes pride in the spirit displayed at these bouts both in and out of the ring. The exhibition is recommended particularly to pessimists. The world is full of them. They despair of the economic future, the political future and the future in general. Let them go to these bouts and remember as they watch the skill and courage of the boys in the ring that it was these virtues which enabled Americans to conquer the wilderness. We were good then and we are good now. The manly virtues are as common in this country today as they ever were. If you don't believe it, go to the tournament and be convinced.

Editorial of the Day

WHERE FLASH THE ORANGE BERETS.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Orange berets flame above the sands and along the sidewalks of Palm Beach. Vivid scarfs share their challenge to the tropic sun. And these berets and scarfs, be it known, top masculine heads and encircle the Adam's apples of he-men. More than that, white tuxedos gleam under Floridian moonlight and their wearers sometimes don a wide silk belt in lieu of a waistcoat.

Therefore, say the fashion scribes, the men are really losing their color phobia. It is predicted the Florida color wave will sweep north with returning tourists when April sunshine begins to empty southern hotels. More daring prophets assert that by Easter the men will bloom and sparkle as never before.

It is an old prediction, but it won't come true. It never has and it never will. A few men, expanding under Florida sunshine, may have the daring to cap a growing bald spot with an orange beret. But will we see them marching up Euclid avenue, Broadway, Michigan boulevard, or Woodward avenue in that getup? Never! The orange berets will be laid away among the orange groves. The old inhibitions will triumph.

Colors may become a bit warmer, but the rule of the blue serge, oxford gray, and moderate brown will permit only a few mild insurgencies by brighter hues.

The bravest man lacks color courage. He may yearn in his heart for a damson cloak like Walter Raleigh's, but he does not dare. Only in undies and nighties does he venture to express the chromatic urge. Besides, if he went orange or pink, how it would cramp his style as a critic in good standing of women's fashion foibles.

CHOOSE—THEN HIT.

"O, John!" screamed the excited woman driver "the car is running away!"

"Can you stop it?" asked the worried husband.

"No."

SEASONAL COLDS.

E. L. F. writes: Our work has been extremely heavy for the last twelve months, but since Christmas it has been frightfully so. Undoubtedly malnutrition and worry on account of unemployment have created a fertile soil for whatever bug is traveling around. Some patients run a temperature of 100, feel bad for a day, and then clear up. Others go to 104 and, after thirty-six hours of misery, drop almost as quickly. Many people are just plain scared. We have found nothing as virulent as 1918 and we are not finding a great deal of pneumonia for this time of the year. There is a lot of illness that seems to be a mild form of influenza and there is some panic.

REPLY.

We are watching the situation closely. At the time of writing the death rate for Chicago for all causes since the new year began is only 1 higher than for the same period last year. The number of deaths from pneumonia and influenza is slightly higher than last year at this date. The year 1930 was the healthiest year ever known. The 1931 record is much better than the average.

The weekly report from the census office for about one hundred cities indicates that 1931, up to date, is not quite so healthy as 1930, but so far it is better than the average year.

This is the season of the year when an increase of sickness, and especially of colds with fever, and of pneumonia, is to be expected. It always has been so and will continue so for several years to come. Employers must expect it and adjust business accordingly. Likewise, the people generally must understand that in the present state of affairs January, February, and March are unhealthy months. They must expect to have colds, coughs, sore throats, and some of them will not escape pneumonia. I am sure you are right that many people are "just plain scared" and there is an occasional group that can properly be said to be in a panic.

Speaking generally, we are so free now from epidemics that anything having any of the earmarks makes some panicky and many scared. It may help them to know that conditions in 1931 are about normal.

To avoid colds well people should dress properly and stay in the open air as much as possible. They should participate in or attend winter sports. They should avoid liquor of all kinds, eat in moderation, cultivate regular habits, and control ventilation as much as possible. Taking of cod liver oil and other vitamin D foods is helpful. So is taking calcium medicines and food. Exposure to sunlight is of supreme importance. Preventive treatments with artificial light help.

To cure a cold with fever, keep warm and in bed in a well ventilated room. Stop eating for a day. Then eat a light diet, principally fruits and vegetables.

CLIMATE FOR ECZEMA.

P. L. B. writes: I have had eczema for the last six weeks and it keeps getting worse every day. The itch is almost unendurable. I have tried various salves but to no avail. The eczema does not spread to the face but touches every other part of the body. Can you suggest something to do away with the itch? Has diet anything to do with it? Doctors diagnose my case as winter eczema.

REPLY.

If the diagnosis is correct you should live in cooler, moister air. If you were to spend your winters out of doors in the moist air of the south your trouble would end. Working in a greenhouse or laundry should cure it. Humidifying the air of your office and home and keeping it cooler will help. Using ointments may help a little.

WHAT CAUSES DIABETES?

Mrs. J. R. F. writes: Will you please publish the cause of diabetes?

REPLY.

There are many causes. Among them are: Overeating, diets overrich in sweet and starchy foods, obesity, inheritance, great emotional strain, infections.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I subscribed for a correspondence course. After taking three lessons notified them I would be unable to continue paying because of loss of work. I am now being threatened with suit unless I pay the balance due, $105. 2. Is it possible for them to levy against my house? 3. On furniture? 4. Could they garnishee my wages? A. J.

1. The mere fact that a pupil becomes dissatisfied or unable to take the course does not free him from liability on the tuition contract nor entitle him to recover payments that he has made. He must show some additional defense, such as minority or breach of contract by the school. He cannot rely on oral representations and understandings not incorporated in the writing. The school is ordinarily entitled to recover the agreed tuition. While the pupil is theoretically entitled to credit for the saving that the school enjoys by having one pupil less to serve, it ordinarily cannot be proved that such saving is appreciable.

2. Yes, if they get judgment against you.

3. Your furniture would be subject to execution except that $400 worth is exempt to the head of a family.

4. Yes, after getting judgment.

PROCESS TOWARDS CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in Canada, entered the United States in November, 1923, paying head tax. Have been absent twice, once for about a week and once for about 25 days on visits to Canada. I would like to know if I am eligible for citizenship. F. E. N.

The applicant should obtain form A-2213 from the naturalization service, room 776, postoffice building, Chicago, and file his declaration of intention. Two years thereafter he will be entitled to file a petition for second papers.

NO SUCH LEGISLATION.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I understand that a new state law has been passed with respect to the garnishment of wages since the depression of business. If so, what does it cover? J. F. F.

We know of no new legislation on this subject matter.

Sellin' apples in the rain,
Gives a guy an awful pain;
How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!

How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!
We were startin' for to feel we were all through
When you busts into the shack,
With your fist jest full of jack;
How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!

How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!
You're a buddy, Bill, that sure is good and true;
We was just about on the skids,
But here's dough fer the wife and kids;
How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!

How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!
Once again we're singing Yankee Doodle Doo;
We know we're not passed by,
And we're stepping wide and high;
How do you do, Bonus Bill, how do you do!

BUT, ANYHOW, Smedley Butler is said to be all ready to dash for the lecture platform as soon as he resigns next year. HE READ 'EM WRONG.

The Garrett Biblical institute says too many men want to be ministers, and they're going to cut down the number of applicants. Which reminds us of what Dr. Frank Crane, who was preaching then himself, said once down in Bloomington at a Methodist conference. He said a strapping young farmer without much of an education came before a conference and said he had been called to the ministry and he wanted to be given a church right away. They asked him why he thought he had been called to the ministry and he said that on several occasions he had looked up at the sky at night and there he saw three great white letters which reached from the ground to the center of the sky, reading G P C. He knew it was a message to him and that it meant "Go Preach Christ!" The conference thought it over until finally an old minister got up and said that while he didn't doubt the young man's seeing those letters in the sky, he had misinterpreted the meaning. "What those letters meant to this big, husky young man," said the old preacher, "was, 'Go Plow Corn.'"

THERE IS a movement in Italy to take the nude out of art. Gosh! The cops may overlook a gangster battle now and then, or a holdup here and there, but when it comes to Art—well, they may not know so much about it, but they do know that Art ought to have her clothes on.

TIME'S REVENGE

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 18, 1915.

LONDON.—The German proclamation of a maritime war zone about the British isles has now been in effect since midnight, London time, or 7 o'clock New York time, and the full force of that country's submarine destructivity is supposed to have been loosed in an effort to isolate Great Britain and ruin its shipping commerce. Military law has superseded civil in practically all the coast cities and districts to prevent any possible attempt on the part of the Germans to land troops. The Germans in their blockade effort did not wait for the stroke of midnight to begin their campaign. At 6 o'clock they torpedoed and sent to the bottom the British steam collier Dulwich, whose crew of thirty-one men escaped solely by their own efforts. Shortly after a German submarine blew up and destroyed the French steamer Ville de Lille, off Barfleur, the crew saving themselves in the ten minutes allotted by the German commander.

BERLIN.—Fifty thousand prisoners, besides many cannon and machine guns, were captured by the Germans when the Russian Tenth army was defeated in the Mazurian lake district in East Prussia, an official statement says.

PARIS.—The official war statement says: "In the Champagne district we have followed up our gains to the northwest of Perthes and have captured positions of the enemy on a front of 800 yards. All German counter attacks to the north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus and Beau-Sejour have been repulsed. We captured a large bomb thrower and several small ones, and made 200 prisoners."

FEBRUARY 18, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Secret service officials declare they are confident they have captured three of the men who robbed the internal revenue office at Peoria of $35,000 in stamps. The men are John Delehanty, James McVey and John Reagan, who are now confined in jail under bonds of $10,000. They are held on the charge of attempting to sell "washed" stamps, but federal agents hope to be able to substitute the robbery charge.

CHICAGO.—Members of the First Presbyterian church of Maywood found their church in flames when they went to attend services yesterday. They carried out church property until the firemen compelled them to desist because of danger that the roof would fall in. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

MEXICO CITY.—Snow fell in this city and in the Valley of Mexico for the first time in fifty years. The snow created much excitement among the people.

PEKING.—Peace appears to be out of the question for China, and Count von Waldersee, commander of the allied troops, has sent a note to the allied war generals outlining battle plans. The generals are notified to have their troops ready to move in two weeks and to be prepared for an expedition lasting eighty days. Military officials conclude that the objective of this expedition is Sian Fu province, where the imperial court is now established.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 18, 1881.

NEWCASTLE, Del.—Six men were scourged with the lash here on Saturday in the presence of a crowd of interested spectators. One stalwart fellow received twenty lashes for the theft of a suit of clothes from his employer and another five for stealing some tools.

CHICAGO.—"Standing room only" was hung at the door of the Grand Opera house last night and the night before long before the curtain rose, and the placard was not shown until all the available chairs and sofas in the building had been called into requisition. Hundreds were turned away. The magnet was Mr. Keane. Last night he played "Hamlet," the night before "Richard III."

BOSTON.—The Boston Museum of Fine Arts has become the owner of a very fine slab coming from Nineveh. This piece of Assyrian work is eight feet long by four feet wide and weighs some 1,800 pounds. The whole work is conceived in the boldest of Assyrian art. The date of the work may be placed at 800 B. C.

HEADROOM IN THE BUSES.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—The Voice of the People today contains a letter from Mr. Maurice L. Simons, in which he rather severely criticizes the Chicago Motor Coach company's double deck fully inclosed type of bus on account of its low headroom.

We are in complete sympathy with Mr. Simons in his suggestion that the headroom should be greater. No other feature of our operation has caused the officials of the Chicago Motor Coach company greater concern and worry.

The problem is this: The over-all height of our buses is controlled entirely by the height of overhead structures, such as elevated railway and steam railroad viaducts. In a great many instances, the clearance between the surface of the roadway and the under part of these overhead highway structures is 13 feet.

The floor of our lower deck is laid directly on top of the chassis. The distance between the surface of the roadway and the upper part of the chassis is 28 inches. This allowance for road clearance is necessary in Chicago.

From the 13 foot clearance we make an allowance of one inch for street level variations due to snow and the like, an allowance meager enough, which necessitates unusual care in operation under these structures. Thus we have left 12 feet 11 inches, less 28 inches, or a remainder of 10 feet 7 inches for the construction of the double deck body, including the floor of the upper deck, which takes up another inch. Were we to divide equally the remaining height of 10 feet 6 inches for headroom in the upper and lower decks, the headroom in each case would be 5 feet 3 inches.

Originally, all double deck coaches were of the open top type. Owing to the many requests from our patrons to provide greater protection from the elements, we were prompted to develop a fully inclosed upper deck, at a cost of $307,000, covering 169 units so equipped. The headroom on the lower deck of the open top double deck coaches is 71 inches. For one-half the width of the lower deck of the fully inclosed double deck coaches this same headroom has been preserved by introducing what we call a "step" in the roof, running longitudinally through the center of the ceiling of the lower deck. This same type of steproof construction of fully inclosed upper deck is in operation in New York, London, and Berlin.

For nearly three years we have been working with one of the largest bus manufacturers in the country in a cooperative effort to design and develop a chassis which could be operated with less clearance between surface of roadway and top of chassis. This has proved to be a difficult engineering problem. We hope to solve it. Some progress has been made toward its solution. When solved, it is our purpose to substitute the new type for the present type.

President, Chicago Motor Coach Co.

FROM POSTOFFICE EMPLOYES.

C. A. HOWEY.

AN AUTHORITY.

Elkhart, Ind., Feb. 13.—I lived in Paris several years and can furnish ample proof that the Divine Sarah was not born in Rochester, Ia. Sarah Bernhardt was born in Paris, Oct. 22, 1844. Her father was a French Jew, her mother the daughter of an Amsterdam optician. She was christened Rosine, the name Sarah later being assumed. Her childhood was passed at the home of her Dutch grandfather. Later, the family moved to Paris and Sarah entered a convent at Versailles. At fourteen she almost took the vows of a nun, but reconsidered and entered the Conservatoire to study for the stage.

So, dear Iowans, please do not try to tell us next week that Victor Hugo wrote "Les Miserables" in Sioux City or that Gustave Eiffel built his tower in Dubuque. CHARLES H. MCHUGH.

ANOTHER AUTHORITY.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Chambers' Biographic Dictionary says: "Rosine, called Sarah Bernhardt, a French actress, born in Paris, Oct. 22, 1844, the daughter of a milliner from Berlin by a Havre magistrate, and from 7 was brought up in a convent at Versailles. Entered the Paris Conservatoire in 1860."

JOHN J. BURR.

STILL ANOTHER.

Larchland, Ill., Feb. 13.—Cassell's Biographical Dictionary states that Sarah Bernhardt was the daughter of a French lawyer and a Dutch Jewess. She served as a hospital nurse during the siege of Paris, but after the war she returned to the stage. J. H. W.

A THEORY COLLAPSES.

Marshall, Mich., Feb. 13.—J. M. in today's issue claims that Shakespeare's birthplace was near Rochester, Ia. This is laughable. While touring in England before the world war the writer visited Stratford-on-Avon [England] and on that day the people were celebrating Shakespeare's birthday. While there I visited the place of his birth and the very room. I also spent hours in looking over old files and manuscripts from before Iowa was to be found on the map. The place now is in charge of a historical society. M. JACOBS.

THE BLOOD OF WETS AND DRYS.

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 11.—I noticed, in reading over the names of those members of the legislature at Springfield who voted in favor of the bill to repeal the dry law, that while Italy, Poland, Ireland, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany, and other foreign countries were well represented, there seemed to be only three or four American names, while of those voting against repeal practically all appeared to be Americans. You will find this to be the case quite generally throughout the country. Cut out the foreign element and advocates of repeal wouldn't have a look-in. Better be an American and stand by the constitution. CHARLES L. CARR.

"NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING Has Proved the Most Effective Publicity for MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY"

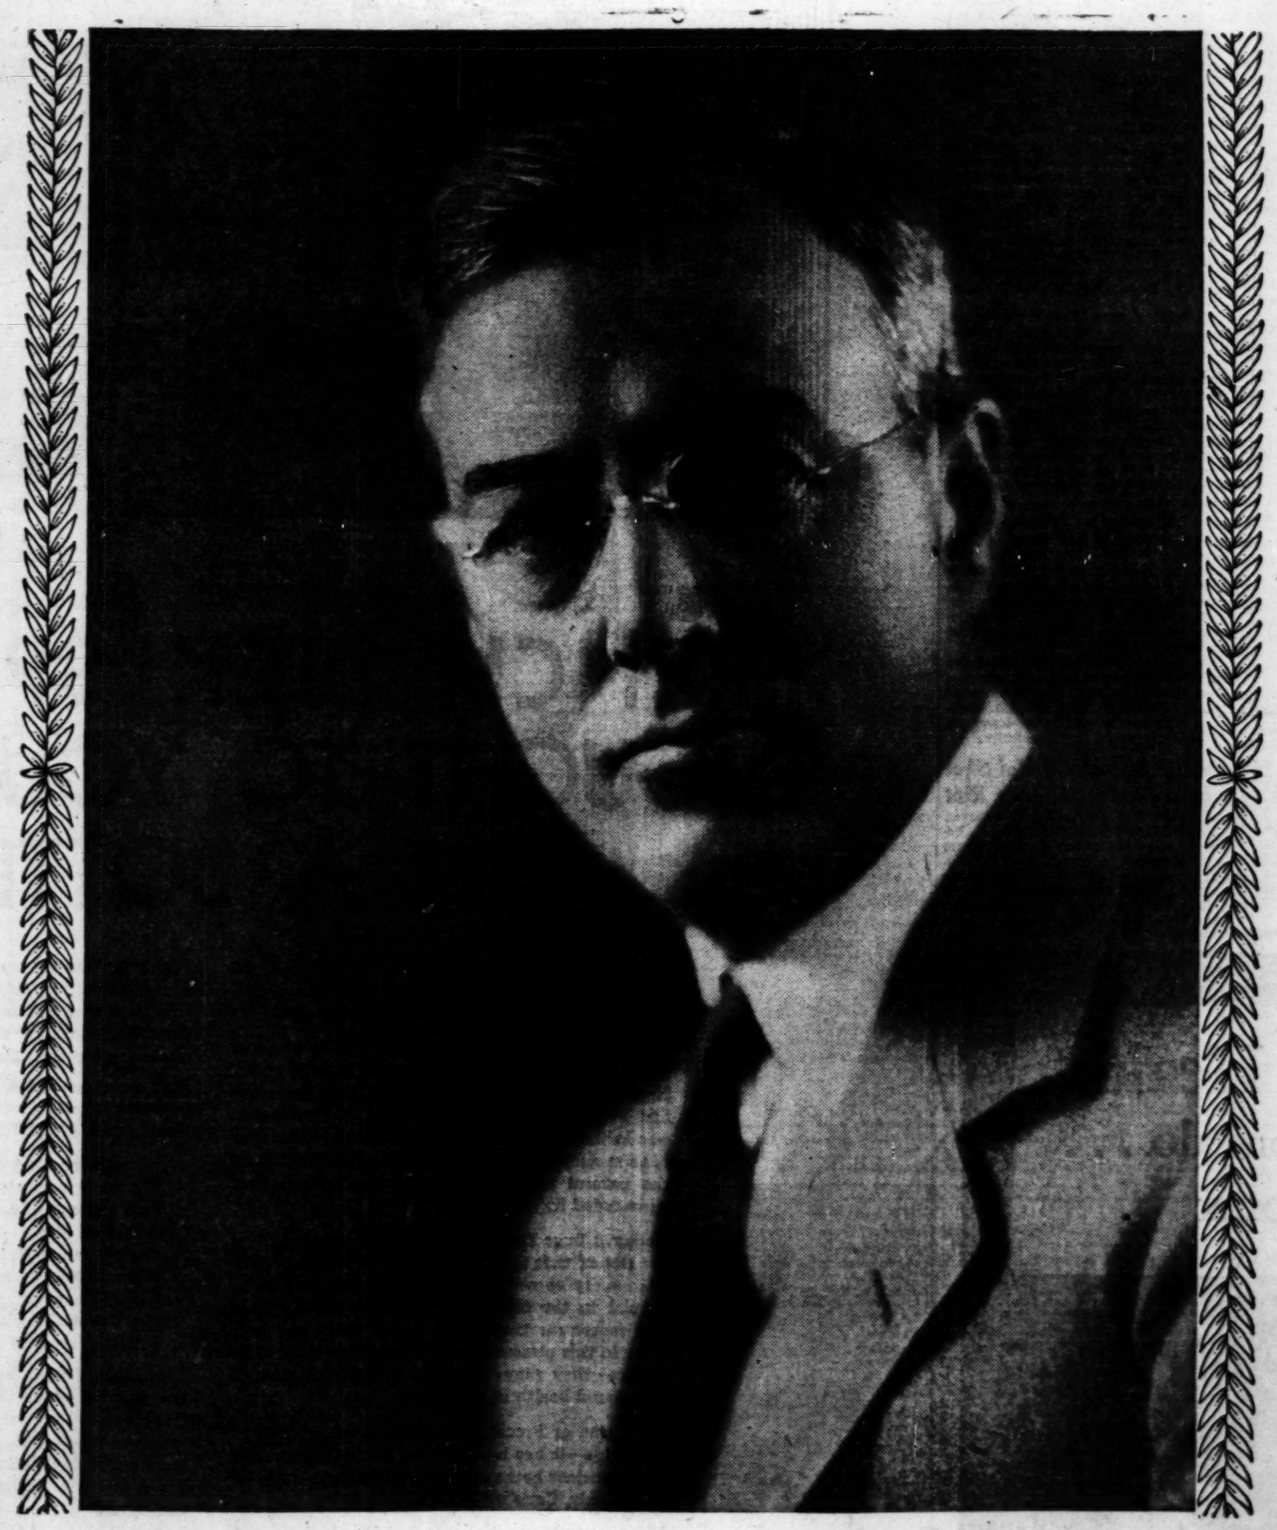
In an address delivered before the Interstate Merchants' Council at Chicago on February 3, 1931



JOHN McKINLAY
President

"ADVERTISING brings the customer and the merchandise together. For this purpose newspaper advertising has proved the most effective publicity for the retail stores of Marshall Field & Company. As a result, we are consistently the largest purchaser of newspaper white space in the west.

"Conceding that a merchant must sell good merchandise correctly styled, fairly priced and courteously presented, he will in our opinion find newspaper advertising the most trenchant of all helps in correctly and profitably disposing of the merchandise.

"The newspapers present the merchant with a large and representative audience, because they constantly are collecting and disseminating the world's news, presenting editorial and educational features, amusements, sports, science, fashions, social gossip, pictures, and domestic science. The newspapers have succeeded in building and retaining the keen interest of practically every one of the thirty million families in the United States. In brief, they reach the public upon a scale of such magnitude that they can afford to distribute the merchant's publicity at a lower cost per one hundred, one hundred thousand, or million than can any other form of successfully demonstrated propaganda."

GANDHI SEES HIS "DEAR FRIEND," BRITISH VICEROY

Predict Peace as Result of Personal Parley.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi and the viceroy of India, the two men who personify the clashing principles at the bottom of all of India's troubles, talked over their differences for four hours today and when Gandhi left the viceregal palace he said he was satisfied, even optimistic.

Lord Irwin, who is all the might of the British empire in India, met the toothless, half-clad little man whose whole life is bound up in the campaign for Indian independence and they called each other "dear friend." It was a strange sort of peace conference.

Gandhi came here from Allahabad at the viceroy's invitation. It was the first time the two men, so oddly assorted, had talked over their mutual problems together. They will have another talk tomorrow, and for as many days thereafter as seems necessary.

Silent on Conversation.

Neither said much about what had passed between them.

The conditions of a settlement, as outlined by the viceroy yesterday to some of his intimates, provide for the granting of nearly all Gandhi's demands if he will call off his civil disobedience campaign and coöperate in working out a constitution for India along the lines of Prime Minister MacDonald's declaration at the end of the London round table conference.

Demand Change in Currency.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The British treasury is faced with a new worry over the Indian exchange. Viceroy Lord Irwin reports that the Bombay mill owners, who are financing the Indian nationalist movement, are demanding that the exchange value of the rupee be reduced to one shilling and four pence from the present rate of one shilling and six pence, at which it was pegged when the gold standard was fixed in 1926. This would reduce the value of the rupee from 37 to 33 cents in United States currency.

The object of this depreciation is to help Indian manufacturers to sell abroad. The treasury's trouble is that this would mean a depreciation of Indian credit and an immense loss to British investors in India.

The Indian treasury is also in trouble over the glut of silver, which is steadily falling in value. Since the introduction of the gold standard the Indian treasury has sold 90,000,000 ounces of silver, but it still has 60,000,000 ounces more than normal in its reserve.

Light Vote Is Cast for Cicero and Berwyn Officials

Candidates for various offices in Cicero and Berwyn were nominated yesterday. The primaries drew a light vote, largely because of the absence of contests for many offices. As an indication of the Cicero vote, only 3,971 ballots were cast for Fred J. Loyda, unopposed Republican candidate for trustee. In Berwyn, City Clerk Emil B. Hurt defeated two opponents for the Republican nomination for mayor. Frank Novotny, Democrat, was unopposed.

BRITISH DIVORCES TAKE A BIG JUMP; MARRIAGES DROP

Decrees Made Easier by Law of 1926.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A striking increase in the growth of divorce is revealed by official statistics for Great Britain in the last twenty years.

There were 3,396 divorce decrees in England and Wales during 1929, and it is anticipated that the number for 1930 will be between 4,500 and 5,000. The official figure for 1913 was 577.

Divorces have become more and more frequent in all parts of the country and among all classes, fewer and fewer petitions have been defended, and there is every indication that the number of decrees made absolute will continue to grow every year until they reach a figure that before the war would have been considered beyond belief.

900 Cases Now Pending.

Decrees granted in the first post-war year totaled 1,654. There was a leap in the figures during 1920 and 1921, and totals then steadied in the neighborhood of 2,500 for five years, but since 1926 there has been a remarkable increase. There are over 900 cases for hearing in London alone during the present law term.

The increase in divorce is to some extent attributable to the order of 1926, which granted jurisdiction in "poor persons" cases to certain high court district registries in England and Wales, the number subsequently being increased. Matrimonial cases thus became triable at Assize courts for the first time in English legal history, and the immediate effect was a vast increase in the number of divorces in the country districts.

Decrees Doubled Since 1920.

In the year following the order the number of divorce decrees increased considerably until the number granted annually at Assize courts alone is more than double the pre-1920 totals for the entire country.

Decrees granted at Assize courts during the last five years have produced an average of 2,000, against a slightly higher figure for the metropolis.

National figures taken as a whole before and after the judicial proceedings act of December, 1926, when full reports of matrimonial cases were made illegal, present an even more remarkable picture. The total number of divorces granted during the five years 1926-1930 was about 17,720, giving an annual average of 3,545.

The previous five years revealed a total of 13,688, an annual average of 2,773, while in the five pre-war years the average was only 582.

Marriages on Decrease.

The number of marriages in 1929 was nearly 80,000 less than in 1920, while no year has shown an increase in the marriage rate in any way proportionate to the increase in divorces.

The percentage of illegitimate births has remained practically the same for twenty-five years.

In spite of the fact that the order of 1926, together with the matrimonial causes act of 1923, has established "easy divorce," there is still widespread agitation for further extension of the law or of legal facilities.

ARABS TO VOTE BOYCOTT OF JEWS IN THE HOLY LAND

Defy New British Policy Toward Palestine.

JERUSALEM, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The president of the Arab executive committee, in a letter addressed to the British high commissioner in Palestine today, says that Prime Minister MacDonald's recent letter to Chaim Weizmann, "interpreting" the Passfield white paper, has rendered any understanding between Arabs and Jews impossible.

In the letter the political and spiritual head of the Arabs writes that "I want to assure your excellency that Mr. MacDonald's letter has ruined hope of a policy of coöperation between Arabs and Jews, if there existed such a hope, and has rendered possibility of understanding between the two parties absolutely impossible.

"Mr. MacDonald's letter not only interprets matters alleged to be ambiguous, but constitutes a new policy of his majesty's government, completely inconsistent with the white paper. I observe his majesty's government is subjected continually to unjustified vacillation and it appears that Mr. MacDonald has not attached more value to the white paper than to a scrap of paper."

The president of the Arab executive committee wrote that the MacDonald letter "entitles the Jewish agency to boycott Arab labor, which is contrary to article 6 of the mandate. I, therefore, am compelled to submit to the Arab executive committee the proposition to boycott all Jews in all matters, following the principles of reciprocation."

In conclusion he says:

"I must, however, leave it to the executive committee of the seventh Arab congress to determine the lines and policy considered consistent with the interests of the country in view of the new policy of his majesty's government."

HOW TO GET PONE INTO POT LIKKER STIRS THE SOUTH

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Whether a southerner should dunk or crumble his corn pone into pot likker tonight had become a heated controversy.

The Atlanta Constitution, advocate of the crumblers called on influential citizens to support "our side."

It all started when the Associated Press in a dispatch from Baton Rouge said the governor had dunked his corn pone into pot likker. The Constitution added a foot note questioning the etiquette of the governor.

Gov. B. M. Miller of Alabama advocates "snap bean pot likker" with biscuits crumbled therein as most pleasing, followed by a glass of cold buttermilk from a "butterheaded" cow.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia wired the Constitution:

"Record me against introducing another likker question to divide the ranks of Democracy."

Gov. W. H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray of Oklahoma asked a truce in the controversy until his favorite dish of hog jowl and poke salad could be investigated.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS— BROUGHT TO YOUR HOME IN A BOTTLE

DOWN in the Cumberland foothills in Indiana lies a pleasant valley that the Indians and the early settlers knew as the home of health.

Here natural health-giving waters bubble up from unknown depths in the midst of a pleasant glade. Here the pioneers came, and here they built the first French Lick Springs Hotel. A rude tavern it was in those early days, yet it was the rendezvous of thousands who came to drink and to carry away the natural mineral waters of the springs that surrounded it.

Today a huge 800-room fireproof hotel stands on the site of that first inn—mecca of health-seekers from every corner of the world—a concrete testimonial to the efficacy of Pluto Water. By train and motor car they come, jaded, tired, surfeited. Here in this pleasant valley they drink those same waters—they play—they leave with the glow of new-found health in their faces.

The fame of French Lick Springs has spread far and wide—it has become even better known than those ancient baths and spas of Europe . . . Wiesbaden, Aix, Carlsbad, Vichy.

Not everyone, however, can find the time, nor perhaps the means, to visit French Lick Springs and enjoy the health benefits that these marvelous natural mineral waters contain.

But thanks to a nation-wide distribution of bottled Pluto Water from French Lick Springs, you can enjoy these same health benefits without going farther than your own corner drugstore!

Pluto Water contains all the essential mineral properties of the famous natural springs at French Lick. It is in effect French Lick Springs in a bottle.

For more than fifty years doctors have prescribed Pluto Water. Not only for constipation, but in the treatment of other, more serious, diseases that have their beginning in the absorption of poisonous waste matters from the intestines.

Both European and American doctors are outspoken in their praise of a saline water laxative. Arthur F. Hurtz, M.D., F.R.C.T., Guy's Hospital, London, says:

"A saline physic does not disturb the digestion like many vegetable purgatives, such as cascara sagrada and castor oil." A prominent American doctor says, "A saline mineral water laxative, such as Pluto Water, dissolves accumulated wastes and gently but surely flushes them out of the system. In my practice I prescribe Pluto Water in preference to irritating types of laxatives."

Thousands of other doctors agree with these authorities about the superiority of a saline water laxative. They all say the same thing: "Salines produce prompt elimination without griping"; "Salines are harmless"; "Saline laxatives stimulate natural bowel action"; "Salines are the best laxatives that can be used".

What better proof that Pluto Water—America's saline water—is the laxative for you?

Go to your druggist today for your supply of Pluto Water!

Keep a bottle or two on the bathroom shelf for emergencies—make Pluto your constant traveling companion—take it each morning upon arising, diluted in plain water, for bad breath, stomach disorders, irregularity. Two sizes—20c and 45c, at all drugstores and fountains.

Protect Your Health the way millions do . . . by using Kotex

WHAT a wonderful thing this modern sanitary protection is! It does more than protect—it actually safeguards health, doctors believe.

Kotex is so much more hygienic than old-time methods. It is so much more comfortable, too. Why, you are scarcely aware of the added protection—it is so well shaped, so soft and light.

Hospitals use it

Many of the greatest hospitals insist on Kotex. And you can have this very same health protection yourself. Kotex is available everywhere—and it costs so little that it simply doesn't pay to take chances.

Kotex is rounded and tapered so it fits perfectly. It deodorizes.

It is soft—a lasting kind of softness that means comfort through hours of wear.

Kotex absorbent—Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding—is laid in many thin, air-cooled layers, which absorb laterally, the full length of the pad, giving greater protection as well as greater comfort.

It may be worn on either side with no danger of possible embarrassment because both sides are fully absorbent.

Doris Blake Advises Girls Affairs of Heart and Home

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1931.

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Dixon Larrabee, head of Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frameup by Owen Gray, neighboring raucher and banker. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young brother, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a doctor. His indulgent older brother has a hard task paying for his college tuition and material demands.

Tom, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch, with a passage to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal hideout for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in Lost valley. Dix's profits mounted steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flyer friend named Frosty arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a competitive plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice, hiding the entrance to Lost valley, seems to them just the place for their work.

Owen Gray's aunt and cousin, Helen, visit the O T ranch. Helen knew Chuck in Baltimore. From what Owen tells her, Helen guesses the true situation involving Dix. Helen and her friend, Josephine Parker, call on Larry—their nickname for Chuck. When she meets Dix it's a case of love at first sight, but Dix believes she is Chuck's girl and avoids her. The girls become frequent visitors at the ranch. Helen probes through Dix's desk and learns a lot about his private business.

Chuck and Frosty buy a plane, which they use for commercial flying to earn money. Chuck complains about cattle being in the shed and trampling on the new airplane's wing. One day they hear a cow bellowing and are unable to discover where the sound comes from. They have a hunt for the cow ghost.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

THE COW GHOST MYSTERY.

"Well, it burns me up to have a thing like that get the best of me," grumbled Chuck. "The girls think we're both darned liars, but if we didn't hear a cow behind that shed, snuffing and trying to get out, I'm a Chinaman!"

"You sure?" Dix flopped over so that he could look at Chuck. However he might feel about it, Chuck's tone required some show of interest from Dix. "The wind plays funny tricks sometimes."

"Well, it didn't play that trick. Hell, don't you think I know the bawl of a cow when I hear it? She had her snoot up against that back wall, and she let out a bellow that lifted us off our feet, what I mean. Of course Frosty made it worse than it was—our beating it outa there and all. We made a hasty exit from the shed, all right. And we took a look around. But we couldn't see anything then, and the sounds quit, so we came on home and thought we'd get you and Mart and go back after supper. Then the girls being here and all, it turned into a ghost party just for the excitement of it." Chuck thoughtfully buttoned his pajama jacket and then helped himself to a cigaret.

"Dix," he said abruptly, "what was the big idea, making a solid back wall to that shed when it's slapped so tight up against that smooth cliff? I should think you'd have either let the rock be the wall, or else built the shed out away from it. Struck me as being kinda funny——"

"Well, there's nothing so funny about it." Dix answered him unmoved. "We had the material for a back wall, and it shuts out the draft of cold air down that cliff. Makes a warmer shed for the hospital bunch in the winter. I should think you'd know that without telling. And it also keeps the snow from sifting into the manger. We've had storms that would bank that shed half full of snow if there was a crack an inch wide for it to sift in. You can't build a snow-tight roof up against rock, you chump."

"As for not setting the shed out in the middle of the corral," Dix went on instructively, "common sense ought to tell you that would give the wind and snow a clear sweep on all four sides. The way it is now, the first snow fills all the little cracks behind the wall and drifts down on the roof—I suppose maybe you noticed that roof's extra strong, and by the way, you put them posts back down the middle when you're through, or Mart'll holler his head off. That's the warmest shed on the ranch in cold weather, especially if we get a good snow."

"Better consult a medium," Dix said dryly.

"O." Chuck sighed and scraped the ash off his cigaret end. "Well, Frosty brought up that point—building a plank wall up against rock—and I just thought I'd ask about it. I know, of course, there must be some reason."

"And a darned good one," commented Dix.

"Yeah. Well, when you're working on a puzzle you don't overlook anything, see." Chuck sighed. "Well, that leaves us both liars on the face of it. A cow or a cat couldn't get behind that shed, that's a cinch. And, damn it, Dix, we heard one there!"

"Better consult a medium," Dix suggested dryly. "They might explain it. I can't."

"That's the way the girls talked. They razzed the very devil out of us all the way home." Chuck sat on the edge of the bed and smoked and stared out at the shadowy yard. "I admit it does sound nutty, but it's a fact, nevertheless. Why, look here! Frosty and I were talking about the distance we could glide with the motor shut off, and a certain device he's got for control. We were arguing about one feature of the control idea. I said it wouldn't work except under power, and he claimed it would, see. And then we heard that sound.

"I thought some critter had got into the shed again. And then it bawled, just like a cow outside, but close against the shed. We ran outside and looked, and there wasn't anything in the corral. The cattle were all down at this end of the pasture feeding around. So we went back inside and we heard it again. It seemed to be back of the shed. I'd have sworn there was a cow back there and so would Frosty. We went outside and looked, and couldn't see anything, and we felt along the back wall, and then because it was getting late and the light was poor we came on home. The noise stopped, anyway. So, believe it or not, that's exactly what happened."

"Huh?" Dix had apparently dozed off in the midst of the story. "How do you account for it?" he added with a yawn.

"That's the devil of it. I can't account for it. I might believe one of us had some form of passing hallucination, but to say we both did at the same moment is too far fetched. The talk we were having was absolutely technical and foreign to the subject of cattle. The imagination theory is all hooey. Nothing to it. There was a cow bawling where it's a physical impossibility for a cow to be. And how are you going to explain a thing like that?"

"I ain't," said Dix. "Crawl into bed and shut up. I'd like a little sleep before it's time to get up and do the chores."

"It burns me up to have a mystery like that wished onto me," Chuck grumbled dissatisfiedly, but he crawled in beside Dix and pulled the covers over his shoulders. "I don't mind the kidding—it's not that—but I'm going to run that damn cow down or know the reason why."

"O, lay off that cow for a minute. I'm plumb fed up on 'er," snorted Dix, and wriggled himself into a more comfortable position for sleep. Mart, Dix thought wearily, must have made a darn good job of plugging that crevice. Chuck could hunt and be darned, he wouldn't find anything. And with that thought he fell asleep.

But the subject could not be dodged when the ghost hunters assembled for a late breakfast. Dix had overslept and was eating with them, and before he had taken two bites Jo was calling him to account in her own fashion.

"And you, Dix Larrabee, walked out on us," she charged sternly. "Where did you conceal yourself last night? It was your party, and then you didn't go."

"No, it was Chuck's," Dix good naturedly contradicted her. "I had a big day's work ahead and I wanted some sleep. I can't hell around all night like you kids can. I'm getting old, remember."

"Why, Dixon Larrabee!" chided Gram. "You're only thirty-five——"

"Aw, have a heart, Gram!" Dix laughed, almost convincingly. "What kinda time you have? Chuck woke me up with a great tale of woe, but I don't know as it sunk in, I was too near asleep."

"The bonfire party was gorgeous," Helen declared, looking him full in the face, "but the ghost hunt was a complete washout. We used your midnight hour and all, and it simply failed to produce so much as a snuffle. How do you account for that?"

"I don't." Dix replied, meeting her eyes with an impersonal look that cost him some will power. A few seconds he held her gaze, then let his eyes wander on in aimless questioning of the faces around the table, coming last of all to Mart, who met his glance with a look as blank as a doll in a show window. "No, I can't account for it," he repeated mildly.

"Well, Frosty and I are going to work up there today and keep an ear open," Jo announced firmly. "Whatever the rest of you say, I'm out to find that ghost of a cow."

"Sounds like swearing," Dix remarked banteringly. "Stay with her, Jo. Put your loop on her before you quit."

"I bet I will," Jo promised grimly. "No cow is going to make my boy friend look foolish if I can prevent it."

Lenten Season Starting Today; New Features

Pastors of Varied Creeds to Write for Tribune.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Today is Ash Wednesday. For Catholics, Greek Orthodox, and many Protestant churches it opens the season of Lent, which lasts until Easter. In Catholic, orthodox Greek, and many Episcopal churches the feature of the day is the service of blessing the ashes. Devout members of those branches of the Christian church will put aside much of their social activity and undertake special rules of life looking toward spiritual development.

In this column there begins today a series of brief Lenten messages by well known clergymen of all faiths, together with devotions they may suggest. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, with his "Call to Lent," opens this new feature for TRIBUNE readers. Tomorrow Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church, Chicago temple, will write his Lenten message. The messages of the various clergymen will be found under the heading, "Lent Day by Day."

Announcements of Lenten services held in the loop and at other central points in various parts of the city will follow the messages. At noon today the Episcopal Church Club of Chicago opens its 20th year of noonday services at the Garrick theater. These services, beginning at 12:10 and closing promptly at 12:35, will be addressed by a series of well known preachers. Bishop James Wise of Kansas is the opening preacher. He will speak at these services the remainder of the week.

The Chicago Church federation, in coöperation with the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago temple, is leading a number of city-wide Lenten activities. Among these is the program of noonday services at the Chicago temple during the last two weeks in Lent. The Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the temple, had announced special services each Wednesday noon, beginning today. He will reach a series of Lenten sermons on the subject, "Selling a Friend."

The Rev. T. F. Conlon, O. P., director of the Holy Name society, will preach a mission at the Holy Name cathedral beginning next Sunday. The services will consist of a mass and instructions. Masses will be offered at the cathedral each week day morning at 6:15, 7, and 7:30. A mass at noon will be held each day. The Dominican Fathers will preach at 8 each evening.

New Orleans Crowns Its King of Merry Makers.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Rex and Comus today gave New Orleans thousands their final thrill of carnival, winding up six days of care-dispelling joy that ended at midnight tonight with the soft peal of the cathedral Lenten bells ringing in Ash Wednesday.

Rex, the mighty monarch of carnival who comes once a year to the metropolis of joy with Comus and Caractacus, the king of the Druids, furnished the highlights of the day's parading.

In twenty magnificent floats Rex unfolded the story of the drama, beginning with the rise of the theater in ancient Greece and running the gamut of the spirit of medieval drama and the Shakespearean era down to the picturesque Mississippi river showboat.

Lent Day by Day

ASH WEDNESDAY

THE CALL OF LENT.
Bishop George Craig Stewart.

"The Master is come and calleth for thee."—St. John xi., 28.

Jesus Christ died on a wind swept hill in the springtide of the year. It was a Friday, and men ever since have called it Good Friday because that crucifixion made clear to them the sacrificial love of God. When the first year of the Christian era had swung round, and the fateful Friday came again, the disciples, moved by tender reminiscences, came together with tears and fasting to keep with special devotions the anniversary of the stupendous event. Little by little the 40 hours of devotion lengthened out to the 40 days of Lent.

Ash Wednesday—a day of complete fast—calls Christians through this gate of drastic self-denial into a season of special sacrifice and penitential devotions. It is good to pause in the whirl of life to mute one's self-esteem, to give up that one may go up, to renounce that one may attain, to deny that one may fully realize himself. Ash Wednesday well kept leads to an Easter of abundant joy.

PRAYER:

O Lord, who for our sake didst fast forty days and forty nights; give us grace to use such abstinence that, our flesh being subdued to the spirit, we may ever obey thy godly motions in righteousness and true holiness to thy honor and glory.

Surgeon Urges Shorter Time for Schooling

Dr. W. J. Mayo Opposes Long Pre-Medical Work.

The present system of medical education is faulty in that it consumes too much of the student's time. So declared Dr. William J. Mayo of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., in an address yesterday before 250 physicians attending the annual congress on medical education, licensure and hospitals under auspices of the American Medical association at the Palmer house.

The period of from two to four years of university study, required of the student before he begins his medical course, dulls the mind and leaves the physician at the comparatively advanced age of 30 years before he begins practicing, Dr. Mayo pointed out. He advocated a substitution of the four quarter system to save the student two years or more in his course.

Moreover, Dr. Mayo questioned the wisdom of the prevailing system of examinations and the inflexible curricula the medical schools offer.

"The body of medical knowledge is so large that an almost superhuman intellect is required to assimilate it," he declared, "Yet the medical student feels he must be sufficiently familiar with various laboratory and clinical specialties to pass examinations in them."

"Unconsciously the instructor wields the medical degree as a club to compel the student to remember the subjects taught by use of a cramming process rather than to allow the student to acquire a thorough understanding of the subject matter."

Earlier contact with patients for the student would be a desirable advance in medical education, Dr. Mayo believes.

The family physician is more often consulted for mental disorders than for all other ailments combined, Dr. H. Douglas Singer, professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois college of medicine, told the congress of physicians.

Unlicensed practitioners do not treat the sick long in Wisconsin, according to Dr. J. Gurney Taylor, Milwaukee, who described the working of the basic science law adopted in Wisconsin in 1925 at the congress.

Wisconsin's basic science law, by which any healing art must pass an examination in the fundamental sciences, has been successful to an unexpected and unhoped for degree in eliminating the uneducated and unlicensed practitioner of medicine.

BOSTON HEARS PLIGHT OF CHILD WORKERS IN CONNECTICUT FIELDS

Boston, Mass., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Hundreds of little children are injured physically and depraved morally by the conditions under which they are forced to work in the Connecticut valley tobacco fields, the legislative committee on public welfare was told by several witnesses today.

One witness, a young college research student who worked in the fields last summer, J. P. Williams of Amherst, told of finding boys and girls as young as nine employed in the fields, under a broiling sun, working so long they were too tired to eat and go to bed at night, and learning filthy language.

A probation worker, he said, found a boy lying under the table at his home too exhausted to eat or undress. He himself found 12 boys crowded into a room 15 feet square, with gunny sacking for mattresses and no sheets. Hygienic conditions there he described as "horrible."

The children range in age from 9 to 19, with many under 12, Williams said.

LUIGI PIRANDELLO'S "Lazzaro," which was given its first American acting by the Goodman theater's company last night, deals with a case of resurrection from death by the injection of adrenalin into the heart. This bit of information should cause the playgoer to prick up his ears and say:

"Well, that's certainly up-to-date and in accord with the latest theories of the medical wise men. Let's have a full report upon this scientific miracle in the drama."

But when you hear that this curious incident merely serves as a peg upon which Pirandello has hung three verbose and motionless acts of religious discussion your curiosity may lose some of its edge. That sort of thing can be overdone in the theater; in fact, among our most successful playwrights arguments over religious faith are taboo, unless agreeably sensationalized with sex problems.

And in "Lazzaro," which might just as well be called "Lazarus," Signor Pirandello, master mind of the modern Italian drama, has overdone the subject in an emphatic manner. He has been as expositional and argumentative and rhetorical as any young pseudo-Ibsen who practiced the thesis drama back in 1908. The play was staged in Italy in 1928, but it sounds as if it might have been exhumed from a trunk that had been in storage for twenty years.

I felt, as I gave patient ear to the long, monotonous speeches with which Pirandello describes the perils of religious fanaticism and the spiritual doubts of his characters, that time had turned backward in its flight. I had an impression that I was attending a session, not of the Goodman repertory company but of Donald Robertson's band of hope, which struggled so earnestly and somberly with the deeper, duller aspects of the literary drama a full generation ago.

The central character, a certain Diego, householder and farm owner in some remote section of Italy, is a zealot who has ravaged his family life with the austerity and religious fanaticism of his temperament. [As acted, with smoldering reserve, by Harry Mervis, he bears a resemblance to portraits of Abraham Lincoln.] His wife has left him to become the mate of a peasant. His son is an anemic, depressed student for the priesthood, ready to renounce the cassock. His daughter is a hopeless paralytic.

This man is so insistent upon fine points of theology that when a physician experiments with adrenalin upon his daughter's dead rabbit and brings it back to life he will not permit the invalid to keep her pet. It was dead; therefore, he argues, the renewal of its existence is contrary to the will of God.

Then he goes out upon the highway in a fury over his son's renunciation of the priestly vocation—and is swiftly slain by an automobile. That ends the first act. In the second act he is still on earth, thanks to adrenalin; but he has no memories of the future life during his brief sojourn across the border. Therefore, he thinks, there is no heaven, because he had been confident of immediate admission into Paradise. So his religious faith crumbles and he is in a terrible state of mind.

He runs amuck with a gun trying to kill his wife's paramour—a temptation that he had formerly resisted. He has jumped the reservation of his faith in immortality; and it's his night to howl. . . . But his son decides to return to the priesthood; his crippled daughter, under the emotional stress of the episode, arises from her wheel chair and walks. He accepts these incidents as genuine miracles, proof of the existence of God, and regains his religious faith.

The wife also figures importantly in the speech making as Pirandello's mouthpiece for the salutary influence of a return to nature. She is the anti-zealot of the drama, and eloquently voices the author's point of view, which in Italy is regarded, no doubt, as radical and anti-clerical. The rôle is acted by Gladys Parvis, a newcomer at the Goodman, with a certain degree of persuasiveness. She has acquired a slight Italian accent which is not out of the Pirandello picture.

"Lazzaro" is bleak with religious discussion. Its mood seems Spanish rather than Italian; at any rate, I have an impression that Italians take their spiritual life much more cheerfully than the austere Diego. The play itself needs a shot of adrenalin to the heart.

J. P. Morgan's Relative Urges Housewives to Spend More Freely

A great-granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton, also a niece of the present J. Pierpont Morgan, urged women yesterday to take an interest in the unemployment troubles. She was Mrs. Arthur Wood, wife of the chairman of the women's division of President Hoover's emergency committee for employment.

"The housewife's dollar may be yet the magic key to unlock the locked industrial issue," Mrs. Wood said. "Eighty-five per cent of all the buying power in the country is in the hands of women in the homes. The solution of the employment problem is not solely a man's affair.

"It is up to women householders to give the unemployed odd jobs this spring in a 'spruce up' campaign. Women should take an inventory of their home, their wardrobe, the room that can stand going over."

Quoting from a report of the committee made public yesterday, Mrs. Wood told of the committee's recommendation that married women whose husbands are employed should not be discharged during a period of depression.

"This does not commend itself as sound from a business point of view or desirable from a social point of view," she quoted.

Some British Bishops Favor Sunday Movies Under Certain Control

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Support for Sunday movies came from an unexpected quarter today. A council of bishops and free church leaders, meeting to consider social questions, proposed that motion picture shows on the Sabbath be placed on a sort of local option system.

Their suggestion is similar to the terms of a measure now under consideration by the government for modification of the ancient Lord's Day act to permit certain Sunday amusements.

The bishops' council stipulated that there should be no Sunday operations for commercial profit, the Sunday films should be carefully supervised, and theater employes should not be required to work seven days a week.

Rotary Club Recalls 26 Years of Life; Celebrates Success

The 26th anniversary of the Chicago Rotary club, parent organization of all Rotary, was celebrated yesterday at the Hotel Sherman.

Ten of the oldest members of the club were decorated with service badges. Rowland Haynes, president of the club, and secretary of the University of Chicago, presided, and delivered the principal address.

The founding of the Chicago Rotary club inaugurated a world-wide organization. Last summer Rotary International celebrated its silver jubilee, the celebration being held in the summer instead of on the anniversary date so as to conform with the annual convention.

Homesick British Actress Quits Roles in Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 17.—[Special]—Edna Best, English actress who was recently brought here to play as John Gilbert's leading woman in "Cheri Bebe," talkie vehicle now being filmed, fled from the set today and sent a note stating she was going back to England. Her note stated: "Please forgive me. I am awfully homesick and I am just afraid I won't be good in the picture. I am going back to my husband in London." Leila Hyams will fill Miss Best's rôle.

Styles of 1906 Recall Wedding of Longworths

When Alice Roosevelt Became Bride.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—"Princess Alice" of twenty-five years ago, pompadour and all, stepped today, from her page one frame of all Feb. 17, 1906, newspapers, for her silver wedding anniversary.

"Costumes of 1906" were required of all guests invited to dinner tonight at the Longworth home on Massachusetts avenue, or those who were to "drop in afterward."

Instead of her own elaborate wedding gown she chose to wear a rich gown of old gold satin which was part of her trousseau. And instead of her "enveloping wedding veil of misty tulle held by a coronet of orange blossoms," she topped her 1906 pompadour with a contemporarary diamond tiara, and bolstered it at the back with a 1906 barrette.

But she wore the jewels of her wedding day—the necklace of diamonds that was the gift of the groom; the diamond brooch, sapphire centered, which was the "something blue," and the rare barcelet that was the wedding gift from the then emperor of Germany.

Of those who were actors in that elaborate midday White House pageant of 25 years ago, few were in Washington today to join with the Longworths. But among the thousand guests present at the wedding, there were many to say to Mrs. Longworth: "I remember what a picture you made, coming down the main staircase with your father."

No maid of honor nor bridesmaids shared the spotlight with her in that formal wedding of the Roosevelt administration. She was accompanied only by her father, the President, who made no audible answer to the question of who was giving her away, but placed her hand in that of Nicholas Longworth. The groom, however, had a best man and eight ushers.

Of that noon scene, where bride and groom stood between the Roosevelt clan to the left of the platform, the Longworth clan to the right, the Washington Evening Star related:

"All the shades were drawn down to exclude the daylight, and from hundreds of softly shaded electric lamps a perfect light was diffused through the room."

Nicholas Longworth now has in his own office on the house side of the capitol the enormous electric crystal chandelier under which he and Alice Roosevelt stood to be married.

They were a nonchalant couple. Of Longworth it was related he came early, calmly took a look at the floral decorations, giving prompt guests a chance to observe his wedding attire of Prince Albert coat, white vest, pearl gray tie, moonstone scarfpin, boutonniere of a single white blossom, pearl tint gloves. And the guests addressed him as "Nick."

Among the presents in 1906 were rare fabrics dating far back into Chinese history, in designs which cannot be duplicated. There were a tapestry from the president of France, embroideries, and two chased silver vases from the emperor of Japan, a diamond and pearl pendant from the emperor of Austria, a mosaic table from the king of Italy, a mosaic of a Vatican painting from the pope, antique jewelry from the king of Spain. There also was a team of horses valued at $15,000 from the citizens of Cincinnati.

Little Paulina Longworth, 6 years old on Valentine's day, had a chance to see how people dressed when her mother and father were married.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Time! We're always talking about it! But unfortunately we seldom talk about having it. Usually it's our lack of it that we dwell on.

"I haven't time for this" and "I haven't time for that," or "I'm always so rushed," are words on our lips or thoughts in our minds. This, even under ordinary circumstances.

Then, if a second baby comes along and we have no maid or nurse, the lack of time begins to get on our nerves—that is, if we're not strong, or if we're not masters of ourselves. And then our patience is apt to go completely to the dogs.

If we're late with the lunch, or hurrying with the baby's wash, have to bathe two children and get dinner, or if the mending is staring us in the face, it's hard to be patient with a little thing that's under our feet and who has no sense of time.

For small children have no sense of time. They may hear you say you're in a hurry—they may hear you talk of not having time, but they can't realize it. Their lives are so differently organized from ours with their many interests but no duties.

It's hard to be patient when a child doesn't give you instant obedience; when he asks you "why?" when he wants you to look at something he's done; when he tries to hold your flitting attention; or needs a friendly, quiet, leisurely word to brighten the tiresome washing, or putting away of toys. It's hard to be patient about these things if you're rushed, rushed, rushed.

It's easier, really, to be irritable and impatient and cross. That is, it's easier at the moment. But it's harder for your child and harder, eventually, for you. And it accounts for many of the troubles a mother has with her little children.

Impatience, hurry—these are two destructive elements in dealing with children. Do avoid them. It takes time to be patient. If you haven't the time—make it, steal it, take it.

If you haven't the temperament—create it. It's possible for an impatient person, and I speak from experience, to develop the habit of patience and a measure of serenity with her children merely because she desires it so intensely.

Military Note to Sound More in Local Society

BY THALIA

IT'S a strange thing about Chicago that there isn't quite the degree of fashionable concern about diplomatic, military, and naval representatives stationed here that exists in most other cities.

I don't mean that consuls general and army and navy officers aren't invited about to social affairs, because they are, but there is no established custom of including them in the social scheme. I'm inclined to believe that those of them who are so included can attribute the fact to their own personalities rather than to any taken for granted courtesy on the part of the citizenry.

Of course, we don't have a lot of the elaborate rigmarole of precedences and "at home" days and such things as there are in Washington, for example, and that foster the prestige of the ambassadorial and military, but, nevertheless, the more traveled of our gentry admit that Chicago society is a little lacking in cosmopolitanism in this respect.

Brig. Gen. McCloskey Plans Military Shows at Fort Sheridan.

A year or so ago, when Rear Admiral and Mrs. Craven were at Great Lakes, they made a quite successful effort to have reciprocatory sociabilities with their numerous Lake Forest and Chicago friends by a series of skating parties at the Great Lakes armory. And now Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey and Mrs. McCloskey for several seasons in social circles are planning a series of invitation military exhibitions at Fort Sheridan, the main purpose of which is to get civilians acquainted with what is going on at that post.

The first of the series of such affairs is to be given on Saturday at the Riding hall of Fort Sheridan, and afterward the officers and their wives are to be hosts at a tea-dance at the Officers' club. The limited capacity of the hall necessitates that admission be "By card only."

It sounds like a great show, too. There will be stunts by the cavalry, infantry, field artillery, and coast artillery, with an aircraft defense exhibit, with miniature planes soaring aloft in the gleams of big searchlights, to wind up with.

The "monkey drill" that thrilled everybody at the military show at Soldiers' field last year, and some of the daredevil riding by the crack troop which performed also at the Fort Sheridan horse show last June, will be done and will be more exciting than ever executed in less extensive space.

St. Luke's Benefit Fashion Show Set for Oct. 20.

We can begin looking forward to another St. Luke's fashion show now, because the date for the next one has been set—Oct. 20—and it's to be at the Stevens ballroom again. Lots of people think the fashion show is always the very best benefit of the season, and it is most certainly one of the most successful. It was a happy thought when the women's board of the hospital hit upon the scheme and carried the first one out so well, because now within a few years it has achieved the proportions of a social institution. Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the board, gave out the date before she left last Saturday for a month in Cuba.

You may be able to accelerate the conversation if you know . . . that Count Jan Drohojowski and his bride (there has been lots in the papers about their marriage in Tulsa a week or so ago, she being only 17 years old and an heiress) were at Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum's party last week, and everybody thought they were darling . . . that Mrs. E. R. Fifield has gone into the real estate business and has sent out letters saying she is "prepared to sell or rent houses and apartments, furnished and unfurnished" . . . that while the Sterling Mortons are in Honolulu work is going forward on their new 90 foot yacht, the successor of the Volante, which won several of the yacht races last summer . . . that Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris and Mrs. Charles Yeomans are to be hostesses at the College club's affair next Monday night, when Mrs. Patrick Campbell gives her speech on "Beautiful Speech and the Art of Acting," the same one that she gave at the Arts club last week.

Also . . . that the English Speaking union invitations for the dinner for and lecture by Dame Rachel Crowdy at the Blackstone on the 26th were in the mail yesterday . . . that Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smith of 225 Fullerton parkway and Miss Charlotte Robertson, who is making her residence with the Smiths, are to take the Malolo boat train tonight for a Honolulu trip . . . that Mrs. Daniel Peterkin and her mother, Mrs. Knight of the Lake Shore drive, are taking the same train and are to be in California for a week before sailing (Miss Jeanette, who is visiting out there, will join them for the trip).

Junior League Conference to Be Held in Indianapolis.

Junior league bulletin . . . Helen Tieken, Margaret Sinclair, and Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord have gone down to Indianapolis to represent the Chicago league at the regional conference held there on Monday, yesterday, and today. Miss Tieken is leading all the theater groups, and Mrs. Hord is conferring with the other arts and interests groups. Also, the league is sending a part of its "Chauve Souris" up to Milwaukee for performances at the Children's theater on Saturday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Milwaukee league. "Little Black Sambo," the Shadow dance, "Mary Had a Little Lamb," "The March of the Wooden Soldiers" are going, and Jean La Chance is to do a tap dance and Marcia Masters a ballet number.

The Evanston Junior league announces an exhibit of Mary Ann Dicke's Currier and Ives prints at the Maisonette during this and next week. Subjects included in the exhibit are "Home for Thanksgiving," "Cares of a Family," "The Last War Whoop," and "Winter Scenes."

Palm Beach Gets Premiere of "Goose," Gotham Editor's Play

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Muriel McCormick, founder of the Palm Beach playhouse, went a step farther along the theatrical highway tonight. Her theater gave the first performance of "Goose," written by Malcolm Ross, New York editor, for Maria Ouspenskaya, Russian actress, who plays the leading rôle. There will be six performances here.

The star was one of the original cast of the Moscow Art theater, when she maintained she could interpret any language to American playgoers by means of pantomime. Tonight's presentation was in English. "Goose" is Ross' first play, but Miss McCormick was ill and so unable to attend.

"Goose" is a satirical melodrama of mystery and intrigue in the south seas.

PALM BEACH SOCIETY

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Farley Hopkins, Mrs. Daniel Winter, Mrs. Champ Carry and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, who are visiting Mrs. H. Picket Withers near Winter Park, Fla., spent yesterday and part of today in Palm Beach, making the round trip by motor. They were the guests of Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., who took them to the Bath and Tennis club during the forenoon and who gave a small tea for them at the Everglades club during the afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Burrows of Chicago is now the house guest of Mrs. Jelke, who expects her brother-in-law, Mr. F. Frazier Jelke, and his bride, who are on a West Indies cruise, to arrive in Palm Beach during the coming week.

Robert Rasumssen has gone to Havana to join a group of friends who are staying in the Cuban capital.

Vincent Bendix gave a supper party at the Colony club last night for his house guests, Caleb S. Bragg of New York and Mr. I. Newton Perry, Howard F. Gillette and Dr. E. W. White of Chicago. The guests included Mrs. Chance Vought, Mrs. Robert H. McAdoo, and Mrs. Jules Glaenzer.

Among those who attended the premier of "Goose," the new Malcolm Ross play, at the Palm Beach playhouse tonight were Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean and her house guest, Miss Doris Duke; Mrs. Averill Thompson, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Le Roy Dow, and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge II., who are now in Havana, are returning to Palm Beach this week-end. They will give a luncheon, tennis, swimming and bridge party on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Thomas will give a dinner party on Sunday night in honor of their guests, Mrs. John R. Thompson of Lake Forest and Mr. Frederick Hinkins of Paris.

Vicountess Henri de Frise gave a tea this afternoon in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Hamilton Pell, and Princess Alexis Obolensky. Among the guests were Mr. Addison Misner, Mrs. John Emerson (Anita Loos), Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw.

Classic Simplicity Is Parisienne's Choice

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special correspondence.]—Nine out of ten evening frocks seen this season on really smart Parisiennes at the theaters and night clubs à la mode, as well as in the palaces and casinos of the Côte d'Azur, are draped on simple classic lines, with hems that escape the floor if they do not actually show the ankle.

Favorite fabrics are chiffon velvet, stiff or crêpe satin or soft, lack lustre crêpes.

These simple gowns are accompanied by long suede gloves to match and enlivened by rich parures of rubies or emeralds set in diamonds.

A full godet inserted into the front of the skirt suggests an Egyptian silhouette, though the frock is essentially modern. Two shorter godets and cunning circular cutting make the skirt smartly voluminous toward the hem.

The necklace and earrings are of cabochon sapphires and diamonds.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A Call for Help.

"I have never had to ask for help before, but my husband has rheumatism and has been out of work for a year. I haven't been able to work for the last six months because I fell and injured myself. We haven't been able to pay our rent since August and have had no gas or electricity for months. I need a winter coat and a bit, underwear, size 42, and a pair of shoes, size 7. Can you get them for me? R. O."

In addition to the customary cry of unemployment this family must bear with illness, too. If the woman could secure this clothing she needs so badly it would relieve the situation

All-Illinois Permanent Art Show Is Opened

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE first permanent exhibition to be hung by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has just opened at the Stevens hotel. It is a brilliant show. Without qualification we can say this is a particularly good show, made up of many fine pictures by many of our gifted Illinois artists. For instance, there is Wellington J. Reynolds, a painter of distinction of whom we have seen too little in the last several seasons. Here he is represented by the painting which won the silver medal in the Paris Salon in 1926. A beautiful painting this is, in the manner that Mr. Reynolds invented—one could call it his invention, a rather mosaic-like manner of getting his values—a painting beautiful for its lighting and for the charming figure of the nymph at whom Pan is peering with delight.

Karl Plath has a strikingly effective decorative panel of a bird with long green tail feathers that perches on a brown branch in the center of long, slim green leaves. Stark Davis offers us another bird, decorative, too, but flat and old in comparison with Karl Plath's warm bundle of feathers.

There are many gorgeous still life paintings. Kate A. Townsend has an exquisite and delicate composition; Edithe Jane Cassady offers a more vivid and glowing, though no more beautiful, canvas; Kathryn Cherry sounds a change by painting both the gay flowers inside and the boats and sea outside the window. Edgar Cameron offers a lovely, tender landscape with sheep and windmill. Glamen has a superbly comfortable cat. Robert Kilbert shows his stunning painting of two horses pulling a heavy load from the wet margin of a tranquil lake.

One delightful study of yellow roses against a brown background, by G. F. Firestone, particularly intrigues the attention when it is discovered that the picture is hung on its side. Right side up, one cannot but think, would be just as effective and just as lovely. Buell Mullen offers a good moment with his painting of a foreign town with its long sea wall to which boats are tied, and its little houses, red and orange roofed, creeping leisurely up the hill toward the veiled blue French sky.

All in all, the exhibition is filled with paintings whose mention is limited only by lack of space. It will remain on view for several weeks and is well worth a visit.

Food Talk.

Not many cooks need to be told that chives are those grassy-green bunches of miniature onionlike plants sold at all grocers in tiny flower pots. But do they make good use of them in the preparation of their salads, especially at this time of the year? Not to my knowledge. Chives come to the consumer in a convenient form. They should be left in the pots in which they come until the last one is used. One should cut only as many as are required for the food that is being prepared. The pot should be put in a cool place and water should be added every few days. I find my kitchen a poor place to keep chives. It is evidently too warm and causes the tips of the blades to dry up.

The flavor of chives reminds one of both garlic and onions, but is much more delicate than either and so pleasing that they appeal to even those who have a strong aversion to garlic and onions.

One of the most popular uses of chives is with cottage cheese. The washed chopped leaves and stems are added to the cheese that is first seasoned with salt, pepper, and cream. This cheese may be served as the main protein food or as a salad. Chives are also an excellent addition to French or mayonnaise dressings or as one of the main constituents of sandwich mixtures. If you haven't the chives habit, the following recipes should get you started.

STRING BEAN SALAD.

Marinate 2 cups cold string beans with French dressing. Add 1 teaspoon of finely cut chives. Pile in the center of a salad dish and arrange around the base thin slices of radishes overlapping one another. Garnish top with radish cup to represent a tulip.

TOMATO AND CUCUMBER SALAD.

Arrange alternate slices of tomato and cucumber until 6 slices have been piled one on top of another. Place on lettuce leaves, garnish with finely chopped chives. Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise.

VINAIGRETTE SAUCE.

1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. paprika
Few grains pepper
1 tbsp. tarragon vinegar.
2 tbsp. cider vinegar
6 tbsp. olive oil
1 tbsp. chopped green pepper
1 tbsp. chopped cucumber pickle
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. finely chopped chives

New Place in Sun Likely for Crocodile God of Old Egypt

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—As a result of the excavations under the auspices of the Italian archaeological mission at Tebtynis [the modern Fayum] archaeological scholars will now be able to reconstruct the ritual of the strange cult of ancient worshipers of the crocodile god.

The principal sanctuary of the town, which was sacred to Sekneptynis, a crocodile god, has been discovered. Identification was rendered certain by a Greek inscription carved on one of the altars.

A limestone kiosk similar to that at Philae already has been cleared. Although there is only the lower part remaining, the building is interesting because of its unusual type.

South of the kiosk is a paved court flanked by four buildings, all exactly alike, constructed of mud and brick, for some ritual purpose.

Oracles were a feature of the temples of the crocodile god. At the entrances to two of these buildings are statues of lions and sphinxes. Other lions and sphinxes, ten altogether, adorn the courtyard. There are also four altars at the sides of the courtyard. At the end of this sacred way is the principal temple, made of limestone.

Canada Accepts Memorial, from Its Sons in the U. S.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Plans for a memorial to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of confederation, to be presented to Canada by native sons residing in United States, have been approved by the department of works. Dr. R. T. McKenzie, Philadelphia, Pa., commissioned to prepare designs, has submitted a drawing which was acceptable to the departmental engineers. The memorial will be placed in the central hallway of the house of commons.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Decorative Safety Pin.

I had attended a luncheon and was late getting home. My husband and I were invited to a dinner party that evening. In my haste I picked up what I thought was my bar pin and pinned it on without looking, as my husband was waiting for me.

We arrived on time and were seated in the living room with other guests when I discovered that I had a big safety pin on the front of my dress.

It surely was a most embarrassing moment for me. S. C. L.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

The side closing of this Russian blouse is particularly desirable, both from a fashion point and for its slenderizing effect. Black Canton crêpe with white crêpe is chic, and so is a tweed in a monotone mixture in turf green or rust red. Wildfire red crêpe silk is another good idea, with self material collar.

The pattern, 2942, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch contrasting and 1⅛ yards of 35 inch lining.

Massage, in Time, Will Save That Sagging Jawline

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A gray hair and a sagging jawline—and it's pretty nearly "Goodnight" to hope of any more romance. At least, that's the way it works on the average one confronted with the dread symptoms. Not that gray hair carries any such menace in itself—but when you get it and the sagging jawline coming on together, that's when the heart is robbed of hope.

Gray hair, you see, calls for better and better complexion and neck care; better face care in every particular. The fewer lines or sags you have, the better you can wear gray hair triumphantly. Always I think it is a great pity that gray hair does to woman what it does psychologically, because when it tops a fresh face, a pair of fine eyes and well rounded cheeks, it has a distinction that other hair never quite achieves.

So it is the sagging jawline that has to be watched. It should be caught in its most incipient stage. It can be seen in that stage quite clearly, too. Sagging doesn't happen overnight, so women cannot claim they did not have time to be forewarned. The tone of the cheek muscles are lax some time before the actual sagging occurs.

At about 35 one should keep an eye out for signs. Actual sags may not show until years later, but the lax muscles may be felt early. That's the time to take a massage and astringent remedies—not after the lax muscles and tissue have gone to seed. It's a pretty hard job working that overhanging flesh back into place again, once it has slipped down over the jawbone.

Only a cosmetic surgeon may be able to save the face, if it is left too late—and here you take your fate in your own hands. Not that many of these operations are not successful; not, goodness knows, that they're not being performed by the thousands upon thousands—but you never can tell just how this lax skin condition is going to react after the lifting operation.

Now, one thing sure is that women who have the nightly massage habit are not exposed to the sliding cheek menace. They have firmed the muscles so they won't slide.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

D. R. M.: A DRY SKIN NEEDS special care during the winter months. Olive oil or almond oil may be used for washing the face. These oils cleanse and leave a protecting film. There are good creams for the purpose, too. Leave a film of cream on overnight. My booklet on the skin may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

Authors Offer Opera Based on "Hiawatha"

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"MANABOZO," an American opera, with book by Francis Neilson and score by William Lester, both of Chicago, was given a demonstration in concert form under the auspices of the Chicago Artists' association at Curtiss hall last evening.

Under the circumstances it was impossible to present the entire work. Mr. Neilson told the story of the libretto and how it came to be written. It is an Indian work, based on the Ojibway legends that include the story of Hiawatha, and is the first part of a trilogy to be called "The Wampum Belt." It was written at the time that Antonin Dvorak was in this country and was declined by him on the ground that he wanted an oratorio instead of an opera, which apparently he never got. At any rate, as Mr. Neilson explained, "Manabozo" has lain fallow ever since until Mr. Lester went to work on the music.

Mr. Lester then took the stage to explain his part of the work and to give a piano performance of the prelude and ballet music. Following this came a series of scenes and arias sung by Margaret Lester, Isabel Richardson Molter, Ethel Heide Wishowver, Leonard Huber, and James Fiske, a chorus by the three senior choirs of the New First Congregational church, and the final hymn to Hiawatha by the ensemble.

In spite of the Indian subject, Mr. Lester would seem to have yielded scarcely at all to the temptation to use Indian themes in his music. This in itself should be to set him apart from nearly all other American operatic composers, most of whom have written an Indian opera or two and generally with Indian themes thrusting angular points through their scores. Instead he has composed in an entirely personal and fluent manner. The first four arias were in a good deal the same tempo, and consequently in a good deal the same mood, but this was, possibly, due to their being excerpts and lacking the contrasting material between to set them off from each other.

Engagement Ring Not Vital to Real Happiness, Y'Know

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The question arises over the engagement ring; or, to be more exact in this case, over the lack of one. But it resolves itself into this:

Does there have to be a ring before a couple need feel in any way the confidence, or the proprietary interest, if you like, that is generally associated with its appearance on the scene?

It's funny what sticklers some women are for convention in one thing, yet in another can easily adjust themselves to circumstances. This is true with engagement rings. Not all girls are so, of course. But so deeply ingrained in others is the conventional course of premarriage behavior that if a ring is not forthcoming—there just isn't any engagement.

A couple can become just as thoroughly engaged and as completely engaged without a ring as with it. They can go ahead and make their future plans with just as much confidence without the solitaire as with a five thousand dollar one. Certainly, it is nicer to have one than not, if the possession of one matters. In fact, it is one of the conventions we, along with jewelers, hope holds out for many a long day.

But suppose circumstances are against its possession. Suppose the young man has all he can do to get the wedding and honeymoon apartment expenses together, in this boasted era of looking money facts squarely in the face. What of it if the ring purchase has to be postponed until the ship comes in later? It isn't going to make a couple one bit less happy, unless it is allowed to affect the situation.

There are substitutes for the expensive solitaire that a good many girls ride into most successful marriage on, such as a birthday stone or an artistically designed ring of inexpensive stone and mounting. The solitaire is, in a manner of speaking, a public proclamation. Nor does any one deny the lucky ones their pleasure in exhibiting theirs. But it does not represent any more than a convention, a proclamation and a great deal of pride and pleasure. One's plans for marriage may be conducted just as conscientiously and just as hopefully and with just as much faith in their success without the "blinder" as with it.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Unkind to Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow and he loves me, but I am always unkind to him even though he treats me with the greatest consideration. Kindly advise. J. A. T."

He may love you now, but he won't continue to love you unless you can be thoughtful.

Find Other Friends.

"Dear Miss Blake: I've gone out with a fellow four months. He says he loves me but will not take me out now. He tells me to wait till later on. PEGGY."

One can't wait indefinitely. He's too selfish.

SHAMROCKS WIN FROM ROAMER SEXTET, 1 TO 0

Taylor Scores in the Second Period.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A point, registered by Bouncer Taylor in the second chapter, was sufficient to promote a victory for the Shamrocks last night at the Stadium in an American Hockey league game with the one time Minneapolis Millers, who, now being homeless, are termed the Roamers. The lone point was the sole achievement in a game that might have been far more productive if both goalies, Sam Timmins and Porky Levine, hadn't guarded with unusual skill.

The affair dragged badly at times, and some of the 8,000 spectators voiced complaints, but before the finish they were rewarded with some real competition, featured by stick waving, numerous penalties, and one demonstration of punching. In the aggregate the rough-housing was about equally divided, but so far as actual hockey skill was concerned the Chicagoans had a shade far bigger than indicated by the score.

About five minutes of the scoreless first period elapsed before the performers warmed up. During these minutes random shots from center ice appeared to be the most popular, especially with the Roamers. The first bit of real action appeared when Gordon and Burns waved their sticks menacingly in a scramble against the fence. Both were sent to the jail house to cool out.

Just as the two banished athletes returned, Wiseman nursed the puck the length of the rink and when about ten feet from Porky Levine's net turned loose a line drive. It bounced off Porky's shin. A bit later Brydson conducted a similar expedition in Chicago's behalf but a short thrust was poorly aimed.

Burns Loses Puck.

Burns also lost an excellent opening when, after he had eluded the two Minneapolis defense men, the puck suddenly started to roll away from his stick. The Roamers' best scoring bid came after 14 minutes of play when Coutu got out in front of the Shamrocks' net and helped himself to a free shot. In some way Goalie Timmins deflected it.

The second session was mainly a matter of skating practice, until, with four minutes gone, Munro of the Roamer defense was ousted for tripping. While he was serving his sentence the Chicagoans began the jamming that eventually brought them their score. The first of these sallies sent Mulligan down the ice with the button. He took a close-up shot and it bounced back off Goalie Levine. It stopped in front of the net and Brydson tried to jam it in, but by this time the Minneapolis defense had come to the goalie's rescue.

Levine Fined $15.

The Shamrock scoring episode apparently aroused the pride of the bulky Levine. A bit later when the Chicagoans came back with another bid for a point Levine clouted Brydson on the face. Referee O'Hara halted play long enough to let the crowd know that Levine would be assessed $15 for his exhibition.

When the second period was about half gone the visitors lost both Gordon and Carbol. With the enemy in straightened circumstances Burns, Headley, and Wiseman had the puck beating a tattoo against Levine's chest and shins, but nothing resulted.

Toward the end of the chapter Burns was sentenced to the penalty box and while he was absent the Roamers turned loose a real attack but Goalie Timmins' agility avoided embarrassment.

Shamrocks Lose Three.

The Chicago boys got into a tight spot in the middle of the third chapter when Brydson, Burns and Headley were put in the penalty box at the same time. Under American league rules the Shamrocks were permitted to replace one of these men.

With only four of the Chicagoans present, the flashy Johnson made two charges right up to the home net, but Timmins repulsed both thrusts. Then after another mixup in front of Chicago's goal, Gordon shot the rubber into the webbing while Goalie Timmins was stretched on the ice. What would have been the tying point was disallowed on the referee's contention that Gordon had kicked the rubber over the red line.

The lineup:

Training Camps Are Nice for Players—but What of Owners?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—When at this season of the year I see again in the papers those photographs of the ball players in overcoats, grinning and waving to the station porters over the tailboards of the more expensive railroad trains, bound away for their spring training in the semi-tropics of the southern states, then I feel a kind of admiration for those club owners who maintain this expensive extravagance year after year on borrowed money.

One spring, not many years ago, one of the major league proprietors was forced to hypothecate his life insurance to freight his employés south, maintain them there in something close on to luxury and bring them back to their base for the start of the season. They were a second rate ball club at the time, and the impending season promised no better business than the one before which had left no profit.

Considers Daring Move.

So for a little time during the winter the proprietor had toyed with the idea of calling his chaps together at the home lot for a brief season of training, such as road work in the suburbs and gymnasium routine in the local Y. M. C. A., but, in the end, his pride forbade this, and, though every dollar he spent was another dollar of deficit, he sent his players to Florida when the boom was on and a dollar was really just a ruble and went through with the familiar routine.

I saw him many times in the lobby of the hotel that spring as the players trouped past him into the dining room, and it is quite possible that as each of these appetites went by the old man allowed himself an inward moan of pain. But I must say that outwardly he seemed very cheery about it all. So he kept up with the Joneses after all, when, if he had been a little less game with his money, he might have cracked a precedent.

I wonder if a ball club trained at, say, Asbury Park, where some of the old time teams used to take their spring work, or at French Lick Springs, or even in New York, mightn't come up to the starting date all even or almost even with some of the clubs which go way down south and then play their way home over the tiresome itinerary of pitcher-and-bowl hotels and coffee shoppe eating houses.

How Bills Are Paid.

One spring during the boom there were seventeen clubs of the two major leagues and the International league and American association taking the sun in Florida, but in those days a lot of ambitious little chamber of commerce and merchants' associations were helping to pay the bill with rebates and subsidies. These gay optimists all thought there was some great advertising value in the date line publicity and descriptive matter which was wired out by the baseball writers attached to the teams. I am not prepared to prove that the publicity was not worth the money, but the fact that the subsidies have been generally discontinued probably means something.

Except their natural worries about their jobs, which are not very secure at this time of the year, the athletes should be very happy young men at the training camps, but they do not seem to be. They are very quiet and apparently bored and they sit around the hotel lobbies in the evening, neither pleased nor displeased with life. Or they play some bridge or the more irresistible characters drape themselves over the cigar counter and talk nonsense to the young lady in charge, who is likely to be married to the night clerk and full of humor and spirit, but a lady with it all with a great capacity for indignation.

It's a Misnomer.

These gatherings in the American plan hotels are not properly camps at all, but I gather that a long time ago it was customary to house the boys

HORNSBY GREETS CUB BATTERYMEN AT ISLAND CAMP

And Tells 'Em They'll Play a Lot of Soccer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 17.—Rogers Hornsby said hello to his pitching and catching help on the dock at high noon today, then told them they could have the afternoon off to rest for the first workout of the year, which will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Unlike his predecessor, Joe McCarthy, Rogers considers it brutal to work athletes the same day they get off a boat and the expression of the gentle thought at the dock caused a miscellaneous burst of activity on the part of players who had been holding their arrival plans in abeyance.

Newsreel Men Disappointed.

Those who play golf got right out on the links. Those who were tired went to bed and the lovesick ones wrote letters. In the meantime there was much gnashing of teeth on the part of an army of newsreel gents who had come over with the thought that Hornsby would order the fellows into their monkey suits for the edification of the cinema if for nothing else. Rogers didn't go for the notion and the photogs get to wait till tomorrow.

Hornsby revealed this afternoon that he will launch a new training idea never experienced by the Cubs—an idea that Hornsby himself never had used in his years as a ball player. The Cubs will play soccer each day as the windup of the training didoes.

"I have had a soccer field laid out and have purchased two soccer balls," Rogers said. "While we won't adhere to all the soccer rules we will come close enough to them to make the idea interesting and at the same time build up the legs of the players.

"I am told that the boys will be all in after 15 minutes of soccer, but I don't believe it, and I hope to have them playing 30 minutes at a stretch before we leave the island."

Rogers said that he hadn't heard much about an elaborate weight chart that Secretary Robert Lewis fetched here from Chicago.

Weigh Each Player.

It is said that the home office, more concerned than ever before about the physical behavior of the Cubs, hopes to get closer to what each athlete is doing by watching his weight. Instead of sketchy estimates of weight as heretofore the club officials desire the word of the scales.

As a result each and every athlete is to weigh in, stark naked, mind you, when he goes to the clubhouse before the workout, and he is to weigh as soon as he gets ready for his bath. Trainer Lotshaw, not the ball players, is to do the weighing. In this fashion, it is hoped, Wrigley statisticians will be able to compute exactly the extent to which some of the players look upon spring training as just a trip to Catalina.

It has not been announced when the first of the intraclub games will be played on the island, but several challenges are in a state of preparation on the mainland. One of these which probably will be accepted is from Joe Brown, a movie actor, who has organized a team from the studios to battle the Cubs soon after the regulars arrive next Tuesday.

JOHN WEIBLE OF 1924 IRISH GRID TEAM DIES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP)—John A. Weible, an integral unit in the forward wall behind which the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame rose to football glory, died today. His passing made the first break in the ranks of the great Notre Dame eleven of 1923-'24-'25.

Weible was 27 years old. He was a doctor of medicine in Mercy hospital, where he was serving his internship. An emergency operation for removal of his appendix was performed last week.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

HARVARD AND PRINCETON.

HARVARD and Princeton have announced renewal of intercollegiate competition in all sports except football. That, no doubt, will follow in due time. This revival is ascribed to a "changed sentiment among undergraduates of the two institutions."

The Wake does not now recall whether severance of relations was due to any specific incident. Our impression is that it was due rather to an accumulating irritation with several contributing incidents.

The prime factor of the misunderstanding, so far as Princeton was concerned, was its place on the football schedules of both Harvard and Yale. The Tigers played Crimson and Bulldogs on successive Saturdays, while the contest between Harvard and Yale was always their final game of the season.

Aside from whatever disadvantage there might be in two hard games on successive Saturdays, Nassau supporters felt the arrangement did not put Princeton on a parity in dignity with its two principal rivals. That old bone of contention is yet to be solved.

Princeton belongs with Harvard and Yale in college sport. This once "Big Three," which outsiders rarely beat in the old days, has found it going tougher and tougher against colleges of now larger undergraduate student bodies and against colleges which make a business or near business of athletics. There is a tendency in college circles to resume play with natural rivals, or against schools whose methods of sport control eligibility give athletic equality.

Dryden's Trunk.

Nearly all the Dryden stories have been written since the death of the great baseball humorist, who was a TRIBUNE baseball writer in our early days in this department. We have not seen the one about his trunk at Tampa on the Cubs' training trip of 1915.

Charlie had an old but strong trunk which had seen service for 20 years. It had become somewhat shabby, of course, so against his better judgment he was persuaded to buy a handsome new trunk at Tampa and gave his old one to the head porter.

Scribes on that trip were domiciled in one of the third floor turrets of the old Tampa Bay hotel. Stairways thereto were of steel. When it came time to depart the labor saving porter crew just put the trunks on the top step and gave them a push. Among those which did not survive the bumping ordeal was Charlie's new trunk. Summoned to the scene and surveying his scattered wardrobe released when the trunk burst, Dryden sent for the head porter and said: "Here's $5, I want to buy back that trunk I gave you yesterday."

That old trunk never was replaced again and was used by Dryden until his retirement several years later.

Top o' The Tribune Tower.

What causes your hurry and where do you go?
Are there homes in Chicago to which you may fly?
Have you loved ones there watching the "L's" that speed by?
Are you dignified brokers or peddlers of vice?
Are you honest and know that mere good will suffice?
Are you making for homes where life bears bitter fruit,
While you're brushing past deb or just substitute?
Is your life a mad scramble like crowds in the street,
Or like a new morning, dew-bathed and sweet?

Soon I'll descend to mingle and merge
Into the crowds that eddy and surge.
O, scurrying dots, I'd give much to know

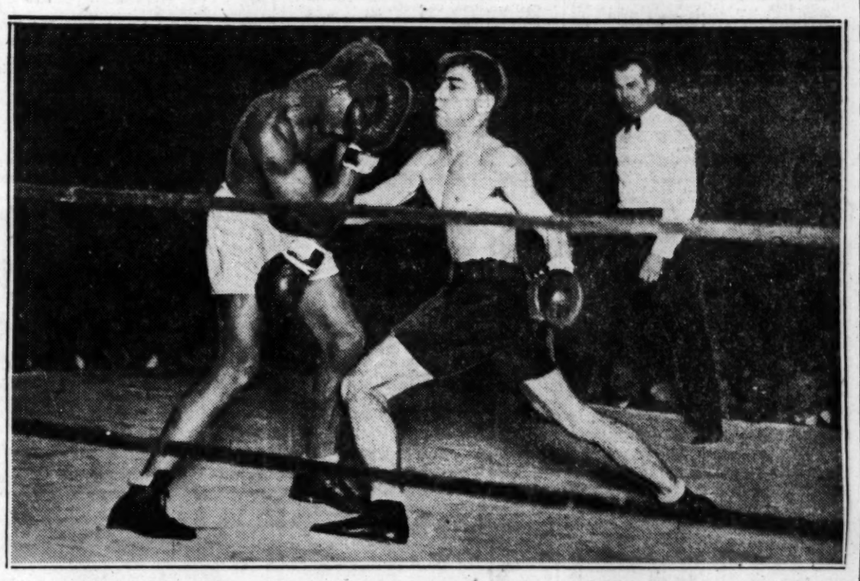
PUNCHING ALONG THE CHAMPIONSHIP TRAIL



Dick Mastro, one of the winners in the featherweight division of the west side Golden Gloves tournament, passes another barrier in his march toward a title. Mastro is delivering a right to the solar plexus of Harry Booker of the Lawndale gym in their second round match last night, while Booker covers up to avoid a left to the jaw. Booker gave Mastro a great battle, one of the best in the two nights of fighting.

When This Boy Wallops 'Em They Know It

BY ARCH WARD.

They say that some of the old time fighters used to pack their gloves with cement and iron bolts. Occasionally a horseshoe was secreted in the leather padding.

The stout hearted lads who battled their way to the finals of the west side Golden Gloves qualifying round at Ashland boulevard auditorium last night might not have employed these tactics, but the results were consistently adequate. The way boys were tumbling around the ring left no doubt of the return of the loaded fist.

When you get to talking about the west side punchers, you have got to mention Dick Mastro, a black haired Italian who won his way to the Tournament of Champions at the Coliseum by whipping George Krody of Aurora and Harry Booker of Lawndale gym.

He's Earl's Brother.

Dick is a brother of Earl Mastro, one of the country's leading featherweights, but he doesn't need to reflect in his brother's fame. He looks like one of the best prospects in the amateur ranks. If he fights as well at the Coliseum as he did at Ashland Boulevard Auditorium the featherweights from the 15 other cities have a rocky route to tour.

Under something of a Dempsey crouch and behind a protecting cordon of elbows that make both jaw and stomach none too easy to reach, Mastro whipped one of the toughest boys on the west side when he eliminated courageous little Harry Booker. Booker, colored, took a shellacking in the first round. But evened up the score in the second with the fury and persistency of his attack. That was the round that proved Dick could take it. He was shaken several times with well placed hooks and jabs, but never did he take a step backward or give any other indication of inability to stand up under punishment.

Mastro is a boxer with the bark on—a tough, devil may care slugger. When you find a combination like that in a man he's hard to beat. Booker found it out midway in the third round when a right cross to his jaw robbed him of all his steam. He was helpless in his corner at the finish almost ready to admit defeat.

Not Finished Boxer.

Dick is by no means a finished boxer. He probably wouldn't be fighting in an amateur tournament if he were. He occasionally blocks with the top of his head and sometimes is wild in tossing his punches. But he is tough as rawhide, and his middle name is Fight. His opponents last night hammered him around the head and body, but he came charging in like an infuriated bull.

Mastro was turned back at the

Carey Denies Chicago Will Be Fight Site

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—President William F. Carey of the Madison Square Garden corporation denied today that he had told newspaper men in Chicago that he considered it "reasonably certain" that the Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight championship fight would be held in Chicago or that he had mentioned a conference to be held on Thursday in that connection.

The reports that Carey had decided on Soldiers' field as the site for the fight and had fixed June 19 as the date were published yesterday in Chicago afternoon papers.

"I saw only one newspaperman, a TRIBUNE representative, while I was in Chicago," said Carey. "He approached me as I was leaving a hockey game and brought up the fight. I replied that I had no connection with the fight, but that so far as I knew nothing would be decided until April. That was the only remark concerning the fight that I made to a newspaperman in Chicago. I do not like to have things put into my mouth that I did not say."

"Are you, as president of the New York Garden, interested in the promotion of the Schmeling-Stribling fight?" Carey was asked.

"I am not," he replied crisply. "That fight belongs to the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois."

"Are you an officer or director of the Illinois corporation?"

"I am not."

"Do you hold any stock in the Illinois corporation?"

"No, and I do not expect to hold any."

"Are any officers or directors of the New York corporation officers or stockholders in the Illinois organization?"

"None."

Sixteen boys, conquerors of four score other west side Golden Gloves boxers, last night battled to qualifying positions in Chicago's tournament of champions which opens at the Coliseum on March 2. And for the second night in succession, from 7 o'clock until past midnight, 2,500 fans, now cheering, now encouraging, crowded the Ashland Boulevard auditorium for a carnival of 36 bouts, which included some of the finest matches ever waged for THE TRIBUNE'S golden gloves.

Chicago's tournament action now shifts to the Hippodrome, Clark street at Lawrence avenue, where tomorrow night 220 entries in the north section will fight for the 16 positions which carry a right to enter the Coliseum matches.

Larger Crowd; Stronger Team.

If the west section, long the center of Chicago boxing enthusiasm, is a criterion, the Golden Gloves tournament this year will eclipse all records. Paid admission at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium has been 1,800 more for two nights than in 1930. And if last night's finals are equally trustworthy, Chicago's team will be superior to that which last year defeated New York in the inter-city contests at the Stadium, 10 bouts to 6.

While the west side today hails the sixteen boys who will carry the section hopes in the battle for positions on Chicago's intercity team, there were other boys last night who failed to qualify only because of tournament luck.

Loses Close Fight.

Harry Rosenthal of the Jewish Peoples institute was beaten in three rounds by Frank Noonan of the Knights of Columbus. But try to convince Harry's friends he isn't the equal of any lightweight in Chicago. Young Rosenthal, who drew Earl Watson in the next to last match in his division, spent his energy in a magnificent effort which brought him a three round victory over the Negro boy himself a member of Chicago's intercity team and victor in his 1930 Stadium bout.

That triumph, scored in the last round with a savage right hand attack, probably kept Rosenthal from making a better fight against Noonan. The Knights of Columbus boy, however, must not be underrated, for he packed a punch which he lashed out with a power and speed that spells trouble for the 15 teams invading Chicago in March.

Mastro's Hardest Fight.

Boxing's Biggest Show!

Fight fans who saw the opening of The Tribune's Golden Gloves tournament got what they spent their money for. They watched scores of stout hearted youngsters cut loose with everything they had just for the thrill of battle. There were no pulled punches, no quarter asked, and not a minute of stalling.

And the best part of it is the show's not over. It's just begun. You can get good seats by applying at once. Don't miss the Tournament of Champions which will be held at the Coliseum March 2, 3 and 4—tickets $1, $1.50 and $2.

These fights will bring together the titleholders of fifteen cities and the best battlers of Chicago. Then you'll get the kick of your life by seeing the winners meet at the Chicago Stadium on March 11 to determine the team which will go to New York. Prices of admission to these bouts will be $1, $2, and $3.

Tickets are on sale at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, or your order will be accepted by mail if acompanied by a check. Send applications to Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves tournament, The Tribune, Chicago.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Quakers handed Detroit's Falcons their biggest shock of the local National Hockey league season here tonight when they came out of the league cellar to blank the Detroit team, 2 to 0, just when the Falcons most needed a victory.

Despite eight penalties called against them, four of which came consecutively to Bunny Coulson, defense man, in the third period, the Quakers took advantage of numerous Falcon misplays to score twice late in the final period. Summary:

First period—Scoring, none. Penalties, Crossett.

Second period—Scoring, none. Penalties, Howe.

Third period—Scoring, Howe [Lowery], 17:15; Lowery [Barton], 18:45. Penalties, Coulson [4], Shields, Sorrell, Auric, Cooper, Howe.

OTTAWA UPSETS RANGERS.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators, tail enders of the National Hockey league's Canadian division, played championship hockey as they beat out the New York Rangers, 5 to 4.

Both teams showed speed from start to finish, Ottawa scoring two goals in the last five minutes of the wide open encounter to win. The deciding counter came on a blazing drive from Bill Touhey's stick only a minute after Touhey had passed to Alex Smith for the tying goal. Danny Cox and Bun Cook led the assaults of the two teams, each scoring twice. Hec Kilrea got the remaining Ottawa counter while Murray Murdoch and Cecil Dillon scored for New York. Summary:

First period—Scoring, Cox [Gagne], 5:30; F. Cook [W. Cook-Boucher] 8:50. Penalties—F. Cook, Art Smith.

Second period—Scoring, Kilrea, 3:22; Murdoch [Keeling], 2:19; F. Cook [W. Cook-Boucher], 7:02. Penalties—Touhy, Johnson [2], Art Smith, Thompson, Alex Smith, Peters.

CANADIENS WIN, 2 TO 0.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Montreal's Canadiens, pace setters in the Canadian section of the National Hockey league, tripped the Montreal Maroons in a fast battle here tonight, 2 to 0. After a period of scoreless hockey, the Canadiens broke the ice in the second period when Howie Morenz, center, scored an unassisted effort. The second Canadiens' goal, by Lepine, was scored with only three seconds of the third period remaining to be played. Summary:

First period—No score. Penalties—Wilcox, S. Mantha, Leduc, Conacher.

Second period—Scoring: Morenz, 10:53. Penalties—Gagnon, Leduc, Phillips, Ward, Conacher [major].

Third period—Scoring: Lepine, 19:57. Penalties—C. Mantha, Trottier, Morenz.

BRUINS WIN 6TH IN ROW.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins piled up their sixth consecutive National league hockey victory here tonight by caging two goals in the first period and holding the defensively inclined New York Americans scoreless in a listless contest.

The only real action came early in the third session when Vernon Ayres, American defense man, tried to plough through the Boston secondaries. Capt. Lionel Hitchman forced him against the side wall and during their scuffle Ayres suffered a dislocated shoulder. Summary:

First period scoring—Oliver [Seattle], 12:58; Chapman [Galbraith], 17:47. Penalties—none.

Second period scoring—none. Penalties—Shore, Hughes, Darragh.

Third period scoring—none. Penalties—Emms, Hughes.

TILDEN MAKES HIS BOW TONIGHT AGAINST KOZELUH

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Professional tennis returns to Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with Big Bill Tilden as the principal drawing card. Big Bill, who recently forsook the amateur ranks, will meet Karel Koseluh of Czecho-Slovakia in the feature match of the evening.

Two other former amateurs who followed in Big Bill's footsteps will make their professional debut, Frank Hunter and Emmett Pare of Chicago. Pare will play Hunter in singles in the first match of the program. Then will follow the Tilden-Koseluh duel. The final match will be in doubles with Tilden and Hunter teamed against Pare and Koseluh.

BOBBY JONES TO PLAY IN CHARITY FOURSOME TODAY

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Paired with Johnny Golden, Bobby Jones tomorrow makes his first public appearance since his retirement last November in a four ball match here against Gene Sarazen and Horton Smith, with charity as the motive. Jones has been working diligently at golf and his physical condition for several weeks and now is in as good condition as at the start of his record breaking tour of last year.

The match will be played over the old first course at East Lake, where Bobby learned the rudiments of the game, where Golden won first money in the 1927 southern open, and where both Sarazen and Smith have computed remarkably low scores.

Wheaton College Cagers Beat DeKalb Normal, 38-34

Wheaton, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Wheaton college basketball team beat De Kalb Normal, 38 to 34, in a Little Nineteen game here tonight. Wheaton jumped off to an early lead of 13 to 4, and led at the half, 18 to 17. Three minutes before the end De Kalb led by one point. Palmer, Wheaton, and Pace, De Kalb, tied for scoring with 12 points each. Bass, Wheaton, scored 11.

LONDOS MEETS ZAHARIAS IN MAT BOUT TONIGHT

Head Card of 5 Matches at Coliseum.

Jim Londos and George Zaharias will meet in the feature bout of Promoter Doc Krone's wrestling show at the Coliseum tonight. Londos will be defending his claim to the world's heavyweight championship and with it the diamond belt which officials of Madison Square Garden presented to him recently. In order to gain permanent possession of the belt he must defend his crown successfully three times. His first victory for the trophy was scored over Jim McMillen, former Illinois football star.

Londos, whose drawing power has been largely responsible for the recent success of wrestling, will be meeting a younger and heavier opponent in Zaharias. The latter, like Londos, is a Greek and hails from Pueblo, Colo. He is 22 years old and weighs 240 pounds. Londos, who is 33, will enter the ring tonight at about 200 pounds.

The bout tonight marks Promoter Krone's return to the Coliseum. A crowds of 10,000 is expected to attend the show, which includes four other bouts.

Karl Pojello, former light heavyweight champion, will be matched with Frank Brunovicz, New York Pole, who has won his last five bouts. Hans Steinke, German giant, and Billy Evans, Oklahoma Indian, meet in another of the supporting bouts. Kola Kwariani, regarded as a contender for Londos' title, will match holds with Rudy Luditzi of Hungary. A fifth match, bringing together Jack Roller of St. Louis and Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City, rounds out the card.

Badger Track Team Favored in N. U. Meet

Wisconsin ranks as the favorite to win the eighth annual quadrangular track and field meet to be held at Northwestern university Saturday night among Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio State, and Wisconsin.

The Badgers demonstrated considerable power by overwhelming Minnesota last week end, winning eight out of twelve events. They showed strength in the running events from the quarter to the two mile and in the shot put and the pole vault.

Ohio, regarded as the only team to push the Cardinals for first place, lost by a narrow margin to Indiana last Saturday night. Chicago has participated in two Big Ten meets this year, winning from Purdue and losing to Iowa. Northwestern, the other member of the quartet, has not had a meet to date.

Against Minnesota the Cardinals scored a slam in the quarter with Henke, Gafke, and Mitchell finishing in one, two, three order. The winner's time was :50.7. The Badgers won first place in the other running events also.

Ted Shaw, Wisconsin's Big Ten high jump champion, displayed his old time form by jumping 6 feet 5 inches, while Sammy Behr, also conference champion in the shot, won his specialty with a toss of 47 feet 2 inches.

A great race is expected in the half mile Saturday between Kirk of Wisconsin, Bloor of Ohio, and Leth of Chicago. All three have won their events in various dual meets this year.

ONE moment when FRANK BUCK kept COOL!

FRANK BUCK, author of that thrilling book of adventure, "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" He has knocked out an orang-utan in a fair fight and has captured alive the largest of king cobras, the only man-eating tiger ever taken alive, 39 elephants, 28 leopards, 40 bears and more than 5000 monkeys.

"THE man-eating tiger of Japore had fallen for our ruse and dropped into a giant pit.

"Once I got my lasso over his head, but he flicked it away with a lightning movement of his paw. Another time he bit my rope in two! Finally, I got the loop over his head with the corners of his lips pulled in between his teeth so he couldn't bite!

"His hind legs thrashed furiously. We lowered a cage and maneuvered it into place, the sliding door open. Then I let myself down, dodging his flying back feet.

"I grabbed him by the tail, swung him directly over the opening of the box. He dropped with a bang—I slid the door to with a slam and bellowed for hammer and nails. None could be found! I felt the tiger's weight shifting against me. My strength was fast ebbing. Now—or never—I simply HAD to keep cool!"

16 BOYS BATTLE THROUGH WEST SIDE SECTIONAL

the Lawndale gymnasium, in another spirited match.

Booker was game. Outboxed in the first two minutes, he came back with a flurry of punches that forced Mastro to the limit to divide honors in the second round. For the first minute of the last session, it was any one's decision, but a right cross to Booker's jaw took the snap from the Negro's blows and Mastro had him on the ropes at the final bell. Dick came back an hour later to beat George Korody of Aurora quite easily in the qualifying match.

Holden Scores Technical K. O.

George Holden, Geneva, Ill., lightweight, who knocked out his first round opponent Monday night, survived the second round with a victory over Einer Hedquist of the Ci-Mad A. C. Then, matched against Stanley Moore of Kid Howard's gym, he earned a technical knockout in the second round.

Moore, a promising 135 pound lad, displayed a rapier left, but Holden lered in until he sent his opponent to the floor badly dazed. Although Moore came up, Referee Tommy Thomas ruled that he should not be permitted to continue. While Moore was not out, he scarcely could have defended himself for several seconds, in which time he might have been injured.

Displays Fighting Heart.

Irving Kaplan, captain of the J. P. ; team and a middleweight, was another who fought himself out in an earlier match. Kaplan's rally against William Smyth of the Lawndale gymnasium was evidence of a fighting heart professionals might envy. Knocked down twice in the first round, Kaplan came back to pound out a decision.

But when he faced Jimmy Toman of the Opal A. A., the alternate middleweight on last year's Golden Gloves team, he could not carry on. Seeing that Kaplan was badly beaten in the first round, Referee Davie Miller stopped the match in the second session, awarding it to Toman.

Walter Opyszko, Lateks A. C., and Joe Palazzalo, Kid Howard's gym, qualified in the bantamweight class. They will hold their own against the best. Palazzalo, in particular, a shifting, deliberate ring artist, was impressive, while Onyszko was the coolest battler on the card. Lacking the reach of most of his opponent, Onyszko countered with precision to defeat Frank J. Easaty, Proviso A. C. of Melrose Park. It was a close bout.

Electrifies His Foes.

Pete Smagatz, light heavyweight champion of the West Electric company, had no trouble fighting through his division. He defeated John Persche, Brookfield A. C., and Charlie Grimm of the Nelson A. C., Aurora. Smagatz was in excellent condition and made good use of his superior height and reach.

Dick Monty of Kid Howard's was the other light heavyweight qualifier. Monty is a fine puncher. In his last bout he stopped Clair Guess, an unattached boxer, after two rounds in which there was no question of Monty's superiority.

STREATOR'S TEAM

Streator, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Three 1930 titleholders will be on the Streator Times-Press Golden Gloves squad which will invade Chicago on March 2, 3, and 4. The 1931 champions were crowned tonight before 1,100 at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Vince Perino of La Salle retained his flyweight title by defeating Edward Rozich in four rounds. Geno Salvatore, who won the bantamweight championship last year, captured the 126 pound title by winning a three round decision over Reno Gennett. Ernest Tonielli successfully defended his lightweight title by defeating Harold Mindoch in three rounds.

Richard Arnold and Edward Strovel were the only 1930 champions to drop their titles. Arnold lost a three round decision to John Kaktus, Spring Valley middleweight, while Strovel was beaten by Vernon Miller, 190 pound farmer, last night in the only heavyweight bout of the tournament.

118 POUNDS—Joe Chicatero won by default.
126 POUNDS—Geno Salvatore beat Reno Gennett [3].
135 POUNDS—Ernest Tonielli beat Harold Mindoch [3].
160 POUNDS—John Kaktus beat Richard Arnold [3].
175 POUNDS — William Connell stopped Ray Smith [1].
HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION — Vernon Miller.

MICHIGAN CITY WINNERS

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Eight winners were named tonight in the second annual Michigan City Dispatch tournament, which was one of knockouts and wild and furious fighting. Twelve hundred spectators filled the high school gymnasium where the tourney was held. The winners:

FLYWEIGHT—Merle Brown, Michigan City.
FEATHERWEIGHT—Don Bennis, La Porte.
BANTAMWEIGHT—Frank Bennis, La Porte.
LIGHTWEIGHT—Leo Bennis, La Porte.
WELTERWEIGHT—Jimmy Alderson, Michigan City.
MIDDLEWEIGHT—Ernest Burkhart.
LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT — Gus Bobinski, Michigan City.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Bud Roberts, Michigan City.

ROCKFORD BOYS WIN

Dixon, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Dixon's Golden Gloves tourney opened tonight before a crowd which packed the Moose temple. Rockford contestants won most of the eight bouts. Summaries:

118 POUNDS — Gordon, Sycamore, beat Foster, Rockford [3].
126 POUNDS—Anatasi, Rockford, stopped Miller, Sycamore [2]; William Davies, Dixon, beat Van Dusen, Sycamore [3].

MOON MULLINS—ONE OF THE LITTLE THINGS IN LIFE

When This Boy Wallops 'Em They Know It

semi-finals of the 1930 Golden Gloves meet, but he expects to do better this year. If you are interest in amateur boxing' here's a lad worth remembering.

They Show Their Nerve.

You see a lot of things in Golden Gloves bouts to make your heart strings tingle, but always it's the courage of the contestants that stands out.

Take Irving Kaplan from the Jewish People's institute, for example. He caught one on the whiskers shortly after the opening bell in his bout with William Smythe of Lawndale gym and it looked like curtains when Referee Davie Miller began the toll. He was up at the count of six looking just a bit embarrassed, bewildered, and apologetic. He opened and closed his eyes after the fashion of a coal miner emerging suddenly into the sunlight.

Smythe tried desperately to maneuver the Jewish lad into position for another driving assault, but Kaplan, shaking his head to get away from the cobwebs in front of his eyes, weathered the crisis, although he still was a little groggy at the bell.

It was a different story the rest of the way. Kaplan's courage had been rewarded. The second round saw him peppering his foe with rights and lefts that soon had offset his poor start. A fast following one-two, first a left and then a right, sent Smythe staggering back on his heels in the last session. Kaplan now was in full possession of his faculties. In a fitful outburst of aggressiveness he piled up enough points to win the decision and the cheers of the crowd.

Proves His Gameness.

Kaplan was eliminated in the next round, but that didn't matter. He had proved that gameness and durability bring results.

You have the opportunity to see scores of Mastro and Kaplans Thursday and Friday nights when the north side trials are held at the Hippodrome, Clark street near Lawrence avenue. More than 200 boys, all the way from the slums of the near north side to the swanky north shore, will be there to prove that they grow 'em just as tough up that way as over on the great west side.

RENE LACOSTE IS OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

PARIS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Attended by a famous French surgeon, Rene Lacoste, 26 year old tennis idol and once ranked No. 1 in the world, tonight was reported rallying from an operation for appendicitis, performed this morning.

Prof. Gossett, who wielded a surgeon's knife on King George of Greece in 1921, operated on Lacoste successfully, unless complications result a quick recovery was expected. However, the chances of Lacoste returning to the Davis cup play this year, something on which he had set his heart, appear remote.

Once again the French Davis cup defense must depend on Cochet, Borotra and the younger stars, Boussus and Debuzelet. Lacoste retired from active tennis play in 1929. Only a month ago he announced his intention to go into training for a possible return to the courts.

TRAINING TRIP IS A LUXURY WHICH COSTS FORTUNE

Baseball Men Ask if It's Worth It.

in barracks-style, and the term persists. Only one club have I ever seen quartered in anything like a camp, the Cleveland team, one year when Tris Speaker was manager. They lived in a big plank cabin with little camp rooms opening off a long hall and in front a large room warmed in the evening by a log fire.

Speaker used to sit there in the evening in a big wooden arm chair of the kind that fat old police sergeants and country telegraph agents favor, a little off to one side, in the shadows, rolling those Texas cigarettes in that brown butcher's paper which cuts the bronchial tubes like fish hooks and smoking them down with a long ash. Speaker wore flannel shirts and he had a sort of bunk house manner about him which seemed to draw the players to him.

He was full of anecdotes and his camp trainer, Lefty Wiseman, was a little offended at him at the time I speak of, because Tris that day at practice had put on a catcher's mitt and yelled, "Lefty, let's have a look at your fast one."

Mr. Wiseman thought pretty well of his fast one so he went into his windup and let one fly, whereupon Speaker tossed aside the mitt and caught it with the most insulting ease with his nude hand. A few days before Lefty had been hit on the nose by a foul and Speaker had said, "Yes; right on the nose; two feet from the tip." So Mr. Wiseman was on the defensive for a spell.

He Had a Way.

It was a good camp and taking Speaker as I always found him I wonder why he isn't running some important ball club today. He seemed to have a way with him because this club was living in circumstances very inferior to those of the Yankees and the Giants not far away and yet there was no noticeable discontent.

Once I came upon the Brooklyn club in something less than luxury, but their place was not a camp. It was just a mad house, dirty and cheerless, selected, I suppose, because it was cheap, and those players who had money of their own and were willing to spend it, refused to live in the place. The others, feeling their outcast position, were making the best of it in mischievous goings on at night like the inmates of a guard house. Still they were more lively than the Giants with their dressing and decorum.

Judging by my own experience of hotel tariffs in the haunts of pleasure down south, I should guess that the transportation and maintenance of a ball player throughout the training trip would cost about $800 a head, but probably the actual total is somewhat less as the baseball firms drive pretty good bargains and they usually put two athletes into one room. Perhaps they can do it all for an average of $500 a head and if they do, the major leagues alone will be distributing close onto $300,000 along the route, in addition to which the minors will strew a generous scattering of change, too.

This spring expense is no problem to the Giants, the Cubs, the Cardinals, the Yankees, and the Athletics. But I seem to hear a low, stifled "ouch" from some of the proprietors whose turnstiles have been gathering rust the last few seasons. And I will say that "ouch" isn't a big enough word for it.

Bruins Play Brooklyn for First Place

The Bruins will be seeking undisputed first place in the American Professional Basketball league when they meet Brooklyn at Broadway armory tonight. The Bruins went into a tie for first place with Brooklyn last night when the Visitations lost to Fort Wayne, 33 to 17.

Addition of Miller and Kintzing seems to have added the aggressiveness to the Bruins' attack while the playing of Wickhorst is the greatest of his career. Brooklyn will present its usual lineup of Conaty, Herlihy, Kellett, Scrill and Cooney.

Shires to Play.

Art Shires will play forward for the Milwaukee Badgers in a preliminary game. The Milwaukee contingent will clash with E. F. Driver's five at 8 p. m. Shires has been with the Badgers for almost three weeks and has been hitting the basket with marked regularity.

Expect Long Shots.

"Those Chicagoans can expect a lot of long distance basket throwing when I make my appearance," Shires said. "I clout that baseball high and far and that's the way I like to make my baskets." Probable lineups:

BRUINS.		BROOKLYN.
Wickhorst	F.	Conaty
Borgeman	F.	Herlihy
Murphy	C.	Kellett
Kennedy	G.	Scrill
Kintzing	G.	Cooney

Ban Johnson's Condition Is Called "Very Serious"

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The condition of Ban Johnson, former president of the American league, tonight was described as "very serious" by Dr. Robert F. Hyland, who is attending him at St. John's hospital here. Barring unforeseen complications, however, Dr. Hyland said Johnson was in no immediate danger. Johnson is suffering from a general breakdown, and recently underwent an operation for the removal of a toe.

150 to Skate in Walton Ice Derby Tonight

More than one hundred and fifty speed skaters representing sixteen clubs will race on the Chicago Stadium rink tonight when the Walton Athletic club holds its second annual derby.

The meet was originally scheduled as an outdoor event for Feb. 7, but was postponed because of soft ice.

Many champions will compete. Among them will be Frank Stack, U. S. national champion; Eddie Schroeder, member of the 1932 Olympic team; Wilbur Marks, king of the nation's intermediates, and Ed Stundl, North American intermediate title holder. Other stars competing for honors are Wallace Mitchell, city champion; Art Peters, Cornie Ewerts, Ray Wondra, and Herb Knudten. Elizabeth Du Bois, U. S. women's champion, will meet Faith Schoen, Illinois women's indoor queen, Helen Bina, Priscilla Richey, and Eleanor Thiele, 1931 Silver Skates winner.

Officials of the Illinois-Western Skating association, sponsors of the meet, urge contestants to report at the Stadium at 6:30 p. m., as the races begin at 7 p. m.

Poor Attendance Cancels Savoldi's 2d Mat Bout

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Jumping Joe Savoldi's scheduled second appearance as a professional wrestler failed to materialize tonight when the promoters of the show called off the match because of lack of attendance. The former Notre Dame football star was booked to meet Jack Kanoche of Kansas City. About 700 persons, far too few to meet Savoldi's guarantee, were present.

Hyde Park, Leo Divide Practice Double Header

Sotos scored 9 points in the Hyde Park heavies' 22 to 16 victory over Leo in a practice game on the winners' floor, while the Leo lights divided the day by winning, 17 to 11.

PHILLIPS CAGE TEAMS WIN TWO SECTION TITLES

Wendell Phillips teams clinched their second consecutive pair of central section basketball titles yesterday by invading Lindblom for a double victory, the heavies winning, 33 to 21, and the lights, 28 to 7. Buckner led the heavies' attack with 13 points.

De Paul heavyweights took undisputed possession of second place in the north section of the Catholic league last night by defeating St. Philip, with whom they had been tied, 28 to 16, at De Paul. The home lights made it a double with a 22 to 18 victory in which Elschen and Smith starred. Sand led the winning heavies.

Austin scored a double west section decision over McKinley on the losers' court, the heavies winning 21 to 16 and the lights 40 to 11.

Big Bob Gruenig's twelve baskets and three free throws helped Crane heavies to overwhelm Marshall, 41 to 28, but Marshall's lights, led by Sid Rosenthal, divided the program with a 16 to 12 win.

St. Mel scored its eighth victory in the Catholic league to hold the north section leadership by defeating St. George, 27 to 26, on Wally Hansen's basket. St. Mel also took the lightweight battle, 25 to 17.

St. Michael and Loyola divided a double header, the former's heavies winning 13 to 11, when Gavin made a basket, while John Burns led the Loyola lights to a 18-16 victory.

Tilden and Englewood split a pair on the former's floor, the home heavies winning 19 to 10, while the Englewood lights eked out a 12-11 victory.

Bowen invaded Morgan Park's floor for a pair of overwhelming victories, the heavies winning, 44 to 18, and the lights, 50 to 15.

Led by Curto and Werner, Lake View heavies turned back Waller, 38 to 14, to take second place in the north division. McCarthy led the Lake View lights in a 27 to 21 triumph.

St. Patrick defeated Weber twice, the heavies winning, 36 to 7, while Kelly's basket in the last seconds brought the lights a 16 to 14 victory.

Roosevelt continued its fast pace in the north section with a twin decision over Schurz on the home floor, the heavies winning 38 to 22 and the lights 25 to 13.

"What is wrong with the Word 'SPIT'?"

DR. MARK L. EMERSON

Health Officer, Oakland, California

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Emerson's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

MARK L. EMERSON, M. D. HEALTH OFFICER

CALIFORNIA
HEALTH DEPARTMENT

September 16, 1930

The American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York, New York.

Gentlemen:

What is wrong with the word "spit"? We have been spitting for years and will probably continue to spit for many years to come. It is the uncontrollable or indiscriminate spitting that does the harm, as it contains so many communicable germs.

Any type of campaign or advertising against the use of human sputum is endorsed by this Department, because it protects public health.

Very truly yours,

Mark L Emerson M.D

FARMERS' MILK PROFIT SMALL, SENATORS FIND

Their Price and Cost to Consumer Far Apart.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Government statistics showing a wide discrepancy between the prices paid by consumers for milk and dairy products and the prices received by farmers were submitted today in the senate's investigation of food costs.

Representatives of the dairy industry testified, however, the consumer was receiving the full benefit of reductions in the wholesale prices of their products.

Ethelbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics, presented a mass of figures which he said showed a "very apparent" failure of retail prices to follow the decline of wholesale prices in milk.

13.3 Cents Quart for Milk.

The average price of milk in 51 cities is 13.3 cents a quart, Stewart said, and the farmer is receiving an average price of a little less than 4.5 cents.

Stewart testified, however, that the average price of milk had dropped from 14.2 cents in January, 1930, and 14.3 in January, 1929. But the farmer, he added, now gets less for his milk than he has since 1921. His figures also showed that in 1913, when milk was selling for 8.9 cents, the farmer was getting $1.90 per hundred pounds of milk and in 1930 with retail milk at 14.2 he was getting $2.53.

F. D. Walmsley, president of the Borden Farm Products company, which distributes between 35 and 40 per cent of Chicago's milk, produced figures which he said showed the consumer had received the full benefit of reduced prices to the farmers. His company, he testified, reduced its prices from 14 to 13 cents a quart at the beginning of this year and the farmers price was cut .5 of a cent.

Walmsley denied his company had entered a price fixing agreement with its chief competitor, the Bowman Dairy company, but agreed there was little competition in prices. He testified the Borden company now is paying farmers $2.32 for each hundred pounds of milk.

Capper Offers Statistics.

Chairman Capper introduced statistics to show the company had averaged profits of about 20 per cent on its stock during the last five years.

"So certainly the Borden company has been doing very well," he said.

"That is a larger profit than the farmers who produce the milk get," Senator Frazier [Rep., N. D.] added.

FEDERAL TESTERS FEED NINE WOMEN AT 28C A DAY EACH

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Nine young women who lived four weeks on a diet costing 28 cents a day each, were pronounced by physicians today to be fitter, fatter and fairer.

Their diet included no meat, butter or milk. Eggs were on it, however, while peanut and soy bean products joined with cottage cheese, oranges and tomatoes in furnishing the needed ingredients. They had food left over at the end of the test.

The experimenters were two instructors and seven students at the Washington Missionary college. The government's bureau of home economics made up the menus.

WOMAN KILLED, FOUR HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Mrs. Marjorie Lindemeyer, 20 years old, 1707 North Halsted street, was killed and her husband, child, and two other persons were injured in a collision last night between their car and another machine just south of Kenosha, Wis. The injured, Edward Lindemeyer, 24; Edward Jr., 2; George Nielsen, 27, and his wife, Elsie, of 1815 Clybourn avenue, were taken to a Kenosha hospital. Nielsen was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Two deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the motor toll for the year to 178. The victims:

Mrs. Louise Bender, 78 years old, 1014 Sedgwick street. Fatally injured when struck by an automobile driven by Charles H. Kroll, 2824 North Rockwell street, chauffeur for Raymond Pruitt, 2440 Lakeview avenue, attorney.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old. Killed when struck by an automobile driven by Louis Goss, 35 years old, 4341 West 15th street, at Western avenue and 43d street.

John Van Hinkle, 26 years old, of Chicago, was killed when his truck collided with a bus near La Grange, Ind.

Charles Akerjelm, 75 years old, 611 May street, Waukegan, was fatally injured there when struck by an automobile driven by Anton Stritor of North Chicago.

Labor's Cleared Channel Radio Bill Passes Senate

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Organized labor is to be granted a cleared radio channel with unlimited time and maximum power, according to a bill passed by the senate tonight. The bill has already passed the house and will now go to a conference committee. While the terms of the bill are general, it understood that the American Federation of Labor and railroad brotherhoods will be particularly affected, and it is considered certain that the station which will eventually receive the new license is station WCFL in Chicago.

FAILS TO PRODUCE WILL IN JONES ESTATE CONTEST

The hearing on the contest over the estate of Mrs. Kittie Gunn Jones, who died on Sept. 6, leaving an estate of more than $400,000, advanced to its third stage yesterday before Probate Judge Henry Horner. Following Mrs. Jones' death, her second husband, George W. Jones, produced a will making him sole heir to the estate.

Twelve relatives of Mrs. Jones contested the will and it was finally thrown out when testimony was introduced tending to show that the will was falsely executed. Then Mrs. A. M. Simpson, 4223 Michigan avenue, offered to present a will which she said divided Mrs. Jones' estate between two sisters.

Mrs. Simpson appeared in court yesterday but she did not produce the will. She said that she was present when Mrs. Jones and her witnesses signed the will. The judge refused to accept her testimony.

The hearing will be resumed today to consider a theory that Mrs. Jones died intestate. Attorneys for Jones will claim the entire estate for their client. Mrs. Jones died suddenly after she had been given a hypodermic injection. Efforts of her relatives to have the body exhumed for a post mortem examination have failed.

GRAIN AVALANCHE TRAPS AND KILLS MAN IN ELEVATOR

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Two hours after he had been buried under a seven foot slide of wheat in an elevator bin late today the body of William H. Harrison, 40, Sioux City, was recovered by firemen. He had died almost immediately after being buried under the wheat, physicians said.

Harrison and Chris Hanson, Omaha, were shoveling wheat in a huge bin almost 150 feet square and containing 400,000 bushels of wheat. The grain was piled high on one side and slanted toward a conveyor in a tunnel on the opposite side. Harrison and his partner were trying to keep the grain moving toward the conveyor.

Each had a safety rope attached to the wall, but Harrison had dropped his, Hanson said. Suddenly Harrison cried for help. Hanson said he looked up and saw an avalanche of grain descending on Harrison. His cries were short, as the shifting grain swept over him.

R. WOSSLICK, 80, OWNER OF NOTED CAFE, IS DEAD

Rudolph Wosslick, 80 years old, prominent as a loop restauranteur a generation ago, and credited with introducing the table d'hote dinner in Chicago, died yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams of 140 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, his son-in-law and daughter.

RUDOLPH WOSSLICK.

Wosslick came to Chicago from Kansas City in 1891, already well known in his business, and opened a restaurant at the northeast corner of Monroe and Dearborn streets. The eating house served German foods chiefly, and soon found popularity among local celebrities. It was a gathering place for journalists. Wosslick's first table d'hôte dinners consisted of six courses and sold for 50 cents a dinner. He continued in business for eighteen years.

Wosslick was one of the men who realized the future of Chicago real estate. Soon after his arrival he purchased a plot of ground at Broadway and Grace street for $5,000. Four years ago the lot was leased for 99 years for a term rental of $2,103,000. Mr. Wosslick is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Williams, and Mrs. James G. Hames of New York. He was a 32d degree Mason. He will be buried tomorrow in Acacia cemetery.

F. A. SPERRY, 67, DEAD; FOUNDER OF AD AGENCY

Frederick A. Sperry, prominent advertising man, one of the founders of Critchfield & Co., advertising agency, died of pneumonia yesterday at the West Suburban hospital in Oak Park.

Mr. Sperry was 67 years old and a native of Connecticut. He moved to Janesville, Wis., about 1890, and came to Chicago two years later. In 1892 he helped form the Critchfield company. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic club and lived at 125 Clinton avenue, Oak Park.

Funeral services will be held from the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery. Surviving Mr. Sperry are his widow, Mrs. Grace Draper Sperry, and three children, Mrs. Jeanette S. Slocum of Boston, and Frederick L. and Donald B. Sperry.

MRS. HELEN FISHER KYLE, 91 years old, 1628 Olive street, a resident of Chicago since 1862, was buried yesterday in Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Kyle, who died on Sunday, was active in pioneer church work in Rogers Park. She is survived by a son, Robert M. Kyle, and six sisters.

Methodist Leader, Wife of Missouri U. Dean Dies

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. F. F. Stephens, 56, president of the women's council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died here today. She was the wife of Dean F. F. Stephens of the University of Missouri. Mrs. Stephens also was vice president of the board of trustees of Scarritt college, Nashville, Tenn.; president of the board of Union Medical college for women at Shanghai, China, and member of national committee of 1,000 for law enforcement. Funeral services will be held here Wednesday.

John F. Grady Funeral Services Will Be Today

P. HEMPSTEAD, 93, PIONEER IN CITY BUSINESS, DEAD

Prosper Hempstead, 93 years old, pioneer resident of Chicago, one time secretary to Potter Palmer, died late Monday at his home in St. Charles where he had lived since 1884. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the residence.

Mr. Hempstead was born in Williamstown, N. Y., came to Chicago in 1855, and five years later entered the employ of Field, Leiter & Palmer, later Marshall Field & Co. He left this firm to become secretary to Mr. Palmer. He was associated with Mr. Palmer and others in the carpet business. Mr. Hempstead served as local manager for the Chicago Telephone company when the company undertook to popularize residential telephones, and witnessed the growth of the service from fourteen subscribers to hundreds of thousands. He was active until two years ago, when he retired as city clerk of St. Charles.

Surviving Mr. Hempstead are two daughters, Miss Helen Hempstead of St. Charles and Mrs. W. C. Blattner of California and a son, Harry G. Hempstead of St. Charles.

JOHN McLAIN, 90, TROLLEY WORKER 67 YEARS, IS DEAD

John McLain, 90 years old, for 67 years a street car worker, died Monday night at the Alexian Brothers' hospital. He was first vice president of division 241, Chicago Street Car Men's union, and was believed to be the oldest active union official in America. He had held office in the union since its organization.

Mr. McLain, who was born in Brooklyn, worked as a tow boy in the construction of the first street car line to Coney Island and became a mule car driver when the line was completed. He came to Chicago 46 years ago and entered the local street car service on the south side as a horse car driver, subsequently becoming gripman in the cable car days, motorman, and, in the final period of his long service, switchtender at Archer avenue and Clark street. He retired on sick leave in December, 1928. The February meeting of the union was the first he ever missed.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow at St. Brendan church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

EDITOR CLAIMS FARM DOLLAR HAS FULL VALUE NOW

Sagacious newspaper advertisers not only refuse to retrench in their campaigns when sales show a decline but increase their lineage, according to J. S. Gray of the Monroe, Mich., News. He spoke before the convention of the Inland Daily Press association in the Morrison hotel.

In an optimistic address upon economic conditions, particularly with regard to the farmer, Charles F. Collison, agricultural editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, attacked reports that the farmer's dollar is worth less than the industrial dollar. "The fact is," he said, "that some farm products have been far above the merchandise price index for years."

Mr. Collison said most of the increased buying power of the general farmer comes from live stock and dairy products. "Dairy products, source of our greatest farm income in the northwest and in American generally, are above the commodity price index in exchange of trading value," he said. "Some of them have been so high that ordinary folks could not afford to buy them. Now they have almost come down to about the level of merchandise prices."

MUST RELY ON U.S. FOR RETURN TO PROSPERITY

Shown by Decline in Foreign Trade.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It becomes increasingly evident that the United States must look to its own people for a return to prosperity. It has been noticeable in the last few years that our foreign trade has declined simultaneously with the dearth of big foreign loans and credits floated in this country.

There have been both American and foreign financiers of the "international" frame of mind who have advocated a renewal of large American loans to other countries. But there has been a tendency among other American financiers and investors to regard foreign loans with more discrimination and to realize that exporting American capital without assurance of repayment is really exporting our natural resources.

The suggestion that this country must depend largely on its domestic trade for prosperity is contained in data on our foreign trade made public by the commerce department yesterday. Our exports in January were the smallest for any month since February, 1922, totaling only $250,000,000. And our imports were the lowest since September, 1921, aggregating only $183,000,000. In January, 1930, our exports were $410,000,000, and imports were $310,000,000.

Buying Power Shrinks.

While our international trade last month produced a favorable balance of $67,000,000, the large decline in our commerce in the last year indicates world shrinkage in buying power as well as the world decline in commodity prices. The commerce department explained part of the decline in export values as resulting from the drop in cotton prices, that commodity being one of our chief exports. The dearth of American loans recently is indicated by the fact that other countries sent $34,426,000 in gold to this country in January, while we sent out only $54,000. In January, 1930, gold imports were $12,908,000 and exports were $8,948,000. We sent out $3,574,000 of silver last month and received $1,894,000.

The commerce department also issued data regarding business conditions in other countries. Spotty conditions and little general improvement were noted for Europe. South America is showing signs of mild improvement, and the situation in the orient is mixed, although Japan and India have shown some improvement.

Freight Loadings Lower.

News of American trade and industry yesterday was somewhat disappointing. Little change in business was indicated by the movement of commodities by the railroads. Loading of revenue freight for the first week of this month totaled 719,053 cars, a decline of 228 from the preceding week, and a decrease of 166,763 from the corresponding week in 1930.

Petroleum production, which now is in the limelight, increased again last week. The daily average gross crude oil output totaled 2,127,700 barrels, an increase of 11,200 barrels a day over the previous week, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Refiners took more oil last week and operated at 61.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 59.9 per cent in the previous week.

The commerce department reported that American petroleum production last year totaled about 898,000,000 barrels, a decline of 109,000 barrels from the record figure of 1929. But consumption declined slightly, although motorists increased their usage of gasoline to 395,560,000 barrels, a gain of 5 per cent over 1929.

Ingot production of the United States Steel corporation for the week ended last Monday was a small fraction under 52 per cent, which is a reduction of slightly more than 1 per cent from the preceding seven days, when output was estimated at 53 per cent.

Unbalanced Production Is Blamed for Depression

BY SCRUTATOR.

A basic truth which has been persistently overlooked, but which undoubtedly furnished a great reason for the slump of business that began in 1929, has been brought to the light of discussion by Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association.

R. C. STEPHENSON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Unbalanced production, this banking executive calls the phenomenon which has been growing up for years. With it has gone unbalanced income and unbalanced purchasing power over large groups.

The explanation is not quite so formidable as the term. Mr. Stephenson started with the assumption, amply supported by facts, that high wages could be and were paid by highly mechanized mass production industries. The automobile industry proceeded, he said, on the theory that if one worker turned out twice as much vehicle value as he did in former years he earned and was paid much higher wages.

"This would be all very well," he added, "if all lines of productive workers had been enabled to produce their type of wealth at an equivalently higher rate also. The output of automobiles is not paid for out of the wealth their own workers produce. It is paid for mainly out of the wealth that other workers produce.

Inefficiency at Fault.

"It is, in reality, an interchange of units of one kind of labor for units of another kind. If only some lines increase their economies and volumes of production and others do not there comes a time when there is no longer an equilibrium of various kinds of wealth for a steady interchange."

Wrapped up here is a profound bit of economic philosophy. It is another way of saying that the inefficient producer is actually the cause of depression. The high wages of the efficient can not be paid out of the low wages of the inefficient. Mr. Stephenson says mechanized mass production can march ahead only if its front is fairly uniform everywhere.

It has been for years a matter of comment that the highly mechanized industries and the highly unionized groups, like the railroads and the building trades, kept base rates of pay high while other groups were in the lower earnings brackets and at last began to lose even what they had.

We know that in the United States in recent normal years an average of $23 per capita was invested in machinery annually. The corresponding figure in China was 5 cents. Chinese labor in cotton mills now works for $5 a month. There are many workers in the United States that get none or very little of the mechanical improvement from year to year. None of them get the Chinese rate of earning when they work, but it is difficult to conceive of a man with a hoe these days earning enough to buy the products of the highly paid and efficient workers.

Runs Out of Customers.

He might ge[t] enough to eat by his labor, bu[t] [m]uch more. Efficient Am[e]ricans temporarily ran out o[f] [w]ork or ran out because [o]ther age were [t]hemselves alive.

Mr. Step[h]enson seems to h[a]nkers, involves a su[b]stantial pay for highly efficien[t] [w]orkers, that there may be a [r]eduction in the inefficients' purchasing [p]ower with the efficients' offerings. [T]his is, of course, a solution, but it is [n]ot pleasant. So, too, would be an insistence that capital invested with due regard to prudence take a smaller return.

So far, as a guess, it might be said that mechanized mass production has lowered its costs and passed on savings. Whether it should go much further, or can go much further, without reducing wage scales is uncertain. The bigger field is in raising some of the less efficient industrial groups to equality with the others. Ways to do it are being proposed every day. To argue that the leaders of the industrial army ought to wait for the others to catch up, or even march back to meet them, is not quite right. It is better to have the laggards put on double time marches.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City bank, who has been in semi-retirement for some years, is reputed to have made a large fortune in the rise of Auburn automobile on the stock exchange.

FRANK A. VANDERLIP.

Wall street had heard rumors for several weeks that Mr. Vanderlip was one of the large holders of Auburn stock, and the banker himself confirmed this in an interview given to the Associated Press in Los Angeles yesterday. Mr. Vanderlip admitted that he was "heavily interested" in Auburn. He refused to tell how much he held, but said, "I am a large owner and have been for a long time."

Mr. Vanderlip said that the last Auburn stock he bought was at 105. The low price for the stock this year was 101 and the low price last year was 60¾, so that it was believed probable that Mr. Vanderlip had acquired the bulk of his holdings at an average price considerably below 105.

Wall street estimates that Mr. Vanderlip and his associates own at least 25 per cent of the 173,475 shares of no par capital stock outstanding of the Auburn Automobile company. This would be around 43,368 shares, representing, at a cost of 105, a profit at current prices of almost $4,500,000.

If, as is generally believed, there is a condition in Auburn nearly approaching a corner, Mr. Vanderlip and his friends may own considerably more stock—that is to say, they may have purchased large amounts of stock sold for short account.

Mellon Says Oil Policy Is for Congress to Determine

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today informed the house ways and means committee the question of limiting oil imports was surely a congressional matter.

The treasury secretary expressed this opinion in a letter to Chairman Hawley of the committee which is considering the Capper-Garber bill to limit importations to 16,000,000 barrels annually for the next three years.

"The treasury department expresses no opinion as to the policy involved which is one for the congress to determine," Mellon said in response to a request for his position.

He added, however, it was believed there would be no difficulty on the part of the treasury in enforcing the bill if it became a law.

Has Open Mind.

Earlier in the day, Commissioner Eastman of the interstate commerce commission wrote the house commerce committee that the commission declined to "oppose or approve" the Hock bill to divorce major oil companies from their interstate pipe lines.

The letter was received while independent oil operators were testifying on the measure. Representative Hoch [Rep., Kas.], its author, interpreted the letter as "distinctly favorable" to his bill.

Hawley closed the hearings on the import limitation measure after reading Mellon's letter. He announced the committee would take final action later in the week.

Meanwhile it will hold hearings on bills for embargoes on wheat, feed grains, butter and manganese.

Pinchot Favors Embargo.

Representative Rich [Rep., Pa.] appeared at the request of Gov. Pinchot to indorse the Capper-Garber bill. He said the Pennsylvania governor favored an oil embargo to protect American industry and sustain the American standard of living.

While the commerce committee took testimony favoring the Hoch bill, opponents to any restriction on oil imports closed their case before the ways and means committee.

William McTarnahan, president of the Petroleum Heat and Power company, testified he suspected "a Negro in the oil woodpile" in the drive to limit petroleum imports. He said a few big companies have 665,870,000 barrels of oil in storage.

The effect of an embargo "immediately and inevitably would be to raise the value of this oil in storage," McTarnahan said. "Is it not three or four of the large producers who will be benefitted by this bill?"

CHRYSLER CORP. EARNS 5 CENTS A SHARE IN 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Like other automobile manufacturers, the Chrysler corporation had considerably smaller car sales and earnings in 1930, compared with 1929.

The annual report, issued today, showed net profit for the corporation and subsidiaries for 1930 was $234,154, equal to 5 cents a share on 4,414,645 no par common shares. In 1929 the corporation had net profit of $21,902,168, equal to $4.94 a share on 4,431,465 common shares. For the December quarter of 1930 the corporation reported a net loss of $2,258,592. The regular 25 cent dividend was declared by directors.

Total sales last year were $207,789,338, compared with $375,033,455 for 1929.

"No comment is necessary upon the adverse business conditions of 1930 and their responsibility for the reduction in earnings," Walter P. Chrysler, chairman and president, said. "It is, however, satisfying to note that Chrysler corporation substantially maintained its relative position in the industry. The company's strong financial position remains unimpaired."

AUTOMOBILE MAKERS EXPAND SCHEDULES FOR MONTH'S OUTPUT

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Advances in production by several automobile manufacturers over schedules originally planned for February indicate a substantial increase in February production by the industry, a survey by Dow, Jones & Co. says.

Ford currently is producing upwards of 7,000 units daily for three days a week, indicating a February output of around 84,000, compared with 55,182 units in January.

Chevrolet Motor company's tentative schedule of 67,429 units for the current month, exclusive of the Canadian schedule, is likely to be exceeded, according to W. S. Knudsen, president. Oakland Motor Car company has just placed a second assembly line in operation and the company's revised schedule for February, March, and April calls for 6,730 additional cars.

Buick Motor Car company's revised schedule for February calls for 7,907 cars.

Olds Motor Works has made two successive advances in its February schedule, placing production 50 per cent above the original schedule.

Hupp Motor Car corporation shipped 1,551 cars last month and its February schedule calls for a substantial increase in production.

Auburn Automobile company has scheduled 4,650 units for its February production, against total shipments of 2,014 cars last month. Graham-Paige has advanced its February schedule to 2,400 cars, an increase of 300 over the original figure.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—The stock market finally cracked under the strain today. After pushing its way into new high ground for the year under the leadership of a group of personally conducted specialties during the early trading, it got struck by a gust of selling orders around midday and flattened out.

Auburn Shares Tumble.

Auburn Auto, the big flashy leader of the protracted advance, went tumbling a good 20 points from its forenoon peak before help came, and Case Threshing Machine fell about 11 before its plight was discovered. Columbian Carbon dropped about 8, Vanadium 6, and Worthington Pump about 7. Breaks of from 2 to 6 points were numerous and widely distributed. Some semblance of a recovery took place in the last half hour, but it was not sufficient to restore the damage by a long shot. The final table showed a preponderance of net losses on the day, ranging from 1 to more than 10 points.

Pivotal shares came in for a drubbing with the more flighty pool favorites, United States Steel dipping some 4 points to replace an early gain with a net loss of 2 points. American Can emerged showing a loss of 2¼ where a gain had grown before, and Westinghouse was branded with a 3⅛ point dip instead of the gain of 3 points or more it had sported when the bulls were in the heyday of their forenoon spree.

Nature of Bear Drive.

In some spots it undoubtedly took the nature of a bear drive. One brokerage house of high standing sent out a flash around the middle of the afternoon saying in effect that the break had been caused by a bear attack, and this helped as much as anything probably to dry up the selling and clear the way for the moderate rally that turned the list up anew toward the last.

INVESTMENT CO. BOOSTS YEARLY DIVIDEND RATE

The Commercial Investment Trust corporation of New York yesteday announced that the cash dividends on common stock had been increased from $1.60 to $2.00 annually through declaration of a quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents a share. The corporation announced it had discontinued its policy of paying part of each quarterly dividend in common stock.

Directors of Continental Shares, Inc., an investment trust organized by the Eaton-Otis interests, omitted the quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the common and $1.50 each on the series B preferred and convertible preferred issues. The action was taken, it was said, to conserve the cash and asset values of the stocks.

American Colortype company declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share on the common stock, thereby placing this issue on a $1.40 annual basis, against $2.40 heretofore paid.

Directors of Associates Investment company declared a special dividend of 1-60 of a share of common stock on the common, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

Say Appropriations for Advertising Are Higher

Replies to a questionnaire sent out by the Financial Advertisers' association indicate that advertising appropriations of members will be larger in 1931 than in 1930. Thirty-eight per cent of those who replied will have an increased budget this year; 12 per cent will have reduced budgets, and the remaining 51 per cent will spend the same amount. The estimated 1931 appropriation for all members of the association is in excess of $50,000,000. Directors and officers of the association will hold their mid-year conference in Boston, Feb. 20.

Baldwin Locomotive's Net Profit Is Higher in 1930

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Despite the fact that little new locomotive business was available for the second half of last year, net profit of the Baldwin Locomotive works for 1930 exceeded net for the previous year by $736,161.

Net profit for the year totaled $3,036,623, compared with $2,300,463 in 1929. Dividend payments on preferred and common stocks during 1930 totaled $2,831,512. Sales for 1930 totaled $49,872,455, compared with $42,796,587 in the previous year.

A VIEW OF THE BOND MARKET

• Much has been written of late about the likelihood of higher prices for bonds. The trend has been signalized by the recent offering of issues with 4% and 4½% coupons. Under the circumstances, some investors are asking how high is it possible for prices to go, or stated the other way, to what yields will it be necessary to reconcile ourselves.

• The above chart is of considerable interest in this connection. It reproduces part of a chart prepared and copyrighted by the National Bureau of Economic Research, Inc., showing the course of yields of high-grade American railroad bonds from January 1857 to December 1930. It indicates that from 1885 through 1912, except momentarily on two occasions in 1893 and 1907, such yields were below 4%. The chart also indicates that yields of the last ten years are relatively high on the basis of the record of the past half century.

• We have just prepared a folder containing a brief statement of our views on the bond market and short descriptions of some of our current offerings. A copy will be sent, without obligation, upon request. • Ask for CT15.

MUST RELY ON U.S. FOR RETURN TO PROSPERITY

Shown by Decline in Foreign Trade.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It becomes increasingly evident that the United States must look to its own people for a return to prosperity. It has been noticeable in the last few years that our foreign trade has declined simultaneously with the dearth of big foreign loans and credits floated in this country.

There have been both American and foreign financiers of the "international" frame of mind who have advocated a renewal of large American loans to other countries. But there has been a tendency among other American financiers and investors to regard foreign loans with more discrimination and to realize that exporting American capital without assurance of repayment is really exporting our natural resources.

The suggestion that this country must depend largely on its domestic trade for prosperity is contained in data on our foreign trade made public by the commerce department yesterday. Our exports in January were the smallest for any month since February, 1922, totaling only $250,000,000. And our imports were the lowest since September, 1921, aggregating only $183,000,000. In January, 1930, our exports were $410,000,000, and imports were $310,000,000.

Buying Power Shrinks.

With our international trade last month produced a favorable balance of $67,000,000, the large decline in our commerce in the last year indicates world shrinkage in buying power as well as the world decline in commodity prices. The commerce department explained part of the decline in export values as resulting from the drop in cotton prices, that commodity being one of our chief exports. The dearth of American loans recently is indicated by the fact that other countries sent $34,426,000 in gold to this country in January, while we sent out only $54,000. In January, 1930, gold imports were $12,908,000 and exports were $8,948,000. We sent out $3,574,000 of silver last month and received $2,896,000.

The commerce department also issued data regarding business conditions in other countries. Spotty conditions and little general improvement were noted for Europe. South America is showing signs of mild improvement, and the situation in the orient is mixed, although Japan and India have shown some improvement.

Freight Loadings Lower.

News of American trade and industry yesterday was somewhat disappointing. Little change in business was indicated by the movement of commodities by the railroads. Loading of revenue freight for the first week of this month totaled 719,053 cars, a decline of 228 from the preceding week, and a decrease of 166,762 from the corresponding week in 1930.

Petroleum production, which now is in the limelight, increased again last week. The daily average gross crude oil output totaled 2,127,700 barrels, an increase of 11,200 barrels a day over the previous week, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Refiners took more oil last week and operated at 61.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 59.9 per cent in the previous week.

The commerce department reported that American petroleum production last year totaled about 898,000,000 barrels, a decline of 109,000 barrels from the record figure of 1929. But consumption declined slightly, although motorists increased their usage of gasoline to 395,560,000 barrels, a gain of 5 per cent over 1929.

Ingot production of the United States Steel corporation for the week ended last Monday was a small fraction under 52 per cent, which is a reduction of slightly more than 1 per cent from the preceding seven days, when output was estimated at 53 per cent.

Unbalanced Production Is Blamed for Depression

BY SCRUTATOR.

A basic truth which has been persistently overlooked, but which undoubtedly furnished a great reason for the slump of business that began in 1929, has been brought to the light of discussion by Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association.

Unbalanced production, this banking executive calls the phenomenon which has been growing up for years. With it has gone unbalanced income and unbalanced purchasing power over large groups.

The explanation is not quite so formidable as the term. Mr. Stephenson started with the assumption, amply supported by facts, that high wages could be and were aid by highly mechanized mass production industries. The automobile industry proceeded, he said, on the theory that if one worker turned out twice as much vehicle value as he did in former years he earned and was paid much higher wages.

"This would be all very well," he added, "if all lines of productive workers had been enabled to produce their type of wealth at an equivalently higher rate also. The output of automobiles is not paid for out of the wealth their own workers produce. It is paid for mainly out of the wealth that other workers produce.

Inefficiency at Fault.

"It is, in reality, an interchange of units of one kind of labor for units of another kind. If only some lines increase their economies and volumes of production and others do not there comes a time when there is no longer an equilibrium of various kinds of wealth for a steady interchange."

Wrapped up here is a profound bit of economic philosophy. It is another way of saying that the inefficient producer is actually the cause of depression. The high wages of the efficient can not be paid out of the low wages of the inefficient. Mr. Stephenson says mechanized mass production can march ahead only if its front is fairly uniform everywhere.

It has been for years a matter of comment that the highly mechanized industries and the highly unionized groups, like the railroads and the building trades, kept base rates of pay high while other groups were in the lower earnings brackets and at last began to lose even what they had.

We know that in the United States in recent normal years an average of $23 per capita was invested in machinery annually. The corresponding figure in China was 5 cents. Chinese labor in cotton mills now works for $5 a month. There are many workers in the United States that get none or very little of the mechanical improvement from year to year. None of them get the Chinese rate of earning when they work, but it is difficult to conceive of a man with a hoe these days earning enough to buy the products of the highly paid and efficient workers.

Runs Out of Customers.

He might get enough to eat by his labor, but not much more. Efficient American industry temporarily ran out of customers, and it ran out because the holdovers from another age were barely keeping themselves alive.

Mr. Stephenson, like other bankers, seems to hold that the solution involves a surrender of high pay for highly efficient effort in order that there may be a matching of the inefficients' purchasing power with the efficients' offerings. That, of course, is a solution, but it is unpleasant. So, too, would be an insistence that capital invested with due regard to prudence take a smaller return.

So far, as a guess, it might be said that mechanized mass production has lowered its costs and passed on savings. Whether it should go much further, or can go much further, without reducing wage scales is uncertain. The bigger field is in raising some of the less efficient industrial groups to equality with the others. Ways to do it are being proposed every day. To argue that the leaders of the industrial army ought to wait for the others to catch up, or even march back to meet them, is not quite right. It is better to have the laggards put on double time marches.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City bank, who has been in semi-retirement for some years, is reputed to have made a large fortune in the rise of Auburn automobile on the stock exchange.

FRANK A. VANDERLIP.

Wall street had heard rumors for several weeks that Mr. Vanderlip was one of the large holders of Auburn stock, and the banker himself confirmed this in an interview given to the Associated Press in Los Angeles yesterday. Mr. Vanderlip admitted that he was "heavily interested" in Auburn. He refused to tell how much he held, but said, "I am a large owner and have been for a long time."

Mr. Vanderlip said that the last Auburn stock he bought was at 105. The low price for the stock this year was 101 and the low price last year was 60¾, so that it was believed probable that Mr. Vanderlip had acquired the bulk of his holdings at an average price considerably below 105.

Wall street estimates that Mr. Vanderlip and his associates own at least 25 per cent of the 173,475 shares of no par capital stock outstanding of the Auburn Automobile company. This would be around 43,368 shares, representing, at a cost of 105, a profit at current prices of almost $4,500,000.

If, as is generally believed, there is a condition in Auburn nearly approaching a corner, Mr. Vanderlip and his friends may own considerably more stock—that is to say, they may have purchased large amounts of stock sold for short account.

Mellon Says Oil Policy Is for Congress to Determine

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today informed the house ways and means committee the question of limiting oil imports was surely a congressional matter.

The treasury secretary expressed this opinion in a letter to Chairman Hawley of the committee which is considering the Capper-Garber bill to limit importations to 16,000,000 barrels annually for the next three years.

"The treasury department expresses no opinion as to the policy involved which is one for the congress to determine," Mellon said in response to a request for his position.

He added, however, it was believed there would be no difficulty on the part of the treasury in enforcing the bill if it became a law.

Has Open Mind.

Earlier in the day, Commissioner Eastman of the interstate commerce commission wrote the house commerce committee that the commission declined to "oppose or approve" the Hock bill to divorce major oil companies from their interstate pipe lines.

The letter was received while independent oil operators were testifying on the measure. Representative Hoch [Rep., Kas.], its author, interpreted the letter as "distinctly favorable" to his bill.

Hawley closed the hearings on the import limitation measure after reading Mellon's letter. He announced the committee would take final action later in the week.

Meanwhile it will hold hearings on bills for embargoes on wheat, feed grains, butter and manganese.

Pinchot Favors Embargo.

Representative Rich [Rep., Pa.] appeared at the request of Gov. Pinchot to indorse the Capper-Garber bill. He said the Pennsylvania governor favored an oil embargo to protect American industry and sustain the American standard of living.

While the commerce committee took testimony favoring the Hoch bill, opponents to any restriction on oil imports closed their case before the ways and means committee.

William McTarnahan, president of the Petroleum Heat and Power company, testified he suspected "a Negro in the oil woodpile" in the drive to limit petroleum imports. He said a few big companies have 665,870,000 barrels of oil in storage.

The effect of an embargo "immediately and inevitably would be to raise the value of this oil in storage," McTarnahan said. "Is it not three or four of the large producers who will be benefitted by this bill?"

CHRYSLER CORP. EARNS 5 CENTS A SHARE IN 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Like other automobile manufacturers, the Chrysler corporation had considerably smaller car sales and earnings in 1930, compared with 1929.

The annual report, issued today, showed net profit for the corporation and subsidiaries for 1930 was $234,154, equal to 5 cents a share on 4,414,645 no par common shares. In 1929 the corporation had net profit of $21,902,168, equal to $4.94 a share on 4,431,465 common shares. For the December quarter of 1930 the corporation reported a net loss of $2,258,592. The regular 25 cent dividend was declared by directors.

Total sales last year were $207,789,338, compared with $375,033,455 for 1929.

"No comment is necessary upon the adverse business conditions of 1930 and their responsibility for the reduction in earnings," Walter P. Chrysler, chairman and president, said. "It is, however, satisfying to note that Chrysler corporation substantially maintained its relative position in the industry. The company's strong financial position remains unimpaired."

AUTOMOBILE MAKERS EXPAND SCHEDULES FOR MONTH'S OUTPUT

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Advances in production by several automobile manufacturers over schedules originally planned for February indicate a substantial increase in February production by the industry, a survey by Dow, Jones & Co. says.

Ford currently is producing upwards of 7,000 units daily for three days a week, indicating a February output of around 84,000, compared with 55,182 units in January.

Chevrolet Motor company's tentative schedule of 67,429 units for the current month, exclusive of the Canadian schedule, is likely to be exceeded, according to W. S. Knudsen, president. Oakland Motor Car company has just placed a second assembly line in operation and the company's revised schedule for February, March, and April calls for 6,730 additional cars.

Buick Motor Car company's revised schedule for February calls for 7,907 cars.

Olds Motor Works has made two successive advances in its February schedule, placing production 50 per cent above the original schedule.

Hupp Motor Car corporation shipped 1,551 cars last month and its February schedule calls for a substantial increase in production.

Auburn Automobile company has scheduled 4,650 units for its February production, against total shipments of 2,014 cars last month. Graham-Paige has advanced its February schedule to 2,400 cars, an increase of 300 over the original figure.

New York, Feb. 17.—The stock market finally cracked under the strain today. After pushing its way into new high ground for the year under the leadership of a group of personally conducted specialties during the early trading, it got struck by a gust of selling orders around midday and flattened out.

Auburn Shares Tumble.

Auburn Auto, the big flashy leader of the protracted advance, went tumbling a good 20 points from its forenoon peak before help came, and Case Threshing Machine fell about 11 before its plight was discovered. Columbian Carbon dropped about 8, Vanadium 6, and Worthington Pump about 7. Breaks of from 2 to 6 points were numerous and widely distributed. Some semblance of a recovery took place in the last half hour, but it was not sufficient to restore the damage by a long shot. The final table showed a preponderance of net losses on the day, ranging from 1 to more than 10 points.

INVESTMENT CO. BOOSTS YEARLY DIVIDEND RATE

The Commercial Investment Trust corporation of New York yesteday announced that the cash dividends on common stock had been increased from $1.60 to $2.00 annually through declaration of a quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents a share. The corporation announced it had discontinued its policy of paying part of each quarterly dividend in common stock.

American Colortype company declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share on the common stock, thereby placing this issue on a $1.40 annual basis, against $2.40 heretofore paid.

Directors of Associates Investment company declared a special dividend of 1-60 of a share of common stock on the common, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

Say Appropriations for Advertising Are Higher

Replies to a questionnaire sent out by the Financial Advertisers' association indicate that advertising appropriations of members will be larger in 1931 than in 1930. Thirty-eight per cent of those who replied will have an increased budget this year; 12 per cent will have reduced budgets, and the remaining 51 per cent will spend the same amount. The estimated 1931 appropriation for all members of the association is in excess of $50,000,000. Directors and officers of the association will hold their mid-year conference in Boston, Feb. 20.

Baldwin Locomotive's Net Profit Is Higher in 1930

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Despite the fact that little new locomotive business was available for the second half of last year, net profit of the Baldwin Locomotive works for 1930 exceeded net for the previous year by $736,161.

Net profit for the year totaled $3,036,623, compared with $2,300,463 in 1929. Dividend payments on preferred and common stocks during 1930 totaled $2,831,512. Sales for 1930 totaled $49,872,455, compared with $42,796,587 in the previous year.

BYLLESBY TRUST HAS $1,585,445 INCOME IN 1930

Value of Holdings Shows 23% Decline.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Utility and Industrial corporation, the investment, management and underwriting company organized early in 1929 by the Byllesby interests, issued its 1930 report yesterday showing net income for the year of $1,585,445. The income is equivalent after preferred dividends to 54 cents a share on the common stock.

The 1930 earnings are slightly in excess of the profit reported by the company for the period from the date of organization, Feb. 9, 1929, to Dec. 31 of the same year. In that period the firm had a net income of $1,527,399 which was equivalent after preferred dividends to 63 cents a share on common.

Discloses Portfolio.

The report contained a complete list of the securities in the company's portfolio. The market value of these holdings on Dec. 31 was $28,296,723 which was approximately 23 per cent below the cost price of $36,937,263. Changes were made in the portfolio during the year so no direct comparison is available with the market value on Dec. 31, 1929. The market value of the securities held at the end of 1929 was $32,712,693.

Among the securities which appeared in the 1930 portfolio but do not appear in the present list were 2,000 allotment certificates of the Central Illinois Securities company, 1,500 allotment certificates of the Continental Chicago corporation and 20,000 shares of the Banco Kentucky corporation.

Bonds, common stock, and notes receivable from the Tampico Water Service are valued at $503,657.

The income account shows that the company derived no earnings from underwriting. Cash dividends and interest constituted the bulk of the income, with the profit on the sale of securities amounting to $86,953.

Net Asset Value.

The net asset value of the corporation on Dec. 31 was $25,000,000, as compared with the market value of the company's stocks of approximately $16,000,000. Surplus at the close of the year stood at $1,178,612, compared with $637,815 at the end of 1929.

Common and preferred shares of Utility and Industrial were steady around previous closing prices on the Chicago exchange yesterday in the face of general market weakness. The common closed at 7¾ and the preferred was quoted around 18½.

Rather severe recessions occurred in other sections of the list. Selling converged in the Insull Utility and the issue was forced off 3 points. Other Insull stocks were weak in sympathy. Another speculative favorite, United States Radio, lost over a point. Borg-Warner was an outstanding exception to the trend, advancing to a new high on heavy turnover.

GASOLINE AND OILS.

GASOLINE—Including tax, tank wagon, 14c; service station, 15c. CARBON—Perfection, 13c. FURNACE OIL—Stanoline, tank wagon, to 99 gals, 9c; 100 to 350 gals, 8c; 800 gals or more, 7½c. MACHINE OIL—Summer black, 9.9c; winter, 10.4c. WHITE LEAD—100 lb kegs, $13.25. TURPENTINE—51c. LINSEED OIL—Raw, 1 to 5 brl lots, 75c; boiled, 78c. DENATURED ALCOHOL—Drums, 47c.

Here Is a GOOD Job for a GOOD Statistician

. . . but he must have these qualifications:

1. Thorough experience in general statistical work;
2. A sound knowledge of all classes of stocks, bonds, fixed investment trusts, etc.;
3. The ability to accurately determine the exchange value of stocks and bonds for other securities;
4. A "Sales slant"—and the ability to use it effectively in correspondence.

BETTER BUYING BUOYS UP WHEAT PRICES SLIGHTLY

Character of Foreign News Changes.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A change in the character of the news from abroad; with reports that Germany was becoming uneasy over prospects of small reserves of native wheat combined with a marked improvement in the demand for Manitobas from Europe brought in sufficient buying yesterday to carry futures in the local market up 1c after a small dip at one time.

The finish was ⅛@⅛c higher on the new crop months, July finishing at 66¾c and September at 68¼@68⅝c. Old crop deliveries were unchanged with March, 79¼@79¼c, and May, 82⅝@82⅝c.

Foreign demand for Canadian wheat was the best in some time, the United Kingdom and Germany being credited with taking 700,000 bu. Cables from Liverpool reported the trade there was more bullish than of late, and that stocks of cash grain were steadily decreasing. There was also aggressive buying of futures at Winnipeg credited to English account, with net gains of ⅝c in the Canadian market, the July being 64⅝c, or 3¾c under Chicago. Liverpool was ⅝@⅞c higher with the July finishing at 66⅜c.

Rains Help New Crop.

Good rains were reported over part of the winter wheat belt, mainly from Missouri eastward. Western Kansas and a good part of Nebraska remain dry and the forecast indicated generally fair weather. There was some selling of futures here early on the rains which the trade feel will result in improvement in the general run of the crop reports. However, there have been practically no claims of damage to the latter so far this season. Unless weather conditions are unusually adverse it is expected that the abandoned acreage will be well below the normal of 11.7 per cent.

Traders find it hard to understand the improvement in the foreign demand for cash wheat as stocks afloat are liberal and are expected to increase still further.

Minneapolis May wheat sold down to 76⅝c, the "pegged" figure at which there was the customary support. A little rain or snow was reported at various points in the American and Canadian northwest but were too light to be of material benefit. The government snow map showed nothing on the ground except in eastern Manitoba.

Better Demand for Corn.

Shipping sales of 82,000 bu cash corn were reported by local handlers yesterday, the best business in about two weeks. There was a more general demand for the offerings in the sample market with the basis here and at Kansas City steady to ½c higher. Country offerings to arrive were decidedly small. Sentiment as a whole was more favorable to the buying side and with a jet up in the aggressive selling of late futures advanced 1¼@1⅝c from the early low with the finish within a fraction of the top with net gains of ⅞@1c. March closed at 62¾c; May, 65@65⅛c; July, 66⅝@66¾c, and September, 66⅝@66⅛c.

LARD TRADE LIMITED

Trading in lard yesterday was mainly in the last hour, when offerings, credited to packers, increased and prices declined and closed 5@7½c lower. Business was principally in May and July. Bellies were neglected and 5c lower on May and unchanged for July. Cash trade was fair. Liverpool lard was 3d lower for February and unchanged for other months. Export clearances of lard were 685,000 lbs and of bacon 258,800 lbs. Hogs were off 10@25c at the last with receipts smaller than a week ago but in excess of the same period in the two previous years. Prices follow:

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO BUYS FLAT BUILDING

Pays $110,000 for Drexel Avenue Property.

BY AL CHASE.

Purchase of a twenty-four apartment building at 5742-48 Drexel avenue was negotiated yesterday by the University of Chicago as an investment. The reported price paid Clay Judson, from whom title was obtained was $110,000. The building, containing four room suites, stands on a lot 96x130. It was erected four years ago. It will continue to be rented as at present to noncollegiate tenants. Frank J. O'Brien of McKey & Poague was broker in the purchase.

The Air Reduction Sales company has purchased the one story factory at the southwest corner of Homan avenue and West 33d street, 300x937, from Oscar Baur for an undisclosed consideration. This property has been used by the purchaser under lease for the manufacture of acetylene gas and tanks. Winston, Strawn and Shaw were attorneys.

Leases Central-Diversey Corner.

The Deep Rock Oil corporation has leased the northwest corner of Central and Diversey, 160x124, from John and Cecilia Schwaba for ten years at an annual rental of $2,700 the first two years, then $3,000 for a year, $3,300 for two years and $3,600 for the second five years. There is an option to extend the term for ten years at an annual rental of $4,200 for the first five years and $4,800 for the balance of the term. The lessee also has an option to purchase at any time during the first five years for $75,000. Rental will start on completion of a filling station.

The twelve flats at the southeast corner of Irving Park boulevard, lot 42x95, and the eight room residence at 10549 Irving avenue have been sold by Charles E. Wilson to Oscar C. Hagen for a reported $75,000. Mr. Hagen sold the eighteen apartment building, lot 60x120, at the southeast corner of Eastwood and Rockwell, to Margaret F. Ziegler for an undisclosed consideration. O. C. Hagen & Co. were brokers.

North Clark Street Lease.

The National Tea company has leased from Diederich Lunde the premises at 1215 North Clark street, formerly occupied by the Old Colony State bank, for five years at a reported rental of $19,000. Charles Nichols of John B. De Voney & Co. was broker.

The two story building at 1952 Lawrence avenue, which is 102 feet west of Winchester avenue, lot 44x123, was purchased by James H. Cronin from Lawrence A. Cuneo and Francis J. Cuneo for an undisclosed consideration. The southwest corner of West 63d street and South Racine avenue, lot 65x125, improved with six one story stores, was given in exchange by Mr. Cronin.

FINANCIAL NOTES

President Olaya Herrera of Colombia announced yesterday that an American banking group headed by the National City bank of New York and including the First National of Boston and the Continental Illinois bank plans loans to regional departments of Colombia after arrangements for the $20,000,000 national loan have been completed. The bankers will conduct a survey of the departmental fiscal situation before deciding details of the loan.

The state department announced yesterday rejection of a plan submitted by the J. G. White company of New York, proposing the extension of loans to the Dominican republic. The plan, details of which the department declined to disclose, was reported to involve a credit of some $5,000,000.

A group consisting of Dillon, Read & Co., A. E. Ames & Co., Ltd., Wood Gundy & Co., Dominion Securities corporation, Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank of America have purchased $5,000,000 Province of British Columbia five year 4½ per cent debentures due Feb. 15, 1936. The debentures are being offered today at 99.33 and interest to yield 4.40 per cent.

Walting, Lerchen and Hayes and Braun Bosworth have purchased $356,000 Hamtramck, Mich., school district bonds maturing serially from 1932 to 1955. The bonds will be offered shortly. Hamtramck is a suburb of Detroit.

Comptroller Berry of New York City has arranged a short term loan of $15,000,000 at 1¾ per cent. The award was made in equal amounts to J. P. Morgan & Co., Chase National bank and the National City bank.

A syndicate headed by the First National bank of New York has been awarded $2,975,000 San Francisco 4½ per cent bonds, due 1932 to 1953, on a bid of 102.859.

R. W. Pressprich & Co. have purchased at par $2,000,000 state of Arizona 2 per cent tax anticipation bonds due June 24, 1931.

Stockholders of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company have approved an increase in the authorized capital stock from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Doubling of the authorized common stock of the American Gas and Electric company from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 shares was approved at the annual meeting of stockholders.

Top yesterday, $9.00; average, $8.15.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 9,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs, and 12,000 sheep.

The general average price of hogs swung down to $6.90 yesterday, a new low since July, 1924, when the low spot was $6.75. This price compares with $10.80 on the corresponding day in 1930 and with $10.45 two years ago. Shipping demand dropped off and more than offset the fact that receipts were below normal for Tuesday.

Only 5,500 sold to outsiders, making the smallest shipments for Tuesday since middle of December. Another slight setback in the local wholesale market for fresh pork restricted the buying by smaller packers and city butchers. Armour, Swift, and Wilson bought about 7,500 and only 4,000 were left at the close, the low point of the day.

Today's Hogs Bid $7.75.

Light weights for today's delivery were bid $7.75 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but there were no sellers at that figure. April and May light were being offered at $9.50. March light were bid $7.90. Offers and bids were far apart in most instances. March mediums were offered at $8.75 and bid $7.00, while March heavy were offered at $7.40.

Good grades of steers held firm in face of a slight increase in receipts and the market finished in fairly good shape with 9,000 estimated for today, against 7,879 last Wednesday. The two day total, however, is smaller than a week ago and smaller than in 1930.

Although no steers on sale yesterday were good enough to beat $11.00, which was paid for 1,399 lb. averages, quite a number of loads of 1,200@1,500 lb. averages sold at $10.00 and above.

The bulk of sales at $7.50@10.00 compared with $7.00@9.00 Tuesday of last week.

Lambs in Demand.

In spite of the fact that shipping demand is the widest of the year, buyers held the lamb market almost steady. There was a spurt in buying toward the close and some sales were considered 10@15c higher.

The extreme top advanced 10c at $9.00, while lambs exceeding 90 lbs. in weight sold at $8.50@8.70. Aged sheep and yearlings were steady. Shearing lambs averaging 74 lbs. sold at $8.00. While sheep receipts at Chicago so far this month are running 7,000 smaller than a year ago, shipments from Chicago for the month show an increase of about 10,000.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 9,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs, and 12,000 sheep, against 7,978 cattle, 24,714 hogs, and 17,194 sheep on the previous Wednesday, and 8,580 cattle, 19,916 hogs, and 9,215 sheep a year ago.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Demand for butter was fairly active and prices ½c higher. Receipts, 13,651 tubs. Fresh eggs continue in large supply with prices unchanged. Receipts, 17,736 cases. Live lightweight hens advanced 1c with other poultry unchansged. Receipts, 1 car and 23 trucks. Potato market was unsettled owing to a controversy between receivers and jobbers. Undertone was easy with receipts 111 cars with 278 cars on team track.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

Bird-Sykes

Established 1903.
On Michigan-av. 28 Years
Selling High Grade Cars.

WHEN "BIRD-SYKES" SAY REBUILT

they do not mean merely "shined up," "tightened up," and "tuned up." Rebuilt in the Bird-Sykes Shop means thoroughly checking the entire car for wear, replacing worn parts with new, rebuilding, adjusting, tuning up, repairing body, renovating upholstery. That is why a Bird-Sykes Rebuilt Car satisfies the eye as a new car, and its performance is the same as new.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SIX, 614, 5 Pass. Sedan. This model has the 4-speed transmission, looks "new" in every detail, and should give its next owner the best of satisfaction. It has been rebuilt by us, carries our guarantee. Has 5 excellent tires and much equipment. See this smart looking car, $585.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SIX, 615, Cabriolet 1929. This cabriolet has practically the same lines as the cabriolet selling new today. It has not had a great deal of service, yet we have given it the usual Bird-Sykes rebuilding so that its performance is the same as when new. Has 4 speed transmission, chromeplated, and many other features. This is the first car of this model available in some time and we advise your early inspection. Guaranteed, $695.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SIX, 621, Convertible Coupe. Driven just 4,400 miles and truly cannot be classed as a "used car." Finished in a beautiful Canary Yellow with black striping. Has many extras including shatterproof plateglass, winterfront, and the 4 speed transmission. Needs nothing in adjustments, etc., and is guaranteed, $1,075.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SIX, 612, Sedan, 1929. This late car has hardly been used and is like new every way. Not a scratch anywhere or a suggestion of use by the previous owner. Has 6 wire wheels, 6 tires, etc. Rebuilt by us and guaranteed, $625.

HUPMOBILE BIG 8 1929 Sedan 4 door. The famous Century 8 model and a car very much in demand. It will pay you to see and ride in this one. Shows no signs of usage in any particular. Tires perfect. This car has been rebuilt by us and is guaranteed, $795.

DODGE Victory 6 1929 4 dr. Sedan. Comes to us in almost new condition mechanically. Special paint job of attractive gray with harmonizing blue fenders. It's really different. Everything on it, including shock absorbers. You'll want it if you see it. Rebuilt, of course, and guaranteed, $465.
